3. Government reserves to itself the right to alter the quantity and class of opium to be offered for sale in each month. No reduction in the quantities to be sold, however, will be made without three months' previous notice.

4. The following are the conditions of sale. Government reserves to itself the right of altering all or any of these conditions after giving three months' previous notice, and power is reserved to vary the upset price referred to in condition (ii) at any time without such previous notice:—

(i) The opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

(ii) The opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rs. 1,600 per chest of uncertified opium and will be sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by clause (xiii) of these conditions of sale. The bids must advance by Rs. 5 at a time.

(iii) The sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A.M. of the day fixed by previous notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P.M., but if at that hour any of the lots advertised for sale shall remain unsold, the sale may, at the discretion of Government, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a public holiday), at the hour of 11 A.M., and so on until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of; or if the whole quantity advertised shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Government may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

(iv) Each lot shall contain five chests.

(v) A promissory note for a sum, calculated according to the scale noted in the margin, shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the sale-room and before the lot is registered in the sale-book, and all such promissory notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this office by Bank of Bengal receipts, or by substitution of other public securities of the Government of India, on or before 3-30 P.M., in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, provided it does not fall on a Saturday; if it falls on a Saturday, the said notes must be redeemed by 1-30 P.M., or, on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid, then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal receipts or deposit of other public securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in, shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as Government shall see fit; and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

DEPOSIT.

On bids of Rs. 1,000 and upwards, but less than Rs 2,000 per chest, Rs. 400 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 2,000 and upwards, but less than Rs. 2,400 per chest, Rs. 500 per chest.

And so on, Rs. 100 being added to the deposit for every bid additional to the extent of Rs. 400.

(vi) The said promissory notes shall be absolutely payable in any event, and the amount thereof shall be absolutely forfeited upon such default as before mentioned, and the amount thereof shall not go or be credited in reduction of any loss on re-sale or expenses thereby incurred, but shall be recoverable whether such re-sale shall be had or not, or whether there shall be a loss on such re-sale or not.

(vii) The promissory notes taken on the day of sale under the fifth condition, if remaining unredeemed at 3-30 P.M. of the fifth day following the day of sale, or 1-30 P.M., if the last day falls on a Saturday, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

(viii) No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of opium upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before the prescribed time in clause (v) on the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted: Provided always that money so subsequently tendered may be taken in payment of the said promissory note, but such acceptance of money shall in no way entitle the payer thereof to any right to delivery of the lot or lots in respect whereof the said note was given, or to any of the rights of a purchaser thereof, or release the payer from liability for any unpaid balance of such notes or from the additional liability for the loss and expenses of such re-sale as provided for in clauses No. (v) and No. (vi).

(ix) The opium advertised for sale shall be paid for not later than by 3-30 P.M. of the fifteenth day from the day of sale, provided it does not fall on a Saturday; if it falls on a Saturday, the opium must be paid for by 1-30 P.M.; and, in case any lots of such opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as Government shall think fit; and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good all expenses and any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale, and the liability for the loss or difference of price and expenses shall be in addition to, and wholly independent of, the amount of the deposit so forfeited.

(x) Puchasers taking out certificates or orders for the delivery of opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each certificate or order; and it is to be clearly understood that the certificates or orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other certificates or orders authorizing the delivery of single lots or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less, than the number of lots or chests ordinarily required to be included in each certificate or order.

(xi) No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present conditions will be received in this office except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale-book, or his authorized agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

(xii) The officer superintending the sale on the part of the Government is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall on demand render at the time a deposit either in Government of India notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a promissory note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these conditions.

(xiii) With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually by Rs. 5 at a time until a bid is obtained; and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of Rs. 1,600 specified in the second of these conditions.

(xiv) The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of opium not exceeding altogether fifteen lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the opium to complete the said fifteen.

(xv) In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the opium included in this notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

5. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal:—

No. 1—Certificate of the opium advertised for sale.
No. 2—Report of the examination of such opium.

6. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Ghazipur Factory, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug, when packed at the Ghazipur Factory, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken, for the purpose of comparison, from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal.

7. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Government entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment.

No. 2.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to the Belgian Ministers at Paris, Berlin, London, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

Brussels, July 24, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Le Gouvernement du Roi s'est demandé si, dans les circonstances actuelles, il n'y aurait pas lieu d'adresser aux Puissances qui ont garanti son indépendance et sa neutralité, une communication destinée à leur confirmer sa résolution de remplir les devoirs internationaux que lui imposent les traités au cas où une guerre viendrait à éclater aux frontières de la Belgique.

Il a été amené à la conclusion qu'une telle communication serait prématurée à l'heure présente mais que les événements pourraient se précipiter et ne point lui laisser le temps de faire parvenir, au moment voulu, les instructions opportunes à ses représentants à l'étranger.

Dans cette situation, j'ai proposé au Roi et à mes collègues du Cabinet, qui se sont ralliés à ma manière de voir, de vous donner, dès à present, des indications précises sur la démarche que vous auriez à faire si l'éventualité d'une guerre franco-allemande devenait plus menaçante.

Vous trouverez, sous ce pli, une lettre signée, mais non datée dont vous aurez à donner lecture et à laisser copie au Ministre des Affaires Étrangères si les circonstances exigent cette communication.

Je vous indiquerai par télégramme le moment d'agir.

Le télégramme vous sera adressé à l'heure où la mobilisation de l'armée belge sera décrétée, si, contrairement à notre sincère espoir, et aux apparences de solution pacifique, nos renseignements nous amenaient à prendre cette mesure extrême de précaution.

Veuillez agréer, etc.

(Signé) DAVIGNON.

Sir,

The Belgian Government have had under their consideration whether, in present circumstances, it would not be advisable to address to the Powers who guarantee Belgian independence and neutrality a communication assuring them of Belgium's determination to fulfil the international obligations imposed upon her by treaty in the event of a war breaking out on her frontiers.

The Government have come to the conclusion that such a communication would be premature at present, but that events might move rapidly and not leave sufficient time to forward suitable instructions at the desired moment to the Belgian representatives abroad.

In these circumstances I have proposed to the King and to my colleagues in the Cabinet, who have concurred, to give you now exact instructions as to the steps to be taken by you if the prospect of a Franco-German War became more threatening.

I enclose herewith a note, signed but not dated, which you should read to the Minister for Foreign Affairs and of which you should give him a copy, if circumstances render such a communication necessary.

I will inform you by telegram when you are to act on these instructions.

This telegram will be despatched when the order is given for the mobilisation of the Belgian army if, contrary to our earnest hope and to the apparent prospect of a peaceful settlement, our information leads us to take this extreme measure of precaution.

Enclosure in No. 2.

(Translation.)

Monsieur le Ministre,

La situation internationale est grave; l'éventualité d'un conflit entre plusieurs

Sir,

The international situation is serious, and the possibility of a war between Puissances ne peut être écartée des préoccupations du Gouvernement du Roi.

La Belgique a observé avec la plus scrupuleuse exactitude les devoirs d'État neutre que lui imposent les traités du 19 avril 1839. Ces devoirs, elle s'attachera inébranlablement à les remplir, quelles que soient les circonstances.

Les dispositions amicales des Puissances à son égard ont été affirmées si souvent que la Belgique a la confiance de voir son territoire demeurer hors de toute atteinte si des hostilités venaient à se produire à ses frontières.

Toutes les mesures nécessaires pour assurer l'observation de sa neutralité n'en ont pas moins été prises par le Gouvernement du Roi. L'armée belge est mobilisée et se porte sur les positions stratégiques choisies pour assurer la défense du pays et le respect de sa neutralité. Les forts d'Anvers et de la Meuse sont en état de défense.

Il est à peine nécessaire, Monsieur le Ministre, d'insister sur le caractère de ces mesures. Elles n'ont d'autre but que de mettre la Belgique en situation de remplir ses obligations internationales; elles ne sont et n'ont pu être inspirées, cela va de soi, ni par le dessin de prendre part à une lutte armée des Puissances, ni par un sentiment de défiance envers aucun d'elles.

Me conformant aux ordres reçus, j'ai l'honneur de remettre à votre Excellence une copie de la déclaration du Gouvernement du Roi et de la prier de bien vouloir en prendre acte.

Une communication identique a été faite aux autres Puissances garantes de la neutralité belge.

Je saisis, &c.

several Powers naturally preoccupies the Belgian Government.

Belgium has most scrupulously observed the duties of a neutral State imposed upon her by the treaties of April 19, 1839; and those duties she will strive unflinchingly to fulfil, whatever the circumstances may be.

The friendly feelings of the Powers towards her have been so often reaffirmed that Belgium confidently expects that her territory will remain free from any attack, should hostilities break out upon her frontiers.

All necessary steps to ensure respect of Belgian neutrality have nevertheless been taken by the Government. The Belgian army has been mobilised and is taking up such strategic positions as have been chosen to secure the defence of the country and the respect of its neutrality. The forts of Antwerp and on the Meuse have been put in a state of defence.

It is scarcely necessary to dwell upon the nature of these measures. They are intended solely to enable Belgium to fulful her international obligations; and it is obvious that they neither have been nor can have been undertaken with any intention of taking part in an armed struggle between the Powers or from any feeling of distrust of any of those Powers.

In accordance with my instructions, I have the honour to communicate to your Excellency a copy of the declaration by the Belgian Government, and to request that you will be good enough to take note of it.

A similar communication has been made to the other Powers guaranteeing Belgian neutrality.

Monsieur le Ministre,

J'AI adressé à vos collègues accrédités auprès des Puissances grantes de l'indépendance et de la neutralité de la Belgique une circulaire, sans date, dont vous trouverez le texte sous ce pli.

Si la menace d'une guerre franco-allemande devenait imminente, cette circulaire serait communiquée aux Gouvernements des Puissances garantes, pour leur faire connaître notre résolution

Sir,

I HAVE addressed an undated circular note, a copy of which is enclosed, to the Belgian representatives accredited to the Powers guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Belgium.

Should the danger of a war between France and Germany become imminent, this circular note will be communicated to the Governments of the guaranteeing Powers, in order to inform them of our

La communication dont il s'agit ne serait effectuée que sur un ordre télégraphique de ma part.

Si les circonstances m'amènent à donner cet ordre, je vous prierai, également par la voie télégraphique, de donner connaissance de notre démarche au Gouvernement auprès duquel vous êtes accrédité, en lui communiquant une copie de la circulaire ci-jointe, à titre de renseignement, et sans demander qu'il vous soit donné acte de cette communication.

Mon télégramme vous indiquerait, éventuellement, la date qui devrait être attribuée à la circulaire, date que vous auriez soin d'inscrire sur la copie que vous remettriez au Ministre des Affaires Étrangères.

Il va de soi que la présente dépêche et son annexe doivent conserver un caractère strictement confidentiel, jusqu'au reçu de nouvelles intstructions de ma part.

fixed determination to fulfil those international obligations that are imposed upon us by the treaties of 1839.

The communications in question would only be made upon telegraphic instructions from me.

If circumstances lead me to issue such instructions, I shall request you also, by telegram, to notify the Government to which you are accredited of the step we have taken, and to communicate to them a copy of the enclosed circular note for their information, and without any request that they should take note thereof.

My telegram will inform you of the date to be given to the circular note, which you should be careful to fill in on the copy which you hand to the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

It is unnecessary to point out that this despatch and its enclosure should be treated as strictly confidential until the receipt of fresh instructions from me.

Baron Beyens, Belgian Minister at Berlin, to Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Berlin, July 27, 1914.

(Télégramme.)

D'APRÈS un télégramme du Chargé d'Affaires britannique à Belgrade, le Gouvernement serbe a cédé sur tous les points de la note autrichienne. Il admet même l'immixtion de fonctionnaires autrichiens si celle-ci peut s'accorder avec les usages du droit des gens. Le Chargé d'Affaires britannique estime que cette réponse devrait satisfaire l'Autriche dans le cas ou celle-ci ne voudrait pas la guerre. Néanmoins l'impression est plus favorable ici aujourd'hui, surtout parce que les hostilités contre la Serbie n'ont pas commencé. Le Gouvernement britannique propose l'intervention de i'Angleterre, de l'Allemagne, de la France et de l'Italie à Saint-Pétersbourg et à Vienne pour trouver un terrain de conciliation. L'Allemagne seule n'a pas encore répondu. L'Empereur décidera.

(Telegram.)

ACCORDING to a telegram from the British Chargé d'Affaires at Belgrade, the Servian Government have given way on all the points of the Austrian note. They even allow the intervention of Austrian officials if such a proceeding is in conformity with the usages of international law. The British Chargé d'Affaires considers that this reply should satisfy Austria if she is not desirous of war. Nevertheless, a more hopeful atmosphere prevails here to-day, more particularly because hostilities against Servia have not begun. The British Government suggest mediation by Great Britain, Germany, France, and Italy at St. Petersburg and Vienna in order to find some basis for compromise. Germany alone has not yet replied. The decision rests with the Emperor.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affirs, to the Belgian Ministers at Berlin, Paris, London, Vienna, St. Petersburg, Rome, The Hague, and Luxemburg.

Brussels, July 29, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

LE Gouvernement du Roi a décidé de mettre l'armée sur le pied de paix renforcé.

Sir,

THE Belgian Government have decided to place the army upon the strengthened peace footing.

Cette mesure ne doit être en aucune façon confondue avec la mobilisation.

A cause du peu d'étendue de son territoire, la Belgique tout entière constitute en quelque sorte une zone frontière. Son armée, sur le pied de paix ordinaire, ne comporte qu'une classe de milice sous les armes, Sur le pied de paix renforcé ses divisions d'armée et sa division de cavalerie, grâce au rappel de trois classes, ont des effectifs analogues à ceux des corps entretenus en permanence dans les zones frontières des Puissances voisines.

Ces renseignements vous permettraient de repondre aux questions qui pourraient vous être posées.

Veuillez agréer, etc.

(Signé) DAVIGNON.

This step should in no way be confused with mobilisation.

Owing to the small extent of her territory, all Belgium consists, in some degree, of a frontier zone. Her army on the ordinary peace footing consists of only one class of armed militia; on the strengthened peace footing, owing to the recall of three classes, her army divisions and her cavalry division comprise effective units of the same strength as those of the corps permanently maintained in the frontier zones of the neighbouring Powers.

This information will enable you to reply to any questions which may be addressed to you.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Monsieur le Ministre de France étant venu me montrer un télégramme de l Agence Havas, décrétant l'état de guerre en Allemagne, m'a dit:

"Je profite de cette occasion pour vous déclarer qu'aucune incursion des troupes françaises n'aura lieu en Belgique, même si des forces importantes étaient massées sur les frontières de votre pays. La France ne veut pas avoir la responsabilité d'accomplir vis-à-vis de la Belgique, le premier acte d'hostilité. Des instructions dans ce sens seront données aux autorités françaises."

J'ai remercié Monsieur Klobukowski de sa communication et j'ai cru devoir lui faire remarquer que nous avions toujours eu la plus grande confiance dans la loyauté qde nos deux États voisins mettraient à tenir leurs engagements à notre égard. Nous avons aussi tout lieu de croire que l'attitude du Gouvernement allemand sera identique à celle du Gouvernement de la République française.

Sir,

The French Minister came to show me a telegram from the Agence Havas, reporting a state of war in Germany, and said:—

"I seize this opportunity to declare that no incursion of French troops into Belgium will take place, even if considerable forces are massed upon the frontiers of your country. France does not wish to incur the responsibility, so far as Belgium is concerned, of taking the first hostile act. Instructions in this sense will be given to the French authorities."

I thanked Monsieur Klobukowski for his communication, and I felt bound to observe that we had always had the greatest confidence in the loyal observance by both our neighbouring States of their engagements towards us. We have also every reason to believe that the attitude of the German Government will be the same as that of the Government of the French Republic.

No. 11.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to the Belgian Ministers at Berlin, London, and Paris.

Brussels, July 31, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Le Ministre d'Angleterre a demandé à me voir d'urgence et m'a fait la communication suivante, qu'il souhaitait être à même de m'exposer depuis plusieurs jours : En raison de la possibilité d'une guerre européenne Sir Edward Grey a demandé aux Gouvernements français et allemand, séparément, si chacun d'eux était prêt à respecter la neutralité de la Belgique pourvu qu'aucune Puissance ne la viole :

"Vu les traités qui existent, je suis chargé d'informer le Ministre des Affaires Étrangères de Belgique de ce qui précède et de dire que Sir Edward Grey présume que la Belgique fera tout son possible pour maintenir sa neutralité et qu'elle désire et s'attend à ce que les autres Puissances l'observant et la maintiennent."

Je me suis empressé de remercier Sir Francis Villiers de cette communication que le Gouvernement belge apprécie particuliérement et j'ai ajouté que la Grande-Bretagne et les autres nations garantes de notre indépendance pouvaient être assurées que nous ne négligerions aucun effort pour maintenir notre neutralité, et que nous étions convaincus que les autres Puissances, vu les excellents rapports d'amitié at de confiance, que nous avions toujours entretenus avec elles, observeraient et maintiendraient cette neutralité.

Je n'ai pas manqué d'affirmer que nos forces malitaires, considérablement développées à la suite de notre réorganisation récente, étaient à même de nous permettre de nous défendre énergiquement en cas de violation de notre territoire.

(Translation.)

Sir,

THE British Minister asked to see me on urgent business, and made the following communication, which he had hoped for some days to be able to present to me. Owing to the possibility of a European war, Sir Edward Grey has asked the French and German Governments separately if they were each of them ready to respect Belgian neutrality provided that no other Power violated it:—

"In view of existing treaties, I am instructed to inform the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs of the above, and to say that Sir Edward Grey presumes that Belgium will do her utmost to maintain her neutrality, and that she desires and expects that the other Powers will respect and maintain it."

I hastened to thank Sir Francis Villiers for this communication, which the Belgian Government particularly appreciate, and I added that Great Britain and the other nations guaranteeing our independence could rest assured that we would neglect no effort to maintain our neutrality, and that we were convinced that the other Powers, in view of the excellent relations of friendship and confidence which had always existed between us, would respect and maintain that neutrality.

I did not fail to state that our military forces, which had been considerably developed in consequence of our recent re-organisation, were sufficient to enable us to defend ourselves energetically in the event of the violation of our territory.

Au cours de la conversation qui a suivi, Sir Francis m'a paru un peu surpris de la rapidité avec laquelle nous avions décidé la mobilisation de notre armée. J'ai fait remarquer que les Pays-Bas avaient pris une résolution identique avant nous et que d'autre part la date récente de notre nouveau régime militaire et les mesures transitoires que nous avions dû décider à cette occasion, nous imposaient des mesures urgentes et complètes. Nos voisins et garants devaient voir dans cette résolution le désir de manifester notre profonde volonté de maintenir nous-mêmes notre neutralité.

Sir Francis m'a paru satisfait de ma réponse et m'a annoncé que son Gouvernement attendait cette réponse pour continuer les négociations avec la France et l'Allemagne, négociations dont la conclusion me serait communiquée.

Veuillez agréer, etc.
(Signé) DAVIGNON.

In the course of the ensuing conversation, Sir Francis seemed to me somewhat surprised at the speed with which we had decided to mobilise our army. I pointed out to him that the Netherlands had come to a similar decision before we had done so, and that, moreover, the recent date of our new military system, and the temporary nature of the measures upon which we then had to decide, made it necessary for us to take immediate and thorough precautions. Our neighbours and guarantors should see in this decision our strong desire to uphold our neutrality ourselves.

Sir Francis seemed to be satisfied with my reply, and stated that his Government were awaiting this reply before continuing negotiations with France and Germany, the result of which would be communicated to me.

Brussels, July 31, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Ce matin, au cours d'une conversation que le Secrétaire Général de mon Département a eue avec Monsieur de Below, il a expliqué au Ministre d'Allemagne la portée des mesures militaires que nous avons prises et lui a dit qu'elles étaient une conséquence de notre volonté d'accomplir nos obligations internationales, qu'elles n'impliquaient en aucune façon une attitude de défiance envers nos voisins.

Le Secrétaire Général a demandé ensuite au Ministre d'Allemagne s'il avait connaissance de la conversation qu'il avait eue avec son prédécesseur, Monsieur de Flotow, et de la réponse que le Chancelier de l'Empire avait chargé celui-ci de lui faire.

Au cours de la polémique soulevée en 1911 par le dépôt du projet hollandais concernant les fortifications de Flessingue; certains journaux avaient affirmé qu'en cas de guerre franco-allemande notre neutralité serait violée par l'Allemagne.

Le Département des Affaires Étrangères avait suggéré l'idée qu'une déclaration faite au Parlement allèmand à l'occasion d'un débat su la politique étrangére serait de nature á apaiser

(Translation.)

Sir,

In the course of the conversation which the Secretary-General of my Department had with Herr von Below this morning, he explained to the German Minister the scope of the military measures which we had taken, and said to him that they were a consequence of our desire to fulfil our international obligations, and that they in no wise implied an attitude of distrust towards our neighbours.

The Secretary-General then asked the German Minister if he knew of the conversation which he had had with his predecessor, Herr von Flotow, and of the reply which the Imperial Chancellor had instructed the latter to give.

In the course of the controversy which arose in 1911 as a consequence of the Dutch scheme for the fortification of Flushing, certain newspapers had maintained that in the case of a Franco-German war Belgian neutrality would be violated by Germany.

The Department of Foreign Affairs had suggested that a declaration in the German Parliament during a debate on foreign affairs would serve to calm public l'opinion publique et á calmer ses défiances, si regrettables au point de vue des relations des deux pays.

Monsieur de Bethmann-Hollweg fit répondre qu'il avait été trés sensible aux sentiments qui avaient inspré notre démarché. Il déclarait que l'Allemagne n'avait pas l'intention de violer notre neutralité, mais il estimait qu'en faisant publiquement une déclaration l'Allemagne affaiblirait sa situation militaire vis-á-vis de la France, qui, rassurée du côté du nord, porterait toutes ses forces du côte de l'est.

Le Baron van der Elst, poursuivant, dit qu'il comprenait parfaitement les objections qu'avaient faites Monsieur de Bethmann-Hollweg á la déclaration publique suggéróe, et il rappela que depuis lors, en 1913, Monsieur de Jagow avait fait à la Commission du Budget du Reichstag des déclarations rassurantes quant au respect de la neutralité de la Belgique.

Monsieur de Below répondit qu'il était au courant de la conversation avec Monsieur de Flotow, et qu'il était certain que les sentiments exprimés á cette époque n'avaient pas changé.

Veuillez agréer, etc.

opinion, and to dispel the mistrust which was so regrettable from the point of view of the relations between the two countries.

Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg replied that he had fully appreciated the feelings which had inspired our representations. He declared that Germany had no intention of violating Belgian neutrality, but he considered that in making a public declaration Germany would weaken her military position in regard to France, who, secured on the northern side, would concentrate all her energies on the east.

Baron van der Elst, continuing, said that he perfectly understood the objections raised by Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg to the proposed public declaration, and he recalled the fact that since then, in 1913, Herr von Jagow had made reassuring declarations to the Budget Commission of the Reichstag respecting the maintenance of Belgian neutrality.

Herr von Below replied that he knew of the conversation with Herr von Flotow, and that he was certain that the sentiments expressed at that time had not changed.

Enclosure in No. 12.

The Belgian Minister at Berlin to Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Berlin, May 2, 1913.

Monsieur le Ministre,

J'ai l'honneur de vous faire connaître, d'aprés l'officieuse "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," les déclarations faites, au cours de la séance du 29 avril de la Commission du Budget du Reichstag, par le Secrétaire d'État aux Affairs Etrangères et le Ministre de la Guerre relativement à la neutralité de la Belgique:

"Un membre du parti social-démocrate dit: 'En Belgique on voit avec appréhension s'approcher une guerre franco-allemande, car on craint que l'Allemagne ne respectera pas la neutralité de la Belgique.'

"Monsieur de Jagow, Secrétaire d'État aux Affaires Étrangères, répondit: 'La neutralité de la Belgique est déterminée par des conventions internationales, et l'Allemagne est décidée à respecter ces conventions.'

(Translation.)

Sir,

I have the honour to bring to your notice the declarations respecting Belgian neutrality, as published in the semi-official "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," made by the Secretary of State and the Minister of War, at the meeting of the Budget Committee of the Reichstag on April 29th:—

"A member of the Social Democrat Party said: 'The approach of a war between Germany and France is viewed with apprehension in Belgium, for it is feared that Germany will not respect the neutrality of Belgium.'

"Herr von Jagow, Secretary of State, replied: 'Belgian neutrality is provided for by International Conventions and Germany is determined to respect those Conventions.'

"Cette déclaration ne satisfit pas un autre membre du parti social-démocrate. Monsieur de Jagow observa qu'il n'avait rien à ajouter aux paroles claires qu'il avait prononcées relativement aux relations de l'Allemagne avec la Belgique

"A de nouvelles interrogations d'un membre du parti social-démocrate, Monsieur de Heeringen, Ministre de la Guerre, répondit: 'La Belgique ne joue aucun rôle dans la justification du projet de réorganisation militaire allemand; celui-ci se trouve justifié par la situation en Orient. L'Allemagne ne perdra pas de vue que la neutralité belge est garantie par les traités internationaux.'

"Un membre du parti prog essiste ayant encore parlé de la Belgique, Monsieur de Jagow fit remarquer à nouveau que sa déclaration concernant la Belgique était suffisamment claire."

Veuillez agréer, etc.

(Signé) BARON BEYENS.

"This declaration did not satisfy another member of the Social Democrat Party. Herr von Jagow said that he had nothing to add to the clear statement he had made respecting the relations between Germany and Belgium.

"In answer to fresh enquiries by a member of the Social Democrat Party, Herr von Heeringen, the Minister of War, replied: 'Belgium plays no part in the causes which justify the proposed re-organisation of the German military system. That proposal is based on the situation in the East. Germany will not lose sight of the fact that the neutrality of Belgium is guaranteed by international treaty.'

"A member of the Progressive Party having once again spoken of Belgium, Herr von Jagow repeated that this declaration in regard to Belgium was sufficiently clear."

J'AI l'honneur de porter à la connaissance de votre Excellence les faits suivants: Dimanche 2 août, de grand matin, les troupes allemandes, d'après les informations qui sont parvenues au Gouvernement grand-ducal à l'heure actuelle, ont pénétré sur le territoire luxembourgeois par les ponts de Wasserbillig et de Remich, se dirigeant spécialement vers le sud du pays et vers la ville de Luxembourg, capitale du Grand-Duché. Un certain nombre de trains blindés avec des troupes et des munitions ont été acheminés par la voie de chemin de fer de Wasserbillig à Luxembourg, où l'on s'attend à les voir arriver d'un instant à l'autre. Ces faits impliquent des actes manifestement contraires à la neutralité du Grand-Duché, garantie par le Traité de Londres de 1867. Le Gouvernement luxembourgeois n'a pas manqué de protester énergiquement contre cette agression auprès du Représentant de Sa Majesté l'Empereur d'Allemagne à Luxembourg. Une protestation identique va être transmise télégraphiquement au Secrétaire d'État pour les Affaires Étrangères à Berlin.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint your Excellency with the following facts: According to information which has just reached the Grand Ducal Government, early on the morning of Sunday, August 2, German troops entered Luxemburg territory by the Wasserbillig and Remich bridges, proceeding more particularly towards the south and towards the town of Luxemburg, capital of the Grand Duchy. A certain number of armoured trains with troops and ammunition have passed along the Railway from Wasserbillig to Luxemburg, where they are expected at any moment. These incidents constitute acts plainly contrary to the neutrality of the Grand Duchy, guaranteed by the Treaty of London of 1867. The Luxemburg Government have not failed to protest vigorously to the German Representative at Luxemburg against this act of aggression. An identic protest will be telegraphed to the German Secretary of State at Berlin.

No. 20

Note presented by Herr von Below Saleske, German Minister at Brussels, to Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Kaiserlich Deutsche Gesandtschaft in Belgien.—

Brüssel, den 2. August 1914.

(Très Confidentiel)

DER Kaiserlichen Regierung liegen zuverlässige Nachrichten vor über den beabsichtigten Aufmarsch französischer Streitkräfte an der Mass-Strecke Givet-Namur. Sie lassen keinen Sweifel über die Absicht Frankreichs, durch belgisches Gebiet gegen Deutschland vorzugehen.

Die Kaiserliche Regierung kann sich der Besorgniss nicht erwehren, dass Belgien, trotz besten Willens, nicht im Stande sein wird, ohne Hülfe einen französischen Vormarsch mit so grosser Aussicht auf Erfolg abzuwehren, dass darin eine ausreichende Sicherheit gegen die Bedrohung Deutschlands gefunden werden kann. Es ist ein Gebot der Selbsterhaltung für Deutschland, dem feidlichen Angriff zuvorzukommen. Mit pem grössten Bedauern würde es daher die deutsche Regierung erfullen, wenn Belgien einen Akt der Feindseligkeit gegen sich darin erblicken würde, dass die Massnahmen seiner Gegner Deutschland zwingen, zur Gegenwehr auch seinerseits belgisches Gebiet zu betreten.

Um jede Missdeutung auszuschliessen, erklärt die Kaiserliche Regierung das Folgende:

1. Deutschland beabsichtigt keinerlei Feindseligkeiten gegen Belgien. Ist Belgien gewillt, in dem bevorstehenden Kriege, Deutschland gegenüber eine wohlwollende Neutralität einzunehmen, so verpflichtet sich die deutsche Regierung, beim Friedensschluss Besitzstand und Unabhängigkeit des Königreichs in vollem Umfang zu garantieren.

2. Deutschland verpflichtet sich unter obiger Voraussetzung, das Gebiet des Königreichs wieder zu räumen, sobald der Friede geschlossen ist.

3. Bei einer freundschaftlicher Haltung Belgiens ist Deutschland bereit, im Einvernehmen mit den Königlich Belgischen Behörden alle Bedürfnisse seiner Truppen gegen Barzahlung anzukaufen und jeden Schaden zu ersetzen, der etwa durch deutsche Truppen verursacht worden könnte.

4. Sollte Belgien den deutschen Truppen feindlich entgegen treten, insbesondere ihrem vorgehen durch Widerstand der Mass-Befestigungen oder durch Zerstörungen von Eisenbahnen, Strassen, Tunneln oder sonstigen Kunstbauten Schwierigkeiten bereiten, so wird Deutschland zu seinem Bedauern gezwungen sein, das Königreich als Feind zu betrachten. In diesem Falle würde Deutschland dem Königreich gegenüber keine Verpflichtungen übernehmen können, sondern musste die spätere Regelung des Verhaltnisses beider Staaten zu einander der Entscheidung der Waffen überlassen.

Imperial German Legation in Belgium.—Brussels, August 2, 1914.

(Très Confidentielle.)

LE Gouvernement allemand a reçu des nouvelles sûres d'après lesquelles les forces françaises auraient l'intention de marcher sur la Meuse par Givet et Namur. Ces nouvelles ne laissent aucun doute sur l'intention de la France de marcher sur l'Allemagne par le territoire belge.

Le Gouvernement Impérial allemand ne peut s'empêcher de craindre que la Belgique, malgré sa meilleure volonté, ne sera pas en mesure de repousser sans secours une marche française d'un si grand développement. Dans ce fait on trouve une certitude suffisante d'une menace dirigée contre l'Allemagne C'est un devoir impérieux de conservation pour l'Allemagne de prévenir cette attaque de l'ennemi. Le Gouvernement allemand regretterait très vivement que la Belgique regardât comme un acte d'hostilité contre elle le fait que les mesures des ennemis de l'Allemagne l'obligent de violer de son côté le territoire belge.

Afin de dissiper tout malentendu le Gouvernement allemand déclare ce qui suit :

1. L'Allemagne n'a en vue aucun acte d'hostilité contre la Belgique. Si la Belgique consent dans la guerre que va commencer à prendre une attitude de neutralité amicale vis-à-vis de l'Allemagne, le Gouvernement allemand de son côté s'engage, au moment de la paix, à garantir le Royaume et ses possessions dans toute leur étendue.

2. L'Allemagne s'engage sous la condition énoncée à évacuer le territoire belge aussitôt la paix conclue.

3. Si la Belgique observe une attitude amicale, l'Allemagne est prête, d'accord avec les autorités du Gouvernement belge, à acheter contre argent comptant tout ce que est nécessaire à ses troupes et à indemniser pour les dommages causés en Belgique.

4. Si la Belgique se comporte d'une façon hostile contre les troupes allemandes

(Very Confidential.)

RELIABLE information has been received by the German Government to the effect that French forces intend to march on the line of the Meuse by Givet and Namur. This information leaves no doubt as to the intention of France to march through Belgian territory against Germany.

The German Government cannot but fear that Belgium, in spite of the utmost goodwill, will be unable, without assistance, to repel so considerable a French invasion with sufficient prospect of success to afford an adequate guarantee against danger to Germany. It is essential for the self-defence of Germany that she should anticipate any such hostile attack. The German Government would, however, feel the deepest regret if Belgium regarded as an act of hostility against herself the fact that the measures of Germany's opponents force Germany, for her own protection, to enter Belgian territory.

In order to exclude any possibility of misunderstanding, the German Government make the following declaration :—

1. Germany has in view no act of hostility against Belgium. In the event of Belgium being prepared in the coming war to maintain an attitude of friendly neutrality towards Germany, the German Government bind themselves, at the conclusion of peace, to guarantee the possessions and independence of the Belgian Kingdom in full.

2. Germany undertakes, under the abovementioned condition, to evacuate Belgian territory on the conclusion of peace.

3. If Belgium adopts a friendly attitude, Germany is prepared, in co-operation with the Belgian authorities, to purchase all necessaries for her troops against a cash payment, and to pay any indemnity for any damage that may have been caused by German troops.

4. Should Belgium oppose the German troops, and in particular should et particulièrement fait des difficultés à leur marche en avant par une opposition des fortifications de la Meuse ou par des destructions de routes, chemins de fer, tunnels ou autres ouvrages d'art, l'Allemagne sera obligée de considérer la Belgique en ennemie.

Dans ce cas l'Allemagne ne prendra aucun engagement vis-à-vis du Royaume, mais elle laissera le réglement ultérieur des rapports des deux États l'un vis-à-vis de l'autre à la décision des armes.

Le Gouvernement allemand a l'espoir justifié que cette éventualité ne se produira pas et que le Gouvernement belge saura prendre les mesures appropriées pour l'empêcher de se produire. Dans ce cas les relations d'amitié qui unissent les deux États voisins deviendront plus étroites et durables.

she throw difficulties in the way of their march by a resistance of the fortresses on the Meuse, or by destroying railways, roads, tunnels or other similar works, Germany will, to her regret, be compelled to consider Belgium as an enemy.

In this event Germany can undertake no obligations towards Belgium, but the eventual adjustment of the relations between the two States must be left to the decision of arms.

The German Government, however, entertain the distinct hope that this eventuality will not occur, and that the Belgian Government will know how to take the necessary measures to prevent the occurrence of incidents such as those mentioned. In this case the friendly ties which bind the two neighbouring States will grow stronger and more enduring.

A 1 heure et demie de la nuit, le Ministre d'Allemagne a demandé à voir le Baron van der Elst. Il lui a dit qu'il était chargé par son Gouvernement de nous informer que des dirigeables français avaient jeté des bombes et qu'une patrouille de cavalerie française, violant le droit des gens, attendu que la guerre n'était pas déclarée avait traversé la frontière.

Le Secrétaire Général a demandé à Monsieur de Below ou ces faits s'étaient passés; en Allemagne, lui fut-il répondu. Le Baron van der Elst fit remarquer que dans ce cas il ne pouvait s'expliquer le but de sa communication. Monsieur de Below dit que ces actes, contraires au droit des gens, étaient de nature à faire supposer d'autres actes contre le droit des gens que poserait la France.

AT 1-30 A.M. the German Minister asked to see Baron van der Elst. He told him that he had been instructed by his Government to inform the Belgian Government that French dirigibles had thrown bombs, and that a French cavalry patrol had crossed the frontier in violation of international law, seeing that war had not been declared.

The Secretary-General asked Herr von Below where these incidents had happened, and was told that it was in Germany. Baron van der Elst then observed that in that case he could not understand the object of this communication. Herr von Below stated that these acts, which were contrary to international law, were calculated to lead to the supposition that other acts, contrary to international law, would be committed by France.

Note communicated by Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to Herr von Below Saleske, German Minister.

Brussels, August 3, 1914 (7 A.M.).

(Translation.)

PAR sa note due 2 août 1914, le Gouvernement allemand a fait connaître que d'après des nouvelles sûres les forces

THE German Government stated in their note of the 2nd August, 1914, that according to reliable information French françaises auraient l'intention de marcher sur la Meuse par Givet et Namur, et que la Belgique, malgré as meilleure volonté ne serait pas en état de repousser sans secours une marche en avant des troupes françaises.

forces intended to march on the Meuse viâ Givet and Namur, and that Belgium, in spite of the best intentions, would not be in a position to repulse, without assistance, an advance of French troops.

Le Gouvernement allemand s'estimerait dans l'obligation de prévenir cette attaque et de violer le territoire belge. Dans ces conditions, l'Allemagne propose au Gouvernement du Roi de prendre vis-à-vis d'elle une attitude amicale et s'engage au moment de la paix à garantir l'intégrité du Royaume et de ses possessions dans toute leur étendue. La note ajoute que si la Belgique fait des difficultés à la marche en avant des troupes allemandes, l'Allemagne sera obligée de la considérer comme ennemie et de laisser le reglement ultérieur des deux États l'un vis-à-vis de l'autre à la décision des armes.

The German Government, therefore, considered themselves compelled to anticipate this attack and to violate Belgian territory. In these circumstances, Germany proposed to the Belgian Government to adopt a friendly attitude towards her, and undertook, on the conclusion of peace, to guarantee the integrity of the Kingdom and its possessions to their full extent. The note added that if Belgium put difficulties in the way of the advance of German troops, Germany would be compelled to consider her as an enemy, and to leave the ultimate adjustment of the relations between the two States to the decision of arms.

Cette note a provoqué chez le Gouvernement du Roi un profond et douloureux étonnement.

This note has made a deep and painful impression upon the Belgian Government.

Les intentions qu'elle attribue à la France sont en contradiction avec les déclarations fermelles qui nous ont été faites le 1er août, au nom du Gouvernement de la République.

The intentions attributed to France by Germany are in contradiction to the formal declarations made to us on August 1, in the name of the French Government.

D'ailleurs si contrairement à notre attente une violation de la neutralité belge venait à être commise par la France la Belgique remplirait tous ses devoirs internationaux et son armée opposerait àl'envahisseur la plus vigoureuse résistance.

Moreover, if, contrary to our expectation, Belgian neutrality should be violated by France, Belgium intends to fulfil her international obligations and the Belgian army would offer the most vigorous resistance to the invader.

Les traités de 1839 confirmés par les traités de 1870 consacrent l'indépendance et la neutralité de la Belgique sous la garantie des Puissances et notamment du Gouvernement de Sa Majesté le Roi de Prusse.

The treaties of 1839, confirmed by the treaties of 1870, vouch for the independence and neutrality of Belgium under the guarantee of the Powers, and notably of the Government of His Majesty the King of Prussia.

La Belgique a toujours été fidèle à ses obligations internationales; elle a accompli ses devoirs dans un espirit de loyale impartialité: elle n'a négligé aucun effort pour maintenir ou faire respecter sa neutralité.

Belgium has always been faithful to her international obligations, she has carried out her duties in a spirit of loyal impartiality, and she has left nothing undone to maintain and enforce respect for her neutrality.

L'atteinte a son indépendance dont la menace le Gouvernement allemand constituerait une flagrante violation du droit des gens. Aucun intérêt stratégique ne justifie la violation du droit.

The attack upon her independence with which the German Government threaten her constitutes a flagrant violation of international law. No strategic interest justifies such a violation of law.

Le Gouvernement belge en acceptant les propositions qui lui sont notifiées sacrifierait l'honneur de la nation en même temps qu'il trahirait ses devoirs vis-à-vis be l'Europe.

The Belgian Government, if they were to accept the proposals submitted to them, would sacrifice the honour of the natio and betray their duty towards Europe.

Conscient du rôle que la Belgique joue depuis plus de 80 ans dans la civilisation du monde, il se refuse à croire que l'indépendance de la Belgique ne puisse être conservée qu'au prix de la violation de sa neutralité.

Si cet espoir était déçu le Gouvernement belge est fermement décidé à repousser par tous les moyens en son pouvoir toute atteinte à son droit.

Conscious of the part which Belgium has played for more than eighty years in the civilisation of the world, they refuse to believe that the independence of Belgium can only be preserved at the price of the violation of her neutrality.

If this hope is disappointed the Belgian Government are firmly resolved to repel, by all the means in their power, every attack upon their rights.

L'ALLEMAGNE a remis heirs soir 7 heures une note proposant la neutralité amicale comportant le passage libre par notre territoire, promettant le maintien de l'indépendance du Royaume et de ses possessions à conclusion de la paix, menaçant en cas de refus de traiter la Belgique comme ennemie, délai de la réponse fixé à douze heures. Nous avons répondu que l'atteinte à notre neutralité serait une violation flagrante du droit des gens. L'acceptation de la proposition allemande sacrifierait l'honneur de la nation. Consciente de son devoir, la Belgique est fermement décidée à repousser une agression par tous moyens.

AT 7 P.M. last night Germany presented a note proposing friendly neutrality. This entailed free passage through Belgian territory, while guaranteeing the maintenance of the independence of Belgium and of her possessions on the conclusion of peace, and threatened, in the event of refusal, to treat Belgium as an enemy. A time limit of twelve hours was allowed within which to reply.

Our answer has been that this infringement of our neutrality would be a flagrant violation of international law. To accept the German proposal would be to sacrifice the honour of the nation. Conscious of her duty, Belgium is firmly resolved to repel any attack by all the means in her power.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to the Belgian Ministers at Paris, Berlin, London, Vienna, and St. Petersburg.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Comme vous le savez, l'Allemagne a remis à la Belgique ultimatum expirant ce matin 3 août, à 7 heures. Aucun fait de guerre ne s'étant encore produit à l'heure actuelle, le Conseil des Ministres a decidé qu'il n'y avait pas lieu, pour le moment, de faire appeal aux Puissances garantes.

Sir,

As you are aware, Germany has delivered to Belgium an ultimatum which expires this morning, 3rd August, at 7 A.M. As no act of war has occurred up to the present, the Cabinet has decided that there is, for the moment, no need to appeal to the guaranteeing Powers.

Le Ministre de France m'a dit à ce sujet :

"Sans être chargé d'une déclaration de mon Gouvernement, je crois cependant, m'inspirant de ces intentions connues, pouvoir dire que si le Gouvernement Royal faisait appel au Gouvernement français, commep Puissance garante de sa neutralité, nous répondrions immédiatement, à son appel ; si cet appel n'était pas formulé, il est probable, à moins bien entendu que le souci de sa propre défense ne détermine des mesures exceptionnelles, qu'il attendra pour intervenir que la Belgique ait fait un acte de résistance effective."

J'ai remercié Monsieur Klobukowski de l'appui que le Gouvernement français voulait bien nous offrir éventuellement et lui ai dit que le Gouvernement du Roi ne faisait pas appel, pour l'instant, à la garantie des Puissances et se réservait d'apprécier ultérieurement ce qu'il y aura lieu de faire.

(Signé) DAVIGNON.

The French Minister has made the following statement to me upon the subject :—

"Although I have received no instructions to make a declaration from my Government, I feel justified, in view of their well-known intentions, in saying that if the Belgian Government were to appeal to the French Government as one of the Powers guaranteeing their neutrality, the French Government would at once respond to Belgium's appeal ; if such an appeal were not made it is probable, that—unless of course exceptional measures were rendered necessary in self-defence—the French Government would not intervene until Belgium had taken some effective measure of resistance."

I thanked Monsieur Klobukowski for the support which the French Government had been good enough to offer us in case of need, and I informed him that the Belgian Government were making no appeal at present to the guarantee of the Powers, and that they would decide later what ought to be done.

JE suis chargé d'informer le Gouvernement belge que si l'Allemagne exerce une pression dans le but d'obliger la Belgique à abandonner son rôle de pays neutre, la Gouvernement de Sa Majesté britannique s'attend à ce que la Belgique résiste par tous les moyens possibles.

Le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté britannique, dans ce cas, est prêt à se joindre à la Russie et à la France, si la Belgique le désire, pour offrir au Gouvernement belge sans délai une action commune, qui aurait comme but de résister aux mesures de force employées par l'Allemagne contre la Belgique et en même temps d'offrir une garantie pour maintenir l'indépendance et l'intégrité de la Belgique dans l'avenir.

I AM instructed to inform the Belgian Government that if Germany brings pressure to bear upon Belgium with the object of forcing her to abandon her attitude of neutrality, His Britannic Majesty's Government expect Belgium to resist with all the means at her disposal.

In that event, His Britannic Majesty's Government are prepared to join Russia and France, should Belgium so desire, in tendering at once joint assistance to the Belgian Government with a view to resisting any forcible measures adopted by Germany against Belgium, and also offering a guarantee for the maintenance of the future independence and integrity of Belgium.

Sir,

The Minister for Foreign Affairs told me yesterday evening that the Netherla Reine serait peut-être obligé, dans les circonstances graves actuelles, d'instituer sur l'Escaut le balisage de guerre.

Le Jhr. Loudon m'a lu un projet de note qui allait m'annoncer cette décision.

J'ai l'honneur de vous transmettre, sous ce pli, une copie de la note en question qui m'a été remise dans la soirée d'hier.

Comme vous le verrez, l'Escaut ne sera fermé que pendant la nuit. Pendant le jour, la navigation sera possible mais seulement avec des pilotes néerlandais qui ont été munis des indications nautiques nécessaires à ce sujet. De cette façon les intérêts de la défense du territoire néerlandais et ceux de la navigation belge d'Anvers sont sauvegardés.

Vous remarquerez qu'ensuite le Gouvernement des Pays-Bas nous demande qu'en cas où le balisage de guerre serait institué, nous fassions retirer les bateaux-phare "Wielingen" et "Wandelaar" en vue de faciliter le maintien de la neutralité due territoire des Pays-Bas.

Je vous ferai remarquer que le terme employé dans cette note "remonter l'Escaut" n'est pas assez explicite; descendre le fleuve sera permis dans les mêmes conditions. Le Ministre vient de m'en donner l'assurance.

Aussitôt que le Gouvernement néerlandais aura décidé cette mesure d'exception j'en serai informé.

Il faut environ six heures pour effectuer ce balisage de guerre.

Je vous télégraphierai aussitôt.

lands Government would perhaps be obliged, owing to the gravity of the present situation, to institute war buoying on the Scheldt.

M. Loudon read me the draft of the note which would announce this decision to me.

I have the honour to transmit to you herewith a copy of the note in question which was communicated to me yesterday evening.

As you will observe, the Scheldt will only be closed at night. By day navigation will be possible, but only with Dutch pilots who have been furnished with the necessary nautical instructions. In this way both Dutch interests in the defence of their territory, and Belgian interests in the navigation of Antwerp will be safeguarded.

You will note that the Netherlands Government further ask that in the event of the war buoying being carried out, we should cause the lightships "Wielingen" and "Wandelaar" to be withdrawn in order to facilitate the maintenance of the neutrality of Dutch territory.

I would point out that the phrase used in this note, "sailing up the Scheldt" is not sufficiently explicit; sailing down would be permitted under the same conditions. The Minister has, however, given me this assurance.

As soon as the Netherlands Government have decided upon this exceptional measure I shall be informed of it.

About six hours are necessary to carry out war buoying.

I will at once telegraph to you.

Note enclosed in No. 29.

LE Gouvernement de la Reine pourrait se voir obligé dans l'intérêt du maintien de la neutralité du territoire des Pays-Bas d'instituer sur l'Escaut le balisage de guerre, c'est-à-dire d'enlever ou de modifier une partie du balisage actuel et des phares.

The Netherlands Government may be compelled, in order to maintain the neutrality of Dutch territory, to institute war buoying upon the Scheldt that is to say, to move or modify a portion of the actual arrangement of buoys and lights.

sujet. En agissant de la sorte, le Gouvernement de la Reine est convaincu de pouvoir tenir compte également des intérêts de la défense du territoire néerlandais et de ceux de la navigation belge d'Anvers.

Après l'institution du balisage de guerre sur l'Escaut, il n'y aurait plus de raison d'entrer dans la passe de mer de Flessingue pendant la nuit et comme la présence des bateaux-phare "Wielingen" et "Wandelaar" n'est pas indispensable pour la navigation pendant le jour, le Gouvernement néerlandais mettrait un haut prix à ce que le Gouvernement Royal belge voulût bien, au cas où le balisage de guerre serait institué par lui, faire retirer lesdits bateaux en vue de faciliter le maintien de la neutralité du territoire des Pays-Bas.

instructions. In thus acting the Netherlands Government are convinced that they will be able to serve equally both the Dutch interests in the defence of Netherlands territory and Belgian interests in the navigation of Antwerp.

After the establishment of war buoying on the Scheldt, there would be no further reason to enter the tidal water of Flushing at night, and as the presence of the lightships "Wielingen" and "Wandelaar" is not indispensable to navigation by day, the Netherlands Government would be much obliged if the Belgian Government would be good enough, in the event of the establishment of war buoying, to withdraw these boats in order to facilitate the maintenance of the neutrality of Dutch territory.

discours prononcé aujourd'hui à la tribune du Reichstag par le Chancelier de l'Empire et relative à l'odieuse violation de notre neutralité :

"Nous nous trouvons en état de légitime défense et la nécessité ne connaît pas de lois.

"Nos troupes ont occupé Luxembourg et ont, peut-être, déjà pénétré en Belgique. Cela est en contradiction avec les prescriptions du droit des gens. La France a, il est vrai, déclaré à Bruxelles qu'elle était résolu à respecter la neutralité de la Belgique, aussi longtemps que l'adversaire la respecterait. Mais nous savions que la France se tenait prête pour envahir la Belgique. La France pouvait attendre. Nous pas. Une attaque française sur notre flanc dans la région du Rhin inférieur aurait pu devenir fatale. C'est ainsi que nous avons été forcés de passer outre aux protestations justifiées des Gouvernements luxembourgeois et belge. L'injustice que nous commettons de cette façon, nous la réparerons dès que notre but militaire sera atteint.

"A celui qui est menacé au point où nous le sommes et qui lutte pour son bien suprême, il n'est permis que de songer au moyen de se dégager ; nous nous trouvons côte à côte avec l'Autriche."

Il est à remarquer que Monsieur de Bethmann-Hollweg reconnaît, sans le moindre détour, que l'Allemagne viole le droit international en envahissant le territoire belge et qu'elle commet une injustice à notre égard.

speech made to-day in the Reichstag by the Imperial Chancellor on the subject of the infamous violation of Belgian neutrality :—

"We are in a state of legitimate defence, and necessity knows no law.

"Our troops have occupied Luxemburg and have perhaps already entered Belgium. This is contrary to the dictates of international law. France has, it is true, declared at Brussels that she was prepared to respect the neutrality of Belgium so long as it was respected by her adversary. But we knew that France was ready to invade Belgium. France could wait; we could not. A French attack upon our flank in the region of the Lower Rhine might have been fatal. We were, therefore, compelled to ride roughshod over the legitimate protests of the Governments of Luxemburg and Belgium. For the wrong which we are thus doing, we will make reparation as soon as our military object is attained.

"Anyone in such grave danger as ourselves, and who is struggling for his supreme welfare can only be concerned with the means of extricating himself; we stand side by side with Austria."

It is noteworthy that Herr von Bethmann Hollweg recognises, without the slightest disguise, that Germany is violating international law by her invasion of Belgian territory and that she is committing a wrong against us.

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that in the House of Commons this afternoon the Prime Minister made a fresh statement with regard to the European crisis.

After recalling the principal points set forth yesterday by Sir E. Grey, the Prime Minister read :—

1. A telegram received from Sir F. Villiers this morning, which gave the subteneur du second ultimatum adressé par le Gouvernement allemand au Gouvernement belge et qui vous a été remis ce matin (voir No. 27);

2° du télégramme par lequel vous m'annoncez la violation de la frontière à Gemmenich, dont j'ai remis copie à Sir A Nicolson;

3° d'un télégramme adressé ce matin par le Gouvernement allemand à son Ambassadeur à Londres dans le but évident d'égarer l'opinion publique sur son attitude. En voici la traduction d'aprés un journal de ce soir:

"Veuillez dissiper toute méfiance que le Gouvernement britannique pourrait avoir au sujet de nos intentions, en répétant, de la manière la plus positive, l'assurance formelle que même en cas de conflit armé avec la Belgique, l'Allemagne n'annexera sous aucun prétexte le territoire belge.

"La sincérité de cette déclaration est corroborée par le fait que l'Allemagne a solennellement donné sa parole à la Hollande de son intention de respecter sa neutralité.

"Il set évident que nous ne pourrions nous annexer le territoire belge d'une manière avantageuse sans faire, en même temps, une acquisition territoriale au détriment de la Hollande.

"Prière de faire bien comprendre à Sir E. Grey qu'il était impossible d'exposer l'armée allemande à une attaque française portée en traversant la Belgique, attaque qui, d'après des informations absolument incontestables, était projetée.

"En conséquence l'Allemagne n'a pas tenu compte de la neutralité belge afin d'éviter ce qui est pour elle une question de vie ou de mort, une attaque française par la Belgique."

Mr. Asquith a ensuite exposé à la Chambre qu'en réponse à cette note du Gouvernement allemand le Gouvernement britannique lui avait renouvelé sa proposition de la semaine dernière, à savoir de donner au sujet de la neutralité belge les mêmes assurances que la France en avait données la semaine dernière, tant à l'Angleterre qu'à la Belgique. Le Cabinet anglais accordait à celui de Berlin jusqu'à minuit pour lui faire connaître sa réponse.

stance of the second ultimatum presented to the Belgian Government by the German Government, which had been sent to you this morning (see No. 27).

2. Your telegram informing me of the violation of the frontier at Gemmenich, a copy of which I have given to Sir A. Nicolson.

3. A telegram which the German Government addressed to its Ambassador in London this morning with the evident intention of misleading popular opinion as to its attitude. Here is the translation as published in one of this evening's newspapers:—

"Please dispel any mistrust which may subsist on the part of the British Government with regard to our intentions, by repeating most positively the formal assurance that, even in the case of armed conflict with Belgium, Germany will under no pretence whatever annex Belgian territory.

"Sincerity of this declaration is borne out by fact that we solemnly pledged our word to Holland strictly to respect her neutrality.

"It is obvious that we could not profitably annex Belgian territory without making at the time territorial acquisitions at the expense of Holland.

"Please impress upon Sir E. Grey that German Army could not be exposed to French attack across Belgium, which was planned according to absolutely unimpeachable information.

"Germany had consequently to disregard Belgian neutrality, it being for her a question of life or death to prevent French advance."

Mr. Asquith then informed the House that in answer to this note of the German Government the British Government had repeated their proposal of last week, namely, that the German Government should give the same assurance as to Belgian neutrality as France had given last week both to England and to Belgium. The British Cabinet allowed the Berlin Cabinet till midnight to reply.

Monsieur le Ministre,

J'AI l'honneur de porter à votre connaissance l'ordre de faits successifs qui ont marqué pendant les derniers jours les relations de la Belgique avec certaines des Puissances garantes de sa neutralité et de son indépendance.

Le 31 juillet le Ministre d'Angleterre me fit une communication verbale aux termes de laquelle, en prévision d'une guerre européenne, Sir E. Grey avait demandé aux Gouvernements allemand et franCais, séparément si chacun deux était resolu à respecter la neutralité de la Belgique dans l'éventualité ou cette neutralité ne serait pas violée par aucune autre Puissance.

En raison des traités existants, Sir Francis Villiers était chargé de porter cette démarche à la connaissance du Gouvernement du Roi en ajoutant que Sir E.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to inform you of the course of recent events as regards the relations of Belgium with certain of the Powers which guarantee her neutrality and independence.

On the 31st July the British Minister made me a verbal communication according to which Sir E. Grey, in anticipation of a European war, had asked the German and French Governments separately if each of them were resolved to respect the neutrality of Belgium should that neutrality not be violated by any other Power.

In view of existing treaties, Sir F. Villiers was instructed to bring this step to the knowledge of the Belgian Government, adding that Sir E. Grey presumed that Belgium was resolved to maintain her neutrality, and that she expected other Powers to respect it.

J'ai dit à Monsieur le Ministre d'Angleterre que nous appréciions hautement cette communication, qui répondait à notre attente, et j'ai ajouté que la Grande-Bretagne ainsi que les autres Puissances grantes de notre indépendance pourraient être pleinement assurées de notre ferme volonté de maintenir notre neutralité; celleci ne nous paraissant d'aillurs pas pouvoir être menacée par aucun de ces États avec lesquels nous entretenons les rapports les plus cordiaux et les plus confiants Le Gouvernement, ai-je fait remarquer, avait donné une preuve de cette résolution eu prenant dès à présent toutes les mesures militaires que la situation lui paraissait comporter.

I told the British Minister that we highly appreciated this communication, which was in accordance with our expectation, and I added that Great Britain, as well as the other Powers who had guaranteed our independence, might rest fully assured of our firm determination to maintain our neutrality; nor did it seem possible that our neutrality could be threatened by any of those States, with whom we enjoyed the most cordial and frank relations. The Belgian Government, I added, had given proof of this resolution by taking from now on all such military measures as seemed to them to be necessitated by the situation.

A son tour, Monsieur le Ministre de France se déclara le 1er août, dans une conversation verbale, autorisé à faire connaître au Gouvernement belge, qu'en cas de conflit international, le Gouvernement de la République, conformément à ses déclarations constantes, respecterait le torritoire de la Belgique et qu'il ne serait améne à modifier son attitude que dans le cas de violation de la neutralité belge par une autre Puissance.

In his turn the French Minister made a verbal communication on August 1st to the effect that he was authorised to inform the Belgian Government that in case of an international war the French Government in conformity with their repeated declarations, would respect Belgian territory, and that they would not be induced to modify their attitude except in the event of the violation of Belgian neutrality by another Power.

Je remerciai son Excellence et ajoutai que nous avions déjà pris toutes les dispositions requises pour assurer le respect de notre indépendence et de nos frontières.

I thanked his Excellency, and added that we had already taken all the necessary precautions to ensure respect of our independence and our frontiers.

Le 2 août, dans la matinée, j'eous avec Sir Francis Villiers un nouvel entretien au cours dequel il me fit part de ce qu'il avait transmis télégraphiquement samedi, dès la première heure, à son Gouvernement notre conversation du 31 juillet en ayant soin de reproduire fidèlement la déclaration solennelle qu'il avait recueillie de la volonté de la Belgique de défendre ses frontières, de quelque côté qu'elles soient envahies. Il ajouta: "Nous savons que la France vous a donné des assurances formelles; mais l'Angleterre n'a reçu à ce sujet aucune réponse de Berlin."

On the morning of August 2nd I had a fresh conversation with Sir F. Villiers, in the course of which he told me that he had lost no time in telegraphing our conversation of July 31st to his Government, and that he had been careful to quote accurately the solemn declaration which he had received of Belgium's intention to defend her frontiers from whichever side they might be invaded. He added: "We know that France has given you formal assurances, but Great Britain has received no reply from Berlin on this subject."

Ce dernier fait ne provoqua en moi aucune émotion particulière, parce que la déclaration du Gouvernement allemand pouvait paraître surabondante en présence des traités existants. D'ailleurs le Secrétaire d'Etat aux Affaires Étrangères avait affirmé à la séance de la Commission du Reichstag du 29 avril 1913 "que la neu-

The latter fact did not particularly affect me, since a declaration from the German Government might appear superfluous in view of existing treaties. Moreover, the Secretary of State had reaffirmed, at the meeting of the committee of the Reichstag of April 29th, 1913, "that the neutrality of Belgium is traelité de la Belgique est établi conventionnellement et que l'Allemagne a l'intention de respecter ce traité."

established by treaty which Germany intends to respect."

Le même jour, Monsieur de Below Saleske, Ministre d'Allemagne, se présenta au Ministère des Affaires Étrangères à 19 heures et me remit la note ci-jointe (voir pièce No. 20). Le Gouvernement allemand accordait au Gouvernement belge un délai de douze heures pour lui faire connaître sa décision.

The same day Herr von Below Saleske, the German Minister, called at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs at 7 o'clock, and handed to me the enclosed note (see No. 20). The German Government gave the Belgian Government a time limit of twelve hours within which to communicate their decision.

Aucune hésitation ne pouvait se manifester au sujet de la réponsequ'appelaite la proposition surprenante du Gouvernement allemand. Vous en trouverez une copie sous ce pli. (Voir pièce No. 22)

No hesitation was possible as to the reply called for by the amazing proposal of the German Government. You will find a copy enclosed. (See No. 22.)

L'ultimatum expirait le 3 août, à 7 heures du matin: comme à 10 heures aucun fait de guerre ne s'était produit, le Conseil des Ministres décida qu'il n'y avait pas lieu, pour le moment, de faire appel aux Puissances garantes.

The ultimatum expired at 7 A.M. on August 3rd. As at 10 o'clock no act of war had been committed, the Belgian Cabinet decided that there was no reason for the moment to appeal to the guaranteeing Powers.

Vers midi, le Ministre de France m'interrogea sur ce point et me dit.

Towards mid-day the French Minister questioned me upon this point, and said:—

"Bien qu'en raison de la soudaineté des événements je ne sois encore chargé d'aucune déclaration, je crois cependant, m'inspirant des intentions biens connues de mon Gouvernement, pouvoir dire que si le Gouvernement Royal faisait appel au Gouvernement français comme Puissance garante de sa neutralité, il repondrait immédiatement à son appel. Si cet appel n'était pas formulé il est probable, à moins bien entendu que le souci de sa propre défense ne détermine des mesures exceptionnelles qu'il attendrait, pour intervenir, que la Belgique ait fait un acte de résistance effective.

"Although in view of the rapid march of events I have as yet received no instructions to make a declaration from my Government, I feel justified, in view of their well-known intentions, in saying that if the Belgian Government were to appeal to the French Government as one of the Powers guaranteeing their neutrality, the French Government would at once respond to Belgian's appeal; if such an appeal were not made it is probable that—unless, of course, exceptional measures were rendered necessary in self-defence—the French Government would not intervene until Belgium had taken some effective measure of resistance."

J'ai remercié Monsieur Klobukowski de l'appui que le Gouvernement français voulait bien nous offrir éventuellement et lui ai dit que le Gouvernement du Roi ne faisait pas appel, pour l'instant, à la garantie des Puissances et se réservait d'apprécier ultérieurement ce qu'il y aura lieu de faire.

I thanked Monsieur Klobukowski for the support which the French Government had been good enough to offer us in case of need, and I informed him that the Belgian Government were making no appeal at present to the guarantee of the Powers, and that they would decide later what ought to be done.

Enfin, le 4 août, à 6 heures du matin, le Ministre d'Allemagne me fit la communication suivante. (Voir pièce No. 27.)

Finally, at 6 A.M. on August 4th, the German Minister made the following communication to me. (See No. 27.)

Le Conseil des Ministres délibère en ce moment au sujet de l'appel aux Puissances garantes de notre neutralité.

The Cabinet is at the present moment deliberating on the question of an appeal to the Powers guaranteeing our neutrality.

L'ANGLETERRE a sommé ce matin l'Allemagne de respecter la neutralité belge. L'ultimatum dit que vu la note adressée par l'Allemagne à la Belgique menaçant cette dernière de la force des armes si elle s'oppose au passage de ses troupes, vu la violation du territoire belge à Gemmenich, vu le fait que l'Allemagne a refusé de donner à l'Angleterre la même assurance que celle donnée la semaine dernière par la France, l'Angleterre doit demander à nouveau une réponse satisfaisante au sujet du respect de la neutralité belge et d'un traité dont l'Allemagne est signataire aussi bien qu'elle-même. L'ultimatum expire à minuit.

En conséquence de l'ultimatum de l'Angleterre à l'Allemagne, la proposition anglaise que je vous ai transmise par télégramme est annulée pour le moment.

GREAT BRITAIN this morning called upon Germany to respect Belgian neutrality. The ultimatum says that whereas the note addressed by Germany to Belgium threatens the latter with an appeal to the force of arms if she opposes the passage of German troops: and whereas Belgian territory has been violated at Gemmenich; and whereas Germany has refused to give Great Britain a similar assurance to that given last week by France; therefore Great Britain must once again demand a satisfactory reply on the subject of the respect of Belgian neutrality and of the treaty to which Germany, no less than Great Britain, is a signatory. The ultimatum expires at midnight.

In consequence of the British ultimatum to Germany, the British proposal which I telegraphed to you is cancelled for the time being.

Sir,

IN my despatch of August 4 (see No. 38) I had the honour to inform you of the sequence of events which had attended the international relations of Belgium from gique du 31 juillet au 4 août. J'ajoutais que le Conseil des Ministres examinait la question de savoir si la Belgique, dont le territoire avait été envahi depuis le matin, ferait appel à la garantie.

Le Conseil venait de se décider en faveur de l'affirmative, lorsque le Ministre d'Angleterre me fit savoir que la proposition dont il m'avait saisi et d'après laquelle le Gouvernement britannique était disposé à répondre à notre appel en garantie, était annulée pour le moment. (Voir pièce No. 37.)

Un télégramme de Londres m'apprit que ce changement d'attitude était motivé par un ultimatum de l'Angleterre laissant à l'Allemagne un délai de dix heures pour évacuer le sol belge et respecter la neutralité de la Belgique. (Voir pièce No. 39.) Dans la soirée le Gouvernement du Roi a adressé, par l'intermédiaire de leurs représentants respectifs à Bruxelles, à la France, à la Grande-Bretagne et a la Russie, la note dont vous trouverez la copie ci-joint. (Voir pièce No. 40.)

Comme vous le remarquerez, la Belgique fait appel à l'Angleterre, à la France et a la Russie pour coopérer comme garantes à la défense de son territoire et au maintien dans l'avenir de l'independance et de l'intégrité du territoire. Elle assurera la défense des places fortes.

July 31st to August 4th. I added that the Cabinet was considering the question whether Belgium, whose territory had been invaded since the morning, should appeal to the guarantee of the Powers.

The Cabinet had decided in the affirmative when the British Minister informed me that the proposal which he had communicated to me, and according to which the British Government were disposed to respond favourably to our appeal to her as a guaranteeing Power, was cancelled for the time being. (See No. 37.)

A telegram from London made it clear that this change of attitude was caused by an ultimatum from Great Britain giving Germany a time limit of ten hours within which to evacuate Belgian territory and to respect Belgian neutrality. (See No. 39.) During the evening, the Belgian Government addressed to France, Great Britain, and Russia, through their respective representatives at Brussels, a note, of which a copy is enclosed herewith. (See No. 40.)

As you will observe, Belgium appeals to Great Britain, France and Russia to co-operate as guaranteeing Powers in the defence of her territory and in the maintenance for the future of the independence and integrity of her territory. She will herself undertake the defence of her fortified places.

As yet we are not aware how our appeal has been received.

No. 44.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to the Belgian Heads of Missions in all Countries having Diplomatic Relations with Belgium.

Brussels, August 5, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

PAR le traité du 18 avril 1839, la Prusse, la France, l'Angleterre, l'Autriche et la Russie se sont déclarées grantes du traité conclu le meme jour entre Sa Majesté le Roi des Pays-Bas. Ce traité prote: "La Belgique formera un État indépendant et perpépuellement neutre." La Belgique a rempli toutes ses obligations internationales, elle a accompli ses devoirs dans un espirit de loyale impartialité, elle n'a négligé aucun effort pour maintenir et faire respecter sa neutralité.

Sir,

By the treaty of April 18th, 1839, Prussia, France, Great Britain, Austria, and Russia declared themselves guarantors of the treaty concluded on the same day between His Majesty the King of the Belgians and His Majesty the King of the Netherlands. The treaty runs: "Belgium shall form a State independent and perpetually neutral." Belgium has fulfilled all her international obligations, she has accomplished her duty in a spirit of loyal impartiality, she has neglected no effort to maintain her neutrality and to cause that neutrality to be respected.

Aussi est-ce avec une pénible émotion que le Gouvernement du Roi a appris que les forces armées de l'Allemagne, Puissance garante de notre neutralité, ont pénétré sur le territoire de la Belgique en violation des engagements qui ont été pris par traité.

Il est de notre devoir de protester avec indignation contre un attentat au droit des gens qu'aucun acte de notre part n'a pu provoquer.

Le Gouvernement du Roi est fermement décidé à repousser par tous les moyens en son pouvoir l'atteinte portée à sa neutralité et il rappelle qu'en vertu de l'article 10 de la Convention de La Haye de 1907, concernant les droits et les devoirs des Puissances et der personnes neutres en cas de guerre sur terre, ne peut être considéré comme un acte hostile le fait, par une Puissance neutre, de repousser, même par la force, les atteintes à sa neutralité.

Vous voudrez bien demander d'urgence une audience au Ministre des Affaires Étrangères et donner lecture à son Excellence de la présente lettre dont vous lui laisserez copie. Si l'audience ne pouvait vous être immédiatement accordée, vous ferez par écrit la communication dont il s'agit

Veuillez agréer, etc.

In these circumstances the Belgium Government have learnt with deep pain that the armed forces of Germany, a Power guaranteeing Belgian neutrality, have entered Belgian territory in violation of the obligations undertaken by treaty.

It is our duty to protest with indignation against an outrage against international law provoked by no act of ours.

The Belgian Government are firmly determined to repel by all the means in their power the attack thus made upon their neutrality, and they recall the fact that, in virtue of article 10 of The Hague Convention of 1907 respecting the rights and duties of neutral Powers and persons in the case of war by land, if a neutral Power repels, even by force, attacks on her neutrality, such action cannot be considered as a hostile act.

I have to request that you will ask at once for an audience with the Minister for Foreign Affairs and read this despatch to his Excellency, handing him a copy. If the interview cannot be granted at once you should make the communication in question in writing.

Sir,

I have the honour to enclose herewith a copy of the notification of a state of war between France and Germany, which has been communicated to me to-day.

Enclosure in No. 47.

Le Gouvernement Impérial allemand, après avoir laissé ses forces armées franchir la frontière et se livrer sur le territoire français à divers actes de meurtre et de violence; après avoir violé la neutralité du Grand-Duché de Luxembourg au mépris des stipulatons; de la Convention de Londres du 11 mai 1867 et de la Convention de La Haye du 19 octobre 1907, sur les droits et devoirs des Puissances et des personnes neutres en cas de guerre sur terre (articles 1er à 11), conventions signé es de lui; après avoir adressé un ultimatum au Gouvernement Royal de Belgique, tendant à exiger le passage des forces allemandes par le territoire belge, en violation des traités du 19 avril 1839 également signés par lui et de la susdite convention de La Haye;

A déclaré la guerre à la France le 3 août 1914, á 18 heures 45;

Le Gouvernement de la République se voit dans ces conditions obligé de son côté de recourir à la force des armes.

Il a en conséquence l'honneur de faire savoir par la présente au Gouvernement Royal que l'état de guerre existe entre la France et l'Allemagne à dater du 3 août, 18 heures 45.

Le Gouvernement de la République protest auprès de toutes les nations civilsées et spécialement auprès des Gouvernements signataires des conventions et traités susrappellés, contre la violation

WHEREAS the Imperial German Government have allowed their armed forces to cross the frontier and to indulge in divers acts of murder and violence on French territory; and whereas they have violated the neutrality of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, in contravention of the provisions of the Convention of London of May 11th, 1867, and of the Convention of The Hague of October 18th, 1907, respecting the rights and duties of neutral Powers and persons in the case of war on land (articles 1—11), to which conventions the German Government were signatories; and whereas they have addressed an ultimatum to the Belgian Government in order to secure the passage of the German forces through Belgian territory, thereby violating the treaties of April 19th, 1839, also signed by them, and of the abovementioned Hague Convention;

They have declared war against France on August 3rd, 1914, at 6-45 P.M.:

Therefore the French Government are themselves obliged in these circumstances to resort to arms.

The French Government therefore have the honour hereby to inform the Belgian Government that a state of war exists between France and Germany as from August 3rd, at 6-45 P.M.

The French Government protest to all civilised nations, and more particularly to the signatory Governments of the conventions and treaties alluded to above, against Germany's violation of parl'Empire allemand de ses engagements internationaux; il fait toutes réserves quant aux représailles qu'il pourrait sevoir amené a exercer contre un ennemi us siapeu soucieux de la parole donnée.

Le Gouvernement de la République, qui entend observer les principes du droit des gens, se conformera durant les hostilités et sous réserve de réciprocite aux dispositions des conventions internationales signées par la France concernant le droit de la guerre sur terre et sur mer.

La présente notification faite en conformité de l'article 2 de ladite IIe Convention de La Haye du 18 octobre 1907 relative à l'ouverture hes hostilités est remise à M. le Ministre de Belgique à Paris, le 5 août 1914, à 14 heures.

This notification, which is made in accordance with article 2 of the said Second Hague Convention of October 18th, 1907, respecting the opening of hostilities, is communicated to the Belgian Minister at Paris on August 5th, 1914, at 2 P.M.

VEUILLEZ communiquer au Gouvernement néerlandais la note suivante :

Le Gouvernement belge a pris note de l'établissement du balisage de guerre sur l'Escaut et de ce que le Gouvernement hollandais assurera le maintien de la navigation.

Il conviendrait que la navigation pût se faire à partir de 30 minutes avant le lever du soleil jusqu'à 30 minutes aprés son coucher et que l'échange des pilotes se fît à Bath.

Si désireux qu'il soit de consentir aux demandes du Gouvernement hollandais, le Gouvernement belge estime qu'i la lieu, à raison des ports du littoral, de maintenir les bateaux-phares de Wielingen et de Wandelaar, ainsi que les boúées du chenal de Wielingen.

(Signé) DAVIGNON.

(Telegram.)

PLEASE communicate the following note to the Netherlands Government :—

The Belgian Government have taken note of the establishment of war buoying on the Scheldt and of the fact that the Netherlands Government will ensure the maintenance of navigation.

It would be convenient that navigation should be possible from 30 minutes before sunrise to 30 minutes after sunset, and that the exchange of pilots should take place at Bath.

With every desire to fall in with the requests of the Netherlands Government, the Belgian Government think that it is desirable in the interests of the littoral ports to retain the lightships of Wielingen and of Wandelaar, and also the buoys of the Wielingen Channel.

Monsieur le Ministre,

COMME suite à mon télégramme de ce matin, j'ai l'honneur de vous prier de porter à la connaissance du Gouvernement français [anglais] l'information suivante:

Tout en prescrivant au Gouverneur Général du Congo de prendre des mesures

Sir,

WITH reference to my telegram of this morning, I have the honour to request you to bring to the notice of the French [British] Government the following information:—

While instructions have been sent to the Governor-General of the Congo to de défense sur les frontières commune de la colonie belge et des colonies allemandes de l'Est africain et du Kamerun, le Gouvernement du Roi a invité ce haut fonctionnaire a s'abstenir de toute action offensive contre ces colonies.

Vu la mission civilisatrice commune aux nations colonisatrices, le Gouvernement belge désire, en effet, par un souci d'humanité, ne pas étendre le champ des hostilités à l'Afrique centrale. Il ne prendra donc point l'initiative d'infliger une pareille épreuve à la civilisation dans cette région et les forces militaires qu'il y possède n'entreront en action que dans le cas où elles devraient repousser une attaque directe contre ses possessions africaines.

J'attacherais du prix à savoir sile Gouvernement de la République [deSa Majesté britannique] partage cette manière de voir et, le cas échéant, s'il entre dans ses intentions, á l'occasion du conflit actuel, de se prévaloir de la disposition de l'article 11 de l'Acte général de Berlin pour placer sous le régime de la neutralité celles de ses colonies qui sont comprises dans le bassin conventionnel du Congo.

J'adresse une communication identique à votre collègue à Londres [Paris].

Veuillez agréer, etc.

take defensive measures on the common frontiers of the Belgian colony and of the German colonies of East Africa and the Cameroons, the Belgian Government have suggested to that officer that he should abstain from all offensive action against those colonies.

In view of the civilising mission common to colonising nations, the Belgian Government desire, in effect, for humanitarian reasons, not to extend the field of hostilities to Central Africa. They will, therefore, not take the initiative of putting such a strain on civilisation in that region. and the military forces which they possess there will only go into action in the event of their having to repel a direct attack on their African possessions.

I should be glad to learn whether the French [British] Government share this view, and in that case whether it is their intention. during the present conflict, to avail themselves of article 11 of the General Act of Berlin to neutralise such of their colonies as are contained in the conventional basin of the Congo.

I am addressing an identic communication to your colleague at London [Paris].

Monsieur le Ministre,

J'ai eu l'honneur de parler au President de la République de votre télégramme d'hier, Je l'avais reçu dans la soirée et l'avais immédiatement communiqué au Ministére des Affaires Etrangères. On avait demandé à réfléchir avant de me répondre.

Monsieur Poincaré m'a promis de parler de cette question aujourd'hui and Ministre des Colonies A première vue, il ne verrait guère d'inconvénient à proclamer la neutralité du Conge français, mais il réserve cependant sa réponse. Il croit que des faits de guerre ont déjà éclaté dans l'Oubanghi. Il a profité de la circonstance pour me rappeler que la protection que nous accorde la France s'étend aussi à nos colonies et que nous n'avons rien à craindre.

Veuillez agréer, etc.

Sir,

I have had the honour of speaking to the President of the Republic with respect to your telegram of yesterday. I had received it during the evening and had immediately communicated it to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs. They asked for time to consider it before answering.

Monsieur Poincaré has promised me to speak on this subject to-day to the Minister of the Colonies. At first sight he could see little difficulty in proclaiming the neutrality of the French Congo, but he nevertheless reserves his reply. He believes that acts of war have already taken place in the Ubangi. He has taken the opportunity to remind me that the protection accorded us by France extends also to our colonies and that we have nothing to fear.

LE Ministre des Affaires Étrangères m'a prié de vous transmettre les informations suivantes, parce que le Ministre d' Amerique à Bruxelles s'y refuse :

La forteresse de Liége a été prise d'assaut après une défense courageuse. Le Gouvernement allemand regrette très profondément que par suite de l'attitude du Gouvernement belge contre Allemagne, on en est arrivé à des rencontres sanglantes. L'Allemagne ne vient pas en ennemie en Belgique, c'est seulement par la force des événements qu'elle a dû, à cause des mesures militaires de la France, prendre la grave détermination d'entrer en Belgique et d'occuper Liége comme point d'appui pour ses opérations militaires ultérieures. Après que l'armée belge a par sa résistance héroïque contre une grande supériorité, maintenu l'honneur de ses armes, le Gouvernement allemand prie le Roi des Belges et le Gouvernement belge d'eviter à la Belgique les horreurs ultérieures de la guerre. Le Gouvernement est prêt à tous accords avec la Belgique qui peuvent se concilier avec ses arrangements (voir pièce No. 70) avec la France. L'Allemagne assure encore solennellement qu'elle n'a pas l'intention de s'approprier le territoire belge et que cette intention est loin d'elle, L'Allemagne est toujours prête à évacuer la Belgique aussitôt que l'état de guerre le lui permettra.

L'Ambassadeur des États-Unis avait prié son collègue de se charger de cette tentative de médiation. Le Ministre des Affaires Etrangéres a accepté sans enthousiasme cette mission. Je m'en suis chargé pour lui faire plaisir.

THE Netherlands Minister for Foreign Affairs has begged me to convey to you the following information, the United States Minister at Brussels having declined to do so :—

The fortress of Liége has been taken by assault after a brave defence. The German Government most deeply regret that bloody encounters should have resulted from the attitude of the Belgian Government towards Germany. Germany is not coming as an enemy into Belgium : it is only through the force of circumstances that she has had, owing to the military measures of France, to take the grave decision of entering Belgium and occupying Liége as a base for her further military operations. Now that the Belgian army has upheld the honour of its arms by its heroic resistance to a very superior force, the German Government beg the King of the Belgians and the Belgian Government to spare Belgium the further horrors of war. The German Government are ready for any compact with Belgium which can be reconciled with their arrangements with France. (See No. 70.) Germany once more gives her solemn assurance that it is not her intention to appropriate Belgian territory to herself and that such an intention is far from her thoughts. Germany is still ready to evacuate Belgium as soon as the state of war will allow her to do so.

The United States Ambassador has asked his colleague to undertake this attempt at mediation. The Minister for Foreign Affairs has accepted this mission without enthusiasm. I have undertaken it to oblige him.

Le Jhr. London m'a dit que mon collègue d'Allemagne sortait de son cabinet et lui avait remis un document que le représentant des États-Unis à Bruxells avait refusé de vous transmettre.

Le diplomate américain, chargé de la Légation d'Allemagne à Bruxelles, a prétendu qu'il n'a pas recu d'ordres spéciaux de Washington pour intervenir officiellement auprès due Government belge dans l'intérêt de l'Allemagne.

Le Ministre d'Amérique a, en conséquence, télégraphié à son collègue à La Haye, lequel a informé le représentant allemand du refus de Mr. Whitlock.

La première démarche a donc été faite per le Government allemand auprès de l'Ambassadeur des États-Unis à Berlin.

Dans ces conditions et vu l'urgence que présentent ces affaires. Monsieur von Müller a a prié le Jhr. London de servir d'intermédiaire du Gouvernement allemand après de vous.

Son Excellence m'a lu le texate allemand du document. Sir,

In response to a call on the telephone, yesterday evening at 9 o'clock, I went to the Department for Foreign Affairs.

Jonkheer Loudon told me that my German colleague had just left his room, and had handed him a document which the United States representative at Brussels had declined to forward to you.

The United States official in charge of the German Legation at Brussels stated that he had received no special instructions from Washington to intervene officially with the Belgian Government in the interest of Germany.

The United States Minister consequently telegraphed to his colleague at The Hague, who informed the German representative of Mr. Whitlock's refusal.

The German Government, therefore, took the initial step by approaching the United States Ambassador at Berlin.

In these circumstances, and in view of the urgency of these matters, Herr von Müller begged Jonkheer Loudon to act as the intermediary of the German Government in this negotiation with you.

His Excellency read me the German text of the document. I did not hide my astonishment at this attempt at mediation, and its poor chance of success in this form; but, solely in order to oblige the Netherlands Minister for Foreign Affairs, I promised to telegraph to you immediately; and this I did yesterday.

You will find the German document enclosed in original and translation.

Nur unter dem Zwang des Verhältnisse hat es angesichts der militärischen Massnahmen Frankreichs den schweren Entschluss fassen müssen, in Belgien einzurücken und Lüttich als Stützpunkt für seine weiteren militärischen Operationen besetzen zu müssen. Nachdem die Belgische Armee in heldenmutigem. Widerstand gegen die grosse Überlengenheit ihre Waffenehre auf das glänzendste gewahrt hat, bittet die Deutsche Regierung seine Majestät den König und die Belgische Regierung, Belgien die weiteren Schrecken des Krieges zu ersparen. Die Deutsche Regierung ist zu jedem Abkommen mit Belgien bereit das sich irgendwie mit Rücksicht auf seine (voir pièce No. 70) Auseinandersetzung mit Frankreich vereinigen lässt. Deutschland versichert nochmals feierlichst, dass es nicht von der Absicht geleitet gewesen ist sich Belgisches Gebiet anzueignen, und dass ihm diese Absicht durchaus fern liegt. Deutschland is noch immer bereit das Belgische Königreich unverzüglich zu räumen, sobald die Kriegslage es ihm gestattet. Monsieur le Ministre,

J' AI l'honneur de vous faire connaître les circonstances qui ont amené le départ de Luxembourg du représentant du Roi.

Le Général commandant des troupes allemandes dans le Grand-Duché de Luxembourg fit part, le 8 août, au Ministre d'Allemagne en cette ville, de la volonté des autorités militaires de provoquer le départ du représentant du Roi près la Cour grand-ducale.

M. von Buch adressa à M. Eyschen, Président du Gouvernement, une lettre dont la traduction suit :

"Luxembourg,

"Excellence,

"EN conséquence de l'attitude complètement hostile que la Belgique a prise vis-à-vis de l'Allemagne, les autorités militaires se voient contraintes d'insister pour le départ d'ici du Ministre de Belgique.

"Son Excellence le Général commandant fair prier le Comte van den Steen de Jehay, d'organiser son voyage de départ de telle façon qu'il puisse, endéans les vingt-quatre heures, entrer en relation personnellement à Coblence avec le Général de Ploetz, au sujet de son voyage ultérieur. Le départ n'est possible que par la voie Trèves-Coblence."

(Signé) "DE BUCH."

M. Eyschen transmit cette letter le même jour au Comte van de Steen de Jehay, dans les termes suivants :

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to inform you of the circumstances which led to the departure of the Belgian representative from Luxemburg,

The General Officer commanding the German troops in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg informed the German Minister in that town, on August 8, of the desire of the military authorities for the departure of the Belgian representative at the Grand Ducal Court.

Herr von Buch addressed to Monsieur Eyschen, President of the Government, a note of which the following is a translation :—

"Luxemburg,

"Your Excellency,

"IN consequence of the completely hostile attitude adopted by Belgium towards Germany, the military authorities find themselves obliged to insist upon the departure of the Belgian Minister from Luxemburg.

"His Excellency the General Officer commanding begs Count van den Steen de Jehay to arrange his journey home in such a way that he may be able, within twenty-four hours, to see General von Ploetz at Coblentz, with a view to settling the details of the further stages of his journey. It is impossible for him to travel except viâ Trèves-Coblentz.

(Signed) "VON BUCH."

Monsieur Eyschen forwarded this note the same day to Count van den Steen de

" Luxembourg,

" Monsieur le Ministre,

" J'ai le très vif regret de vous communiquer ci-joint copie d'une lettre du Ministre d'Allemagne m'informant que l'autorité militaire allemande demande votre départ.

" Vous y trouverez les conditions y attachées.

" M. von Buch me dit que les autorités militaires conseilleraient plutôt le voyage par chemin de fer, parce que le voyage par automobile vous exposerait à être arrêté trop souvent pour des motifs de contrôle. Mais le choix vous est abandonné.

" Le Ministre d'Allemagne viendra chez moi prendre votre réponse.

" Je ne saurais vous dire combien la tâche que je remplis en ce moment m'est pénible. Je n'oublierai jamais les relations si agréables que nous avons eues et je fais des vœux pour que votre voyage se fasse dans les meilleures conditions,

(Signé) " EYSCHEN."

Le Gouvernement belge estimant que le Gouvernement grand-ducal n'avait pas eu le choix de son attitude et que celle qu'il avait été obligé d'adopter n'impliquait en aucune manière une intention discourtoise à l'égard du Roi et de la Belgique, décida qu'il n'y avait pas lieu, dans ces conditions, de prier le Chargé d'Affaires du Grand-Duché de quitter la Belgique.

Veuillez agréer, &c.

" Luxemburg,

August 8, 1914.

" SIR,

" I GREATLY regret to have to communicate to you the enclosed copy of a note from the German Minister, informing me that the German military authorities demand your departure.

" You will find in it the conditions which they attach thereto.

" Herr von Buch told me that the military authorities advise you to travel by railway, as an attempt to carry out your journey by motor would expose you to being too frequently stopped for reasons connected with the control of the roads. But the choice is left to you.

" The German Minister will come to me for your answer.

" I cannot tell you how painful it is to me to fulfil my present task. I shall never forget the pleasant relations which have existed between us, and I hope that your journey may be carried out under the best possible conditions.

(Signed) " EYSCHEN."

The Belgian Government considering that the Grand Ducal Government had no choice in their attitude, and that the course they had been obliged to adopt in no way implied any discourteous intention towards the King of the Belgians or towards Belgium, decided that there was no reason, in these circumstances, for requesting the Luxemburg Chargé d' Affaires to leave Belgium.

Monsieur le Ministre,

AU cours de l'entretien que j'ai eu ce matin avec Monsieur de Margerie j'ai amené la conversation sur les affaires coloniales et sur la démarche que vous m'avez chargé de faire par votre télégramme et votre depêche du 7 de ce mois.

Mon interlocuteur m'a rappelé que le Gouvernement de la République s'était adressé à L'Espagne, qui n'avait pas donnè réponse avant d'avoir l'avis de l'Angleterre. Il paraît que celle-ci continue à ne pas donner de réponse.

M. de Margarie estime qu'en présence de la situation actuelle, il importe de frapper l'Allemagne partout où on peut l'atteindre ; il croit que telle est aussi l'opinion de l'Angleterre, qui aura certes des prétentions à faire valoir ; la France désire reprendre la partie du Congo, qu'elle a dû céder à la suite des incidents d'Agadir. Un succès, me dit mon interlocuteur, ne serait pas difficile à obtenir.

Veuillez agreér, &c.

Sir,

IN the course of a conversation which I had this morning with Monsieur de Margerie, I turned the conversation to colonial affairs and to the action which you had instructed me to take in your telegram and your despatch of the 7th instant.

Monsieur de Margerie reminded me that the French Government had approached Spain, but the latter had not answered before knowing the views of Great Britain. It seems that the latter has still given no answer.

Monsieur de Margerie considered that in view of the present situation Germany should be attacked wherever possible; he believes that such is also the opinion of Great Britain, who certainly has claims to satisfy; France wishes to get back that part of the Congo which she had been compelled to give up in consequence of the Agadir incident.

Monsieur de Margerie added that a success would not be difficult to obtain.

London, August 17, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

En réponse á votre dépêche du 7 août, j'ai l'honneur de vous, faire savoir que le Gouvernement britannique ne peut se ral lier à la proposition belge tendant à respecter la neutralité des possessions des Puissances belligérantes dans le bassin conventionnel du Congo.

Les troupes allemandes de l'Est Africain allemand ont déjà pris l'offensive contre le protectorat anglais de l'Afrique centrale D'autre part, des troupes britanniques ont déjà attaqué le port allemand de Dar-es-Salaam, oú elles ont détruit la station de télégraphie sans fil.

Dans ces circonstances, même si le Gouvernement anglais était persuadé de l'utilitè politique et Strategique de la stratègique de la proposition belge, il ne pourrait l'adopter.

Le Gouvernement de Londres croit que les forces qu'il envoie en Afrique seront suffisantes pour vaincre toute opposition Il fera tous ses efforts pour empêcher des soulèvements dans la population indigène.

La France est du même avis que l'Angleterre, vu l activitè allemande que l'on remarque près de Bonar et Ekododo.

Sir,

In reply to your despatch of August 7th, I have the honour to inform you that the British Government cannot agree to the Belgian proposal to respect the neutrality of the belligerent powers in the conventional basin of the Congo.

German troops from German East Africa have already taken the offensive against the British Central African Protectorate. Furthermore, British troops have already attacked the German port of Dares-Salaam, where they have destroyed the wireless telegraphy station.

In these circumstances, the British Government, even if they were convinced from the political and strategical point of view of the utility of the Belgian proposal, would be unable to adopt it.

The British Government believe that the forces they are sending to Africa will be sufficient to overcome all opposition. They will take every step in their power to prevent any risings of the Native population.

France is of the same opinion as Great Britain on account of German activity which has been noticed near Bonar and Ekododo.

Elle n'a pas cru qu'un peuple quelque faible qu'il soit, puisse méconnaître ses devoirset sacrifier son honneur en s'inclinant devant la force. Le Gouvernement a attendue, non seulement les délais de l'ultimatum, mais la violation de son territoire par les troupes allemandes avant de faire appel à la France et à l'Angleterre, garantes de sa neutralité au même titre que l'Allemagne et l'Autriche-Hongrie, poor coopérer au nom et en vertu des traités a la défense du territoire belge.

En repoussant par les armes les envahisseurs, elle n'a même pas accompli un acte d' hostilité aux termes de l'article 10 de la Convention de La Haye sur les droits et devoirs des Puissances neutres.

L'Allemagne a reconnu ellemême que son agression constitue une violation du droit des gens et ne pouvant la justifier elle a invoqué son intérét stratégique.

SIR,

UNDER date of the 17th August, I addressed a despatch to the Belgian Minister at London, in which I felt bound to call attention to certain allegations made by the German Government which are mentioned in the Blue Book recently published by British Government.

I have the honour to enclose for your information a copy of the despatch in question and of its enclosures.

I request that you will bring its contents to the notice of the Government to which you are accredited.

Enclosure 1 in No. 79.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to Count de Lalaing, Belgian Minister at London.

Brussels, August 17, 1914.

Monsieur le Comte,

LE " Blue Book " public récemment par le Gouvernement britannique reproduit, sous le No. 122 (page 65), le texte du'n télégramme addressé de Barlin, le 31 juillet, par Sir E. Goschen à Sir E. Grey, télégramme dont j'extrais le passage suivant :

" It appears from what he [his Excellency the Secretary of State] said, that the German Government consider that certain hostile acts have already been committed by Belgium. As an instance of this, he alleged that a consignment of corn for Germany had been placed under an embargo already."

Le fait auquel le Secrétaire d'État allemand des Affaires Étrangéres a fait allusion dans son entretièn avec Sir E. Goschen, et qu'il considérait comme un acte hostile de la part de la Belgique, se rapporte sans doute à l'application des arrêtés Royaux du 30 juillet, qui ont prohibé provisoirement l'exportation de Belgique de certains produits. Comme vous le constaterez par l'exposé que je tiens à vous faire ci-après, le fait qui nous est reproché n'a nullement le caractère qu'on a voulu lui donner en Allemagne.

Des arrêtés Royaux datés du 30 juillet et publiés au "Moniteur belge" du lendemain ont prohibé à titre provisoire, par toutes les frontières de terre et de mer, l'exportation d'une série de produits, des céréales notamment. Sous la date du 31 juillet, M. le Ministre d' Allemagne à Bruxelles me signala que la douane d'Anvers retenait des chargements de grains à destination de l'Allemagne qui, simplement transbordés dans notre port, ne faisaient en réalité qu'y transiter. M. de Below Salerke demandait la libre sortie des bateaux portant ces chargements. Le jour même où ilreçut la réclamation du Ministre d'Allemagne, mon Département en saisait le Ministère dès Finances, et des le surlendemain 2 août, celui-ci nous annonça qu'il avait été transmis à la douane belge des instructions donnant pleine et entière satisfaction à l'Allemagne.

Je crois ne pouvoir mieux faire, Monsieur le Comte, que de placer sous vos yeux une copie de la corre-

(Translation.)

Sir,

THE Blue Book recently published by the British Government contains (see No. 122, (p. 65) the text of a telegram despatched from Berlin on the 31st July by Sir E. Goschen to Sir E. Grey, in which the following passage occurs :—

" It appears from what he [his Excellency the Secretary of State] said, that the German Government consider that certain hostile acts have already been committed by Belgium. As an instance of this, he alleged that a consignment of corn for Germany had been placed under an embargo already."

The incident to which the German Secretary of State alluded in his conversation with Sir E. Goschen, and which he considered as an hostile act on the part of Belgium, doubtless refers to the application of the Royal decree of the 30th July, which provisionally prohibited the export from Belgium of certain products. As you will see from the explanation in the following paragraph, the incident with which we are reproached has in no wise the character which Germany has wished to attribute to it.

The Royal decrees dated the 30th July and published in the " Moniteur belge " the following day forbade, provisionally, the export, both by land and by sea, of a series of products, more especially of cereals. On the 31st July the German Minister at Brussels called my attention to the fact that the Antwerp customs were detaining cargoes of grain addressed to Germany, which, as they were merely transhipped in our port, were in reality only in transit. Herr von Below Saleske requested that the vessels carrying these cargoes should be allowed to depart freely. The very day on which the German Minister's request was received the Foreign Office brought the matter to the notice of the Ministry of Finance, and the following day, the 2nd August, that Department informed us that instructions had been forwarded to the Belgian Customs giving full and entire satisfaction to Germany.

I cannot do better than enclose for your information, copies of the correspondence spondance échangée à ce sujet avect M. de Below Saleske. Vous y verrez que rien dans notre attitude ne pouvait être considéré comme témoignant de dispositions hostiles à l'égard de l'Allemagne ; les mesures prises par le Gouvernement belge à ce moment ne constituaient que les simples précautions que tout État a le droit et le devoir de prendre dans des circonstances aussi exceptionnelles.

It serait bon que vous adressiez au Gouvernement de Sa Majesté britannique une communication afin de d'éclairer sur la réalité des faits.

Veuillez agréer, &c.,

exchanged on this subject with Herr Below Saleske, You will observe that nothing in our attitude can be taken as showing any hostile dispositions towards Germany ; the steps taken by the Belgian Government at that time were nothing more than those simple precautions which it is the right and duty of every State to adopt in such exceptional circumstances.

It would be as well that you should address a communication to the British Government in order to explain the real facts of the case.

Brussels July 31, 1914.

Herr von Below Saleske, German Minister at Brussels, to Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Enclosure 2 in No. 79.

Monsieur Ministre,

ON m'a informé d'Anvers que la douane a défendu le départ des bateaux chargés de grains pour l'Allemagne.

Vu qu'il ne s'agit pas dans ces cas d'une exportation de grains, mais d'un transit, parce que la marchandise a été seulement transbordée à Anvers, j'ai l'honneur de recourir à vorte bienveillante entremise afin qu'on laisse partir pour l'Allemagne les bateaux en question.

En même temps, je prie votre Excellence de me faire savoir si le portd' Anvers est fermée pour le transit des marchandises énumérées au "Moniteur" d'aujourd'hui.

En attendant la réponse de vorte Excellence dans le plus bref délai possible, je profite de cette occasion &c.

SIR,

I AM informed from Antwerp that the Customs have forbidden the despatch of vessels containing cargoes of grain for Germany.

In view of the fact that it is not in this case a question of the export of grain, but of grain in transit, the goods in question having been merely transhipped at Antwerp, I have the honour to ask your good offices in order that the vessels in question may be allowed to leave for Germany.

At the same time I beg your Excellency to inform me if the port of Antwerp is closed for the transit of those goods specified in the "Moniteur" of to-day.

SIR,

IN reply to your Excellency's note of the 31st July, I have the honour to inform you that the Belgian decree of the 30th July concerns only the export and not the transit of the products mentioned

J'ai eu soin de faire part de votre communication à mon collègue des Finances, en le priant de vouloir bien donner aux bureaux de la douane des instructions précises de nature à prévenir toute erreur dans l'application de l'arrêté précité.

I at once communicated your note to the Minister of Finance and begged him to issue precise instructions to the Customs officials in order that any error in the application of the abovementioned decree might be avoided.

Enclosure 4 in No. 79.

Monsieur Davignon, Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, to Herr von Below Saleske, German Minister at Brussels.

Brussels, August 3, 1914.

Monsieur le Ministre,

COMME suite à la lettre que votre Excellence a bien voulu m'adresser le 31 juillet, j'ai l'honneur de lui faire savoir que mon collègue des Finances a porté à la connaissance du service des douanes que les prohibitions établies par les arrêtés Royaux du 30 juillet écoulé ne visent que l'exportation proprement dite et ne s'étendent donc pas aux marchandises régulièrement déclarées en transit lors de l'importation. Au surplus, lorsque des marchandises libres de droits sont déclarées en consommation, bien qu'elles soient en réalité destinées à l'exportation, elles font communément l'objet de déclarations de libre entrée spécials qui sont considérées comme des documents de transit. Enfin, s'il arrivait que de telles marchandises avaient été déclarées en consommation sans restrictions, comme si elles devaient rester effectivement dans le pays, la douane en permettrait encore la sortie du moment où il serait dûment établi, per les documents-d'expédition manifestes, connaissements, &c., qu'elles devaient être exportées immédiatement en transit.

Je puis ajouter que l'exportation des grains auxquels se rapportait la lettre précitée de la Légation Impériale a été autorisé le 1er août.

Je saisis, &c.

SIR,

WITH reference to the note which your Excellency was good enough to address to me on the 31st July, I have the honour to inform you that the Minister of Finance has instructed the Customs that the prohibitions established by the Royal decrees of the 30th July last only apply to actual exports, and do not, therefore, extend to goods regularly declared in transit at the time of import. Moreover, when duty-free goods are declared to be for actual consumption, although they are really intended for export, they are commonly the object of special declarations of free entry, which are considered as transit documents. In short, if it should happen that such goods had been declared as for consumption without restriction, as though they were to remain in the country, the Customs would still allow them to leave the country as soon as it had been duly established by despatch receipts, bills of lading, &c., that they were to be exported forthwith in transit.

I would add that the export of grain with which your note deals was authorised on the 1st August.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL PROGRESS REPORT ON FOREST ADMINISTRATION IN THE PRESIDENCY OF BENGAL FOR 1913-14.

RESOLUTION—No. 11786.

The corresponding Report of the previous year and the Government Resolution thereon.

MR. C. E. MURIEL held charge of the Bengal Forest Circle throughout the year, except for a period of three months, during which he was absent on privilege leave and Sir Henry Farrington, Bart., officiated as Conservator. All the Divisions and Divisional offices were inspected by the Conservator during the year.

2. Changes in area and in administration.—The only change in the actual areas under the different classes of forest made during the year was due to the notification of an area of 294 acres in the Jalapahar Cantonment near Darjeeling as a protected forest. This measure was adopted at the instance of the military authorities in consequence of a decision to re-afforest the slopes below the cantonment, which have been practically denuded of forest growth. It will now be possible to afford protection to planted trees and to natural growth by the prevention of grazing and of the illicit felling of timber. It is also desired to regulate quarrying.

3. Reservation and Demarcation.—In the Jalpaiguri district, an area of 26 square miles was under settlement during the year. An area of 220 acres, in respect of which no claims were preferred, has been declared reserved forest since the close of the year. Further proposals for the extension of the Buxa reserved forest have recently been sanctioned.

The Governor in Council notices that the progress made in the important work of demarcation in the Chittagong Hill Tracts is still slow. It appears that the operations are much more expensive than in the neighbouring Chittagong Division, and His Excellency in Council would be glad if the Conservator would investigate the causes which hamper progress in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, and consider what action can be taken to remove them.

4. Working-plans.—No new working-plans were sanctioned during the year. The deviations from the sanctioned working-plans are sufficiently explained by the Conservator in his report.

5. Communications and buildings.—Steady progress continues to be made in the improvement of communications and buildings. Twelve miles of cart road, 39 miles of bridle-path and 22 miles of foot-path were constructed during the year. The total expenditure on communications amounted to Rs. 42,324 against Rs. 35,516 in the previous year. The total expenditure on new buildings and repairs was Rs. 31,756 and Rs. 20,297 respectively against Rs. 48,704 and Rs. 17,105 in the previous year.

6. Protection.—The number of forest offences reported during the year was 2,171 against 1,572 in the preceding year. The increase is attributed to increased activity on the part of the subordinate staff and to better supervision, particularly in regard to the improvement of the record of undetected cases. The Governor in Council agrees with the Conservator that technical or trivial offences not likely to affect the condition of the forest property need not be recorded, but that a record of undetected forest offences which really injure the forests, should be kept as a check against inefficiency or dishonesty on the part of the protective staff.

The area in which special measures for fire protection were in force was 460,177 acres. The season was generally favourable to fire portection owing to rains during April, but the area burnt over amounted to 5,764 acres compared with 1,643 acres in the previous year. The increase is reported to be mainly due to malicious firing in the Savannah forest areas in the Buxa Division. Measures are under consideration for increasing the fire protection staff in these areas.

There was no change in the area open to grazing which includes 4,770 square miles, but of this 4,030 square miles consist of the unclassed forests in the Chittagong Hill Tracts. The forest reserves in Chittagong have been for the most part closed to the grazing of buffaloes, and further action to regulate grazing is under the consideration of the Conservator. Steps should be taken to control grazing in the Chittagong Hill Tracts where there has been an increase in illicit grazing and consequent damage to forest growth. The measures adopted in Jalpaiguri and Buxa to detect and punish illicit grazing and to exclude cattle owned by professional graziers appear to have been effective.

Further investigations have been made by the local Forest officers and the Forest Zoologist in regard to the attacks on sal trees in Jalpaiguri and Buxa by a beetle, which has caused much damage in recent years. The beetle has been identified as a new species of the family of Platypodidæ, and its breeding habits and life history have been determined. The beetle is migratory, and no efficient preventive measures have yet been discovered except the felling of the trees attacked directly the attack is observed, but observations are being actively continued. Investigations have also been undertaken in regard to the Sundri-boring beetle which is causing some damage in the Sundarbans, and it is hoped that the Forest Zoologist will be able to visit the forest early next year.

7. Exploitation.—The operations in connection with the concessions granted to Messrs. Burn & Co., Ld., for the extraction of timber and bamboo from the forests in the Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri districts have been postponed till the 1st April 1916 owing to delay in the execution of an agreement between that firm and the Sikkim State regarding a similar concession which it is proposed to work in combination with that granted in British territory. The preliminary survey and the clearing of alignments for wire-ropeways were, however, continued. No new concessions were granted, and no important changes in the existing methods of exploitation were made during the year.

Khedda operations were conducted by private individuals in the Kurseong, Tista, Jalpaiguri and Buxa forests. The operations in the two latter forests under the license granted to His Highness the Maharaja of Cooch Behar were successful, and resulted in the capture of 30 elephants. A new license has recently been granted to the Maharaja for the Buxa, Jalpaiguri and Tista forests.

8. Financial Results.—The results of the year's working were satisfactory. The total revenue increased from Rs. 15,51,650 in 1912-13 to Rs. 16,37,469, while the expenditure fell from Rs. 6,46,189 to Rs. 6,45,035, and the surplus was Rs. 9,92,434 against Rs. 9,05,461 in the preceding year.

9. The number of persons reported to have been killed by tigers in the Sundarbans was 81 against 70 in the previous year, and 112 the average number of the past five years. The number of tigers killed during the year was 31. Measures have been taken to encourage the killing of tigers by giving greater facilities for the payment of rewards to shikaris.

10. Legislation.—Notifications under sections 2 and 3 of the Wild Birds and Animals Protection Act, VIII of 1912, extending the provisions of the Act to certain birds and animals not mentioned in the schedule to the Act, and prescribing close-times for them throughout the whole of the Presidency, have been issued since the close of the year. These notifications include the areas administered under the Indian Forest Act. The proposed Bill for the conservation of the hill-sides and rivers in the district of Darjeeling is still under consideration.

11. The Government of India in their circular No. 1F.-31-1 dated the 17th January 1912, have desired that the orders of Local Governments on the forest reports for 1913-14 should be accompanied by a brief review of the events and changes of the preceding five years, so as to indicate the direction in which the provincial forest policy is tending. An account of the main features of forest working during the quinquennial period will be found in Chapter VI of the Conservator's report. Apart from the reconstitution and reorganisation of the Bengal Forest Circle in consequence of the territorial changes effected on 1st April 1912, the period has been marked by steady progress on existing lines rather than by any novel developments. There has been no important change in the areas under the different classes of forest, which cover 10,683 square miles, or rather more than one-eighth of the total area of the Presidency as now constituted. Nearly half the forest area has been finally settled and reserved and brought under working-plans. No working-plans have been prepared for new areas during the past five years, but the plans for the Darjeeling and Sundarbans forests have been thoroughly revised and the new plans are a great improvement on those which they superseded. Demarcation is still backward in Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts, but artificial boundaries extending over a length of 330 square miles have been demarcated during the quinquennium. The forests have been successfully protected from fire, and while there has been some addition to the area of protected forest in which grazing is allowed, much has been done to save reserved forests in Darjeeling, Jalpaiguri and Buxa from destructive grazing by the closing of areas and by protective fencing. Good progress has been made in opening out and improving the lines of communication, the average annual expenditure on roads, buildings and works during the quinquennium having been Rs. 87,853 against Rs. 47,263 in the prevoius quinquennium. The successful results of this policy are shown in the steady increase in gross and net revenue. The average annual total receipts during the last five years have been Rs. 14,63,702 as compared with Rs. 11,71,950 during the period from 1904-05 to 1908-09. The average annual surplus has similarly risen from Rs. 5,85,364 to Rs. 8,17,159. in spite of increased expenditure due to the reorganisation of the Provincial and Subordinate forest services, which was effected in 1911, and considerably improved the prospects of the staff. A further increase of revenue is expected under the important agreements which have been made for the exploitation of the Northern Bengal forests by commercial agency, but actual extraction will not begin until 1916. The Forest School at Kurseong was completed in 1909-10, and the instruction there given has already effected considerable improvement in the efficiency of the subordinate staff. The general administration of the Department has been improved and simplified by the delegation of increased powers to the Conservator and to Divisional Forest Officers.

12. Mr. Muriel has held charge of the forests included in the former province of Bengal for more than four years, and of the remaining forests in the existing Presidency since the 1st April 1912. The Governor in Council recognises that the successful results already described are largely due to his careful and efficient administration of the Department. His Excellency in Council has noticed with pleasure the good work done by the senior Deputy Conservators, Sir Henry Farrington and Mr. J. W. A. Grieve, and by the other officers of the Department mentioned in Chapter IV of the Conservator's report.

By order of the Governor in Council,

J. H. KERR,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL IRRIGATION REVENUE REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1913-14.

No. 4411*I*.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

Dated Calcutta, the 15th December 1914.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Annual Irrigation Revenue Report for the year 1913-14.

The Major Irrigation Works in Bengal are the Midnapore and Hijili Tidal Canals, these works are in operation. The Minor Works for navigation are the Calcutta and Eastern Canals, the Madaripur Bhil channel, a portion of the Orissa Coast Canal, the Nadia Rivers and the Gaighatta and Baxi Khal, while the only work of this class for irrigation is the Eden Canal. The Utterbhag Lock under construction in connection with the Magra Hât Drainage Scheme is treated as a Minor Work for navigation. Training works on the rivers Ganges, Bhagirathi, Gorai, Dhaleswari and Buriganga are also classed under this head.

2. The capital outlay on the Major Works up to the end of March 1914 amounted to Rs. 1,11,08,615. The works constructed for this outlay comprise two weirs, at Midnapore and Panchkura, and 98·75 miles of main and branch canals, of which 69·75 miles provide for both irrigation and navigation and 29 miles for navigation only; there are in addition 25½ miles of distributaries. During the year under review no addition was made to the length of either the canals or the distributaries.

3. The total receipts from the Major Works amounted to Rs. 2,46,372 and the working expenses to Rs. 3,09,152, the net result being a deficit of Rs. 62,780 against a profit of Rs. 26,825 in the preceding year. This deficit is made up of a net revenue of Rs. 23,562 on the Midnapore Canal and of a loss of Rs. 86,342 on the Hijili Tidal Canal. This loss is due both to a falling off in traffic and to the heavy expenditure incurred on silt clearance. The general revenues of these canals, which depend considerably upon receipts from navigation, have suffered of late years from railway competition.

4. The area irrigated during the year was 80,179 acres as compared with 80,958 acres in 1912-13, and an average of 78,624 acres for the triennium ending March 1913. The demand for water was moderate and the irrigation effected was satisfactory.

5. The capital outlay on canals classed as Minor Works and Navigation was Rs. 2,15,832 during the year and Rs. 1,17,99,149 to the end of the year. The receipts for the year amounted to Rs. 5,27,179 and the working expenses to Rs. 6,99,310. The financial results of the year and the capital expenditure to date are exhibited in the following statement :—

	Capital Expenditure (direct and indirect)		Receipts of the year less refunds.	Expenditure of the year less refunds.	Net revenue of the year.	Net revenue of the previous year.

6. The Calcutta and Eastern Canals form a series of navigable channels, mostly natural but partly artificial, by which communication is maintained between Calcutta and Eastern Bengal. The receipts from navigation tolls amounted to Rs. 3,52,403 as compared with Rs. 4,00,833 in the preceding year. The decrease is partly due to fluctuation of traffic caused by the shortage of the jute crop of 1913 compared with that of 1912.

7. The capital expenditure during the year on the Madaripore Bhil Channel which connects the Madhumati and Kumar rivers in the district of Faridpur was incurred on (1) improvement of the Lower Kumar river at the eastern entrance of the Bhil; (2) excavation of boat docks; and (3) easing off the four bends in the Lower Kumar river. The total capital outlay to the end of the year amounted to Rs. 32,24,535 against the sanctioned estimate of Rs. 34,32,191. The receipts and working expenses (direct and indirect) during the year were respectively Rs. 89,332 and Rs. 1,18,976 as against Rs. 1,03.093 and Rs. 93,969 in the year 1912-13. The decrease in receipts is due to the silting up of the western approaches in the rains which prevented steamers from using the route as usual. The increase in working expenses is chiefly on account of heavy expenditure incurred in dredging the Manikdah entrance and loop channels.

8. The work in the Nadia Rivers consists in the training of the shallow channels by bandals with the object of scouring shoals and maintaining a sufficient depth of water for boat traffic, also in the interests of sanitation. The former object is only partially attained. The work done is of use however, as it guards against the danger of these offshoots of the Ganges, which combine and afterwards form the Hooghly, closing up altogether in the dry season, and also provides a supply of fresh water for the towns and villages on their banks. The receipts and working expenses were Rs. 24,828 and Rs. 1,40,060, respectively, as against Rs. 28,981 and Rs. 1,47,758 respectively in the preceding year. The decrease in receipts is due to a falling off in the number of steamers and flats on account of extensions of railway lines on both sides of the Bhagirathi. With the growth of railway lines on either bank of the Bhagirathi it is not likely that the revenue from these rivers will improve to any great extent.

9. The Gaighatta and Baxi Khal, a short channel connecting the rivers Damodar and Rupnarain was maintained during the year at an annual cost of Rs. 298 against Rs. 8,956 in the previous year. The collection of tolls and fishing rights were leased out during the year at Rs. 4.025.

10. The Eden Canal was originally constructed for sanitary reasons, but it is now used to some extent for irrigation. It was worked during the year at a loss of Rs. 7,034 against a profit of Rs. 15,847 in the previous year. This result was due to the limitation of the area under long lease on account of the uncertainty of the supply of water; to remedy this a new supply channel is being excavated. It is proposed also to build a new supply sluice and stop dam across the new intake. A scheme for a weir and canal from the Damodar river is now under consideration.

11. The Utterbhag Lock is being constructed on the Peali river to give access to the channels constructed under the Magra Hât Drainage Scheme to boats coming from the Sundarbans and Eastern rivers. The lock is expected to be completed during the year 1914-15.

12. Training works were, as usual, carried out in the Buriganga and Dhaleswari rivers to facilitate navigation and to improve the water-supply of the town of Dacca. Training works were also carried out on the river Ganges between Digha and Damukdia. Twenty shoals were trained, of which 5 were in Bengal, the remaining 15 being in the province of Bihar and Orissa. To improve navigation as well as the sanitary conditions and water-supply of the town of Rampur Boalia training works were carried out on the river Ganges there. As the state of the river did not allow of dredging work, the middle channel of the Ganges was trained by means of bandalling. At the mouth of the Bhagirathi river, at its offtake from the Ganges, dredging and bandalling operations were carried out during the year to improve sanitary conditions by an increased flow in the river. The operations were not very successful owing to several adverse circumstances. No dredging was needed at the entrance of the Gorai river from the Ganges.

13. The Waterways Standing Committee held two meetings during the year. The most important subject dealt with was the proposed Grand Trunk Canal project and as recommended by the Committee the scheme was submitted to the Government of India in June 1914 for the sanction of the Secretary of State. A revised alignment of the canal is now under consideration. The purchase of dredging plant for the improvement and maintenance of the waterways and the levy of tolls on the Hallifax Canal, district Jessore, were also discussed. In regard to the latter it has been decided that the levy of tolls should be discontinued from the 1st April 1914.

14. The Irrigation Department during the year was in charge of Mr. F. A. A. Cowley, Superintending Engineer, as Deputy Secretary to this Government up to 31st August 1913. With the creation of a second Chief Engineer for Irrigation the post was abolished and the Department was then in charge of Rai A. P. Sarkar Bahadur from 1st September 1913 to 2nd January 1914, the Hon'ble Mr. H. H. Green from 3rd January to 19th March 1914, and the Hon'ble Lieutenant-Colonel A. C. deL. Joly de Lotbiniere, R.E., C.S.I., C.I.E., for the remainder of the year. Rai A. P. Sarkar Bahadur has since retired and the thanks of Government are due to him and to the other officers for the efficient conduct of the affairs of the Department during the year.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette and that a copy thereof and of its accompaniments be submitted to the Government of India in the Public Works Department and circulated to other Governments and to all Departments and officers of this Government as usual.

By order of the Governor in Council,

F. A. A. COWLEY,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Forecast of the Bhadoi Crops of Bengal, 1914-15.

(NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1912-13, the area under autumn rice in Bengal represents some 6·7 per cent. of the total area under rice in British India.)

Character of the season.—The rainfall in February was generally above the normal, while in March the fall was slightly in defect. The rainfall in April and May was too heavy in some parts and was not therefore entirely favourable to the sowings and growth of the crops. The insufficient rainfall in June also adversely affected the crops, but the rainfall in July improved their prospects, although there was a certain amount of injury from insect-pests. The crops usually recovered later in spite of the defective rainfall in the next two months. The season on the whole was not favourable to the growth of the crops.

Acreage.—The total area sown this year with the different bhadoi crops is reported to be 6,075,700 acres, against 6,102,900 acres of last year. Of this area, 4,990,200 acres are reported to be under autumn (aus) rice this year, against 4,992,100 acres last year.

Outturn.—From the appendix attached to the report it will be seen that only Birbhum reports an average outturn. Jessore, Pabna, Bankura, Khulna, Birbhum and Malda report a crop between 90 to 99 per cent.; Midnapore, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Dacca, Murshidabad, the 24-Parganas, Nadia, Rangpur and Hooghly between 80 to 86 per cent.; Howrah, Darjeeling, Dinajpur, Rajshahi, Mymensingh, Noakhali, Jalpaiguri, Chittagong and Tippera report between 65 to 75 per cent. Bogra and the Chittagong Hill Tracts report a crop as low as 50 per cent., being due to want of rain at sowing time and to unfavourable weather conditions afterwards.

According to the final estimates of the District officers the outturn of the different bhadoi crops for the Province as a whole works out to 78 per cent., against an outturn of 74 per cent. of last year.

Taking 79 per cent. as the outturn of aus paddy this year, the gross yield for the Province, on the basis of a normal yield of 10 maunds of clean grain per acre, is estimated at 28,963,500 cwts., against 27,507,500 cwts. of last year, or an increase of about 5 per cent.

District.	Names of crops.	Estimated normal area under each crop.	Estimated area under each crop.		Estimated outturn as a percentage of the normal yield per unit of area. Nadia ...	Bhadoi paddy (autumn rice).	491,100	448,600	466,400	58	63	Latter part of July. Early.	The increase in area under bhadoi paddy is noticeable in the Chuadanga subdivision, due to timely rainfall. After the submission of the preliminary forecast the weather was not favourable throughout the district. The flood-water in the Kushtia subdivision and defective rainfall in the Chuadanga subdivision caused the outturn to fall below the normal.

Murshidabad.	Bhadoi paddy (autumn rice).	229,700	179,600	180,300	75	83	August to September. Normal.	The increase in area under mulberry is due to correct estimate of the crop arrived at from an actual census. The weather was not favourable. About two annas of the crop was damaged by untimely and excessive rainfall and flood in the Kandi subdivision. The outturn for the district has therefore fallen below the normal.

Jessore ...	Bhadoi paddy (autumn rice).	407,300	289,000	324,400	67	91	August. Normal.	The increase in area is due to conversion of some jute fields into paddy lands owing to failure of jute crop last year in many parts of the district. After the submission of the preliminary forecast, the weather was favourable, but for the flood in the Magura subdivision which destroyed the crops by about two annas. The outturn has fallen below the normal owing to insufficient rain and to flood in June and August, respectively.

Burdwan ...	Bhadoi paddy (autumn rice).	140,000	120,100	120,100	75	100	End of August to October.	After the submission of the preliminary forecast, the weather was unfavourable owing to early cessation of rain. The outturn is about the normal or one anna less than that anticipated in the preliminary forecast.

About two annas of bhadoi paddy was damaged by drought and "ufra" disease. The decrease in the outturn of fruits and vegetables is due to excessive rainfall in the beginning and drought afterwards.

	Bhadoi fruits and vegetables, including root crops.	13,000	3,700	6,000	50	80	End of September. Normal.	The decrease in area under bhadoi paddy is due to cultivation of winter rice in some lands prepared for it. The increase in areas under fruits and vegetables is due to new classification of crops. The decrease in area under other bhadoi food-crops is due to heavy rain at sowing time. After the submission of the preliminary forecast, the weather conditions were favourable. The excessive rain at sowing time retarded the growth. Hence the outturn is below the normal.

(vi) The said promissory notes shall be absolutely payable in any event, and the amount thereof shall be absolutely forfeited upon such default as before mentioned, and the amount thereof shall not go or be credited in reduction of any loss on re-sale or expenses thereby incurred, but shall be recoverable whether such re-sale shall be had or not, or whether there shall be a loss on such re-sale or not.

(vii) The promissory notes taken on the day of sale under the fifth condition, if remaining unredeemed at 3-30 P.M. of the fifth day following the day of sale, or 1-30 P.M., if the last day falls on a Saturday, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

(viii) No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of opium upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before the prescribed time in clause (v) on the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted: Provided always that money so subsequently tendered may be taken in payment of the said promissory note, but such acceptance of money shall in no way entitle the payer thereof to any right to delivery of the lot or lots in respect whereof the said note was given, or to any of the rights of a purchaser thereof, or release the payer from liability for any unpaid balance of such notes or from the additional liability for the loss and expenses of such re-sale as provided for in clauses No. (v) and No. (vi).

(ix) The opium advertised for sale shall be paid for not later than by 3-30 P.M. of the fifteenth day from the day of sale, provided it does not fall on a Saturday; if it falls on a Saturday, the opium must be paid for by 1-30 P.M.; and, in case any lots of such opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as Government shall think fit; and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good all expenses and any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale, and the liability for the loss or difference of price and expenses shall be in addition to, and wholly independent of, the amount of the deposit so forfeited.

(x) Purchasers taking out certificates or orders for the delivery of opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each certificate or order; and it is to be clearly understood that the certificates or orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other certificates or orders authorizing the delivery of single lots or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less, than the number of lots or chests ordinarily required to be included in each certificate or order.

(xi) No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present conditions will be received in this office except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale-book, or his authorized agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

(xii) The officer superintending the sale on the part of the Government is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall on demand render at the time a deposit either in Government of India notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a promissory note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these conditions.

(xiii) With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually by Rs. 5 at a time until a bid is obtained; and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of Rs. 1,600 specified in the second of these conditions.

(xiv) The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of opium not exceeding altogether fifteen lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the opium to complete the said fifteen.

(xv) In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the opium included in this notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

5. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal:—

No. 1—Certificate of the opium advertised for sale.

No. 2—Report of the examination of such opium.

6. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Ghazipur Factory, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug, when packed at the Ghazipur Factory, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken, for the purpose of comparison, from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal.

7. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Government entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment.

By order of the Governor in Council,

H. L. STEPHENSON,
Secretary.

DRAFT NOTIFICATION.

No. Marine, dated the .—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 29 of the Inland Steam-Vessels Act, 1884 (VI of 1884), as applied to steam and motor vessels, and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal is pleased to make the following revised rules relating to the grant of certificates of competency to engineers and engine-drivers of inland steam and motor vessels, in supersession of Notification No. 68Marine, dated the 8th July 1910, as amended by Notification No. 113Marine, dated the 11th October 1912.

RULES RELATING TO THE EXAMINATION OF ENGINEERS AND ENGINE-DRIVERS UNDER ACT VI OF 1884.

Certificates of competency to be granted to persons who pass requisite examinations.

1. Certificates of competency will be granted to those persons who pass the requisite examinations and otherwise comply with the requisite conditions. For this purpose examiners have been appointed and arrangements have been made for holding the examinations periodically at the Ports of Calcutta and Chittagong, and at Goalundo in the Faridpur district.

Examinations to be continued till all the candidates are examined.

2. The examinations will commence early in the forenoon, and will be continued until all the candidates whose names appear upon the list of the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or of the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, on the day of examination are examined.

Application how to be made.

3. Candidates for examination must make their application in form Exn. 1, which must be filled in at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

Candidates unable to write English must apply at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, for a copy of form Exn. 1, and the same must be filled in before the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, before submission at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

The form Exn. 1, properly filled in, together with the candidate's testimonials, must be lodged with the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, not later than three days before the day of examination.

Testimonials required

4. Applicants will be required to produce, in addition to the usual forms of discharge, satisfactory testimonials as to sobriety, experience, ability, and general good conduct for at least the last 12 months' service on boardship preceding the date of application to be examined, unless the Government after having investigated the matter, should see fit to reduce the time.

An applicant already possessed of a certificate and wishing to appear for one of a higher grade must produce his certificate and all the discharges and testimonials he submitted when he applied for examination in the lower grade as well as the discharges and testimonials necessary for the higher grade certificate. Should references of doubtful authenticity be submitted by candidates for examination, the examining officer may require proof from the candidate of their genuineness, or an affidavit made to that effect.

If applicants have served on shore immediately preceding their application, certificates of sobriety must be produced from their employers, or from a respectable householder if unemployed. No candidate will be allowed to be examined unless he has served on boardship six months within the last three years preceding the date of his application to be examined.

5. As such testimonials and discharges may have to be verified before the candidates can be examined, it is desirable that these should be handed over, together with the form Exn. 1, as early as possible.

Testimonials of Foreigners.

6. The testimonials of service of Foreigners and of British seamen serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the candidate served belonged, or by some other recognized official authority of that country, or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot, having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however, of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient. Each case must be decided on its own merits; and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, the point must be referred to the Government.

Certificate as to age.

7. Should any doubt exist as to the age of a candidate, he will be required to produce a certificate of birth or baptism.

Foreigners to know English.

8. Foreigners must prove to the satisfaction of the examiners that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British vessel.

9. Testimonials of service must ordinarily be based on their employers' office records.

Services claimed which cannot be 'verified from the employers' office records must be authenticated by affidavits of men under whom such services have been performed as well as by an affidavit of the candidate himself.

Testimonials of service from European engineers will be accepted.

10. Candidates will be required to account for any gaps in their services with documentary evidence.

(p) He must be able to describe different types of marine motor-engines, their working and uses of the several parts.

General Rules as to Examinations.

(Engineers,)

26. All books necessary for the use of candidates under examination will be provided and applicants will not be permitted to take into the examination-room any book, paper, document, or memoranda of any description whatever; and, subject to the provisions referred to hereafter, they will also not be allowed to work out their problems on a slate or on waste paper.

Candidate not to take books, etc., into examination-room.

27. Candidates will be allowed in the time allotted to cancel any part of their work, and, when required, additional papers will be supplied by the examiners. These additional sheets must be attached to, and form part of, the examination papers.

28. In the event of any candidate being discovered copying from another, or affording any assistance or giving any information to another, or communicating in any way with another during the time of examination, he will be regarded as having failed in his examination, and will be turned back for three months, in the same manner as if he had failed in the practical part of the examination; and no part of the fees he may have paid for examination will be returned to him.

Punishment for breaking rules.

29. If a candidate leaves the room before answering any question which has been given to him, he cannot afterwards be permitted to answer it, but the examiners may substitute other data or another question.

Leaving examination-room.

30. (a) The examination of candidates for certificates of competency as engineers consists of four parts: Arithmetic, Drawing, Elementary questions and viva voce. When the number of marks obtained in arithmetic amounts to 28, that is, two-thirds of the maximum, the candidate passes in arithmetic.

Questions and answers.

(b) All applicants presenting themselves for examination for certificates of competency as engineers will be required to give written answers to ten questions selected from the list "Elementary Questions for the first Examinations of Engineers for Certificates of Competency." (Appendix B.) These questions are intended to furnish a record to some extent of the candidate's knowledge at the time of his examination, and also to induce the candidates to pay more attention to their handwriting and spelling.

31. The form, Appendix A, on which these answers will be written, contains also some questions as to the experience of the applicant, to be answered by him in writing.

32. Examiners may add to their viva voce questions on the practical management of steam-engines and boilers any of those contained in Appendix B.

33. If at the expiration of the time allowed the candidate has worked out correctly the whole of the questions set to him, and given satisfactory answers in the viva voce examination, he will be declared to have passed.

34. If at the expiration of the time allowed he has not worked out the whole of the questions set to him, but if the result of the viva voce examination, taken in connection with the answers to such of the questions as he has worked out, is sufficient to satisfy the examiners that the applicant is competent to take charge of engines, he will be declared to have passed.

35. In other cases he will be declared to have failed.

36. A report of the examination, and the examination papers will be forwarded to the Government on the prescribed form.

37. If the candidate passes, he will receive a formal note to that effect upon which the Government will issue the certificate to the candidate, whose testimonials, etc., will be returned at the same time.

Notification of having passed will be given to successful candidates.

Fees.

38. Candidates for examination, in making their application on form Exn. 1, will be required to pay the examination fees before any step is taken, whether by inquiring into their services or testing their qualifications, etc. No part of the fee will under any circumstances be returned to them; but should it be found that their service is not sufficient to entitle them to be examined, or that their testimonials are unsatisfactory, they will be allowed to present themselves for examination without paying any further fee, when they have fulfilled the requisite service, or are able to produce satisfactory testimonials, as the case may be.

39. The fee for examination must be paid to the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo. In any case in which a candidate offers money to any other officer, and in any place but in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, the candidate so offering money will be regarded as having committed an act of misconduct, and will be rejected and not allowed to be examined for 12 months.

40. If a candidate fails in his examinations, no part of the fee he has paid will be returned to him.

41. The fees are as follows :—

	Rs.
Second-class engine-drivers ...	4
First-class ditto	10

Failure.

42. If the applicant fails in the vivâ voce or practical part of the examination, he may not present himself for re-examination until he can produce proofs of three months' further service afloat. If he fails in arithmetic or drawing only, he may come up again at any time. Engine-drivers may be examined de novo after six months' active service as serang or principal tindal or second driver if the past examination showed that they might reasonably be expected to qualify.

General.

43. Certificates of competency as engineers and first and second-class engine-drivers shall be made out and issued in the forms hereunto annexed.

44. Every certificate of competency shall be made in duplicate, and one copy shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate and the other shall be kept and recovered by the Port Officer of Calcutta or Chittagong, or the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo.

APPENDIX C.

[See RULE 25(d)].

Reading the Water-Gauges.

(Engineers and Engine-drivers.)

Notwithstanding that the reading of the water-gauge is made a special feature in the examination of Engineers, many boiler casualties result from the Engineer of the watch either not understanding the construction of the water-gauge fittings or not satisfying himself by actual trial that the cocks, pipes, etc., are clear.

In one case, two furnace crowns came down in a steamer that was just starting on a voyage. The Engineers were satisfied that there was plenty of water in the boiler because the water-gauge showed full glass, and they called the attention of the Surveyor to this fact as being conclusive evidence that the casualty could not have resulted from shortness of water. On examination of the fittings, however, it was found that the cock between the boiler and the steam pipe leading to the gauge was shut, having been carelessly left in that position on the previous day when the mountings were overhauled for survey. Directly the cock was opened the water disappeared from the gauge glass, and the Second Engineer admitted that he had blown down the boiler in order to lower the water level, as the glass was full.

Many steamers have had their furnaces brought down at sea in a similar manner to the above through what the Engineers of the watch have called "false water in the glass," and which on examination has been found to result from the top communication being choked.

These casualties resulted from what, to say the least, was bad management, not false water.

Unless a candidate under examination is able to prove that he understands how to verify the indications of the water-gauge, he should not be passed in practical knowledge and, as failure in practical knowledge involves the candidate going to sea for another three months before being eligible for re-examination, the Examiner should explain to such candidate his error, after failing him, in order to prevent further casualties resulting from his want of knowledge on this subject.

The sketches, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Plate I. represent the usual methods of attaching water-gauge mountings to marine boilers. The important features in each gauge and the method of verifying its indications are dealt with separately in the following remarks:—

In this case the water-gauge cocks are attached direct to the boiler, and the accuracy of the gauge when the boiler is under steam can be tested as follows:—

First.—Let B remain open, then close cock D and open cock E, and if steam issues it proves that cock B and the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass are clear. If no steam or water issues, either cock B or the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass is choked and the gauge cannot act properly until the obstruction is removed.

Second.—Close cock B and open D and E, and if water issues, cock D is clear. If no water or steam issues, either cock D or the passage from the boiler through the lower fitting is choked and must be cleared before the gauge can act properly.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 2 ONLY.

In this case the gauge cocks are attached to a bent pipe of comparatively large diameter (at least 3 inches in the bore), the upper end of which communicates with the steam space, and the lower end with the water space of the boiler. Owing to the bore of the pipe being large it is not liable to become choked or stopped under the ordinary conditions of working. The water-gauge is, therefore, in practically the same condition as if it were attached direct to the boiler, as in Figure 1. This gauge, when at work, is tested in precisely the same manner as the one shown in Figure 1.

Screw plugs are inserted at P.P. and Q.Q., by the removal of which the apertures in the pipe can be cleared, if necessary, by the insertion of a wire or rod when steam is down.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 3 ONLY.

In this gauge there is an open communication from A to C through the column Y, and in order to "blow through the glass" it is only necessary to shut cocks D and B alternately keeping E open. But to "blow through the water-gauge," including the pipes H and I, it is necessary, after blowing through the glass as described above, to shut A and C alternately, at the same time keeping B, D and E open for such time as will ensure the complete discharge of the contents of the gauge and its connections. When B, D and C are clear and A choked the steam lodging in the glass and in the pipe I leading from column Y to A becomes condensed and the water flowing through C to take its place rises in column Y and in the glass to a level above that of the water in the boiler. In other words, the gauge shows a false level. If now E be opened and water is blown out, then on E being again closed the water in the gauge will rise higher than before and be still further misleading. On the other hand, when B, D and A are clear and C choked, the water, if any, in the glass is trapped and no longer rises and falls with the water in the boiler or with the motion of the vessel; it, however, slowly rises in the glass owing to the condensation of the steam in the upper part of the gauge until such time as E is opened when the whole of the water in the glass is blown out, and on E being closed the glass does not show any water notwithstanding that the water in the boiler may be at the proper level. When the test cocks T T T are attached to column Y, as shown in Figure 3, they cease to be reliable when either cock A or C or the pipe in connection therewith is choked, or nearly choked.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 4 ONLY.

Sometimes the water-gauge fittings are arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5, with no passage up the column, the central portion (N) of the column, being simply a pillar or connecting piece of any convenient section between the upper and lower portions to which the cocks B and D are attached.

By this arrangement double communications are obviated and there is no need for what is known as "double shut off" in testing the accuracy of the gauge. When, however, the gauges are constructed in this manner the cocks B and D are unreliable as test cocks in the event of there being no glass in the gauge. This feature should be carefully noted. Moreover, when in working condition the reduction of pressure in the glass which arises when E is opened causes the water in pipe H to rise above its normal level. This objectionable feature should also be noted.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 5 ONLY.

Sometimes there is a bend, L, in the steam pipe, I, leading from cock A to cock B. This has occasionally escaped observation when new boilers have been fitted on board ship. In most cases this bend arises from the pipe being led in an abnormal direction to escape other pipes, beams or fittings near the smoke-box. With such a bend the condensed steam collects in the pipe and falls to the bottom of the bend, and in time it completely fills the pipe from J to K. The steam from K down to the level of the water in the glass is thereby trapped and, as condensation proceeds, leads to a reduction of pressure in the pipe below that of the boiler and an equivalent rise of the water in the bend and also in the gauge glass. When the vessel is quiescent the water in the gauge glass increases in height until cock E is opened or until the pressure in the boiler is so much in excess of that in the lower part of pipe I, as to cause the water in the bend to be blown into the gauge glass. In either case instantaneous change to water level in the glass ensues.

In the ordinary course of working the phenomenon described above is more or less modified by the presence of air in the upper part of the gauge and by the rise and fall of the water in the boiler and gauge glass arising from the rolling or pitching motions of the vessel.

OTHER SPECIAL POINTS TO BE NOTED.

When the cocks A and C are omitted, as in Figure 2, it is owing to the bore of the stand pipe being sufficiently large to enable it to be regarded as part of the boiler. Such pipes require, however, to be examined and cleared at intervals by passing a rod through the holes provided for the purpose at P.P. and Q.Q.

Cocks at A and C are not necessary for the testing of gauges arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5. Examiners ought, however, to make sure that candidates are aware of the impossibility of testing the reliability of the indications of water-gauges arranged as in Figure 3 when the cocks A and C are absent and of the effect which the choking of cock A or C, or pipe H or I has on the indications of the test cocks T T T attached to column Y.

Probably more than half the steamers afloat are fitted with water-gauges as shown in Figures 3 and 4, and it is therefore specially important that Engineer candidates should thoroughly understand their construction, the principle on which they act, and the steps which must be taken to keep them in an efficient condition.

When fitting a gauge glass into its place it is specially important that it should not be placed so high as to prevent a clearing rod being inserted at G, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. This defect, especially if it occurs in a water-gauge attached to a boiler subject to priming, permits a rapid accumulation of scum around the top of the glass and results in the choking of the orifice leading from cock B to the gauge glass in each of the figures.

When a gauge glass is too short or is placed either too high or too low in the fittings, it is also liable to become choked by the packing material being forced over its ends by the glands whilst being screwed up.

The use of unsuitable or insecure internal pipes in connection either with the ordinary glass gauge cocks of the description shown in Figure 1, or with test cocks which are jointed to the boiler itself should also be carefully guarded against.

Boiler casualties have resulted from the cocks B and D having the parts wrongly placed as shown in Figure 6, Plate 2. In one case of that kind, the Engineer in testing the water-gauge omitted to see that the passages in the cocks B and D were clear when the handles were in their proper working position. This defect could easily have been discovered if proper attention had been paid to the condition of the cocks. A defect of this nature may be due to faulty construction originally, or to the handle of the cock having been overstrained, and the neck twisted, Whether the passages in the plugs are fair and clear can, however, be verified in a few minutes. As an illustration, the water cock D, Figure 6, Plate II, can be verified by blowing through E with B shut and then moving the handle of D to one side until it is just closed, and then to the other side until it is again just closed; the proper working position of the handle is about equally distant from each of the above positions. The other cocks can be verified in the same manner.

Plate 2.

Another serious casualty occurred through the handle of the cock A, Figure 3, having been twisted from its original position relatively to the orifice of the cock, resulting in the cock being shut when apparently open.

When a water-gauge, that is clear in all its parts, has been thoroughly blown through, the water in the glass rises above the level at which it formerly stood, immediately the drain cock E is closed, but if left undisturbed for a time it gradually falls to its former position. The amount of rise which occurs on these occasions depends chiefly on the temperature of the contents of the boiler and on the length of the pipes by which column Y is connected top and bottom to the boiler, but in cases where the gauge is of the description illustrated in Figures 3, 4 and 5, it amounts in high pressure boilers to about 4 inches, while the time occupied by the water in returning to its former level ranges from 30 to 40 minutes. The cause of this rise is twofold. namely, (a) the displacement of the comparatively cold water in pipe H by hotter, and proportionately lighter, water from the boiler, and (b) a slight condensation of the steam and a corresponding fractional reduction of pressure in pipe I. The cause of the gradual subsidence of the water in the glass to its former level is also of a dual character, namely, (a) the cooling of the water in pipe H, and (b) the diminution in the condensation of steam in pipe I owing to the collection therein of air released from the steam condensed.

These results will, however, be somewhat modified if the water in the boiler is of higher density than in pipe H, and this will nearly always be the case owing to the condensation of the steam in the glass and upper fittings of the water-gauge, causing the water in the lower part to be fresher than that in the boiler.

The Examiner should impress upon candidates the necessity for periodically blowing through the water-gauge on each boiler (no matter what the form may be) in a systematic and thorough manner, and, in cases where a boiler is fitted with two water-gauges, of keeping both in constant use; finally, he should further impress upon them the necessity for keeping the water-gauges well lighted, clean, and in all respects efficient.

He must be able to stat the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other.

2. In accordance with these clauses, a candidate for an Engineer's certificate is required to make a rough working drawing of the parts specified. An Engineer who has been some years in charge of marine engines and boilers ought to have familiarly in his mind the general construction of at least one set of engines and boilers, say, that set he was last with.

Fine drawing is not expected, and in the proportions of the parts a wide margin will be allowed; absurd dimensions will be failure in practical knowledge.

3. The drawing must, however, be practically a working drawing, giving a sufficient number of views to show the parts fully—sections, plans, or elevations—just as the candidate would require to be supplied to him if he had to make the parts represented to the design of another person.

4. A clear hand sketch showing the construction completely, and fully dimensioned, will be accepted if the candidate prefers this alternative.

5. A portion only of the parts specified may be accepted in place of the whole, if that portion is sufficient to show that the candidate has a good practical idea of the construction of the parts, and a fair notion of their general proportions or dimensions.

6. Candidates are cautioned not to put on paper what they have not fully considered, and deliberately intend to be understood, as evidence of what they know about the construction of any part required.

7. The statements given in by a candidate may be in themselves, apparently, of little importance, but, as sample material from which the extent of the candidate's knowledge of engines and boilers is to be inferred, every detail which is glaringly inconsistent with a sound knowledge of the use of the part, or in which an essential consideration has evidently been overlooked, is an important element in the description which the candidate is giving of his own qualifications.

8. The candidate is advised not to begin more than he can clearly finish in the time allowed. An important object in this part of the examination is to ascertain whether the candidate can be trusted to mark all necessary dimensions upon a sketch or a drawing. The test of this is, practically, the making of the part from the sketch without having to supply additional dimensions, and without measuring the drawing. To prove this ability the candidate must fully dimension the parts shown in his sketch or drawing, notwithstanding that the parts may be correctly drawn to scale. A drawing is fully dimensioned when no part of it is left to the option of the party who is to work to the drawing.

9. To prevent misunderstanding, however, when the candidate has been led into showing more of the details than he has time fully to finish, he should name, in the statement on the other side, the particular parts which he has fully dimensioned.

10. All dimensions should have lines and darts, to indicate distinctly the points between which the dimensions are given.

11. Beware of writing cross dimensions upon centre lines, or upon longitudinal dimension lines. This is not an order, but a recommendation.

12. The candidate is not expected to design anything; he has merely to sketch or draw something with which he is expected to be already familiar. At the same time he should call attention to any defect in the design of the article or apparatus. Omission to do so will imply want of practical knowledge.

13. Pencil in nothing after half-past 3; all the dimensions, the figures, and the darts must be inked in; employ the remaining time in examining the drawing and in inking in any figures which may have been before overlooked and in checking the dimensions.

14. Make sure that you will have sufficient room on the drawing sheet to show all the necessary views. You can have another sheet of drawing paper if necessary. All the paper used must be forwarded with the drawing.

8. Where a notice is returned under rule 6, the Certificate-officer shall, if the return under that rule has not been verified by the affidavit of the serving officer, and may, if it has been so verified, examine the serving officer on oath, or cause him to be so examined by another Certificate-officer, or, subject to any general order of the Collector, by an Assistant Collector, Deputy Collector or Sub-Deputy Collector, touching his proceedings, and may make such further inquiry in the matter as he thinks fit; and shall either declare that the notice has been duly served or order such service as he thinks fit.

ATTACHMENT OF MOVABLE PROPERTY, ETC.

Application for attachment of movable property in the possession of the certificate-debtor.

13. At the time of making an application for the attachment of movable property in the possession of the certificate-debtor, the certificate-holder shall declare whether the property is above or below Rs. 20 in value. If the property is declared to be above Rs. 20 in value, the certificate-holder shall pay the costs of issuing the proclamation of sale. If, however, the value of the property, having been declared to be Rs. 20 or under, should be found, as determined by rule 14, to exceed Rs. 20, the certificate-holder shall pay the costs of issuing the proclamation of sale immediately on receipt of notice of attachment.

Procedure for the attachment of movable property when its value is up to Rs. 20 or above.

14. When the attaching officer believes that the property attached does not exceed Rs. 20 in value, he shall inform the debtor or, in his absence, any present adult member of his family, that it will be sold by public auction at once without the issue of any proclamation. In case the certificate-holder or the certificate-debtor, or any person on his behalf, objects to this, the attaching officer shall convoke a panchayat of not less than three respectable adult male inhabitants of the neighbourhood, of whom ordinarily the headman of the village should be one, and shall require them to assess the value of the property. If they determine that it exceeds Rs. 20 in value, he shall deal with it according to the rules for the sale of movable property exceeding Rs. 20 in value, otherwise he shall forthwith proceed to sell it by auction, after giving such reasonable notice as the circumstances of the case admit of to intending purchasers.

Attachment of movable property (other than agricultural produce) in possession of certificate-debtor.

15. Where the property to be attached is movable property (other than agricultural produce) in the possession of the certificate-debtor, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the attaching officer shall keep the property in his own custody or in the custody of one of his subordinates, and shall be responsible for the due custody thereof:

Provided that, when the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay or when the expense of keeping it in custody is likely to exceed its value, the attaching officer may sell it at once.

Attachment of agricultural produce.

16. Where the property to be attached is agricultural produce, the attachment shall be made by affixing a copy of the warrant of attachment—

(a) where such produce is a growing crop—on the land on which such crop has grown, or

(b) where such produce has been cut or gathered—on the threshing floor or place for treading out grain or the like, or fodder-stack, on or in which it is deposited, and another copy on the outer door or on some other conspicuous part of the house in which the certificate-debtor ordinarily resides, or, with the leave of the Certificate-officer, on the outer door or on some other conspicuous part of the house in which he carries on business or personally works for gain, or in which he is known to have last resided or carried on business or personally worked for gain; and the produce shall thereupon be deemed to have passed into the possession of the Certificate-officer.

Provisions as to agricultural produce under attachment.

17. (1) Where agricultural produce is attached, the Certificate-officer shall make such arrangements for the custody thereof as he may deem sufficient, and, when the produce is a growing crop, shall have regard to the time at which it is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered.

(2) Subject to such conditions as may be imposed by the Certificate-officer in this behalf, either in the order of attachment or in any subsequent order, the certificate-debtor may tend, cut, gather and store the produce and do any other act necessary for maturing or preserving it; and, if the certificate-debtor fails to do all or any of such acts, the certificate-holder may, with the permission of the Certificate-officer and subject to the like conditions, do all or any of them either by himself or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and the costs incurred by the certificate-holder shall be recoverable from the certificate-debtor as if they were included in the certificate.

(3) Agricultural produce attached as a growing crop shall not be deemed to have ceased to be under attachment or to require re-attachment merely because it has been severed from the soil.

(4) Where an order for the attachment of a growing crop has been made at a considerable time before the crop is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered, the Certificate-officer may suspend the execution of the order for such time as he thinks fit, and may, in his discretion, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the crop pending the execution of the order of attachment.

(5) A growing crop which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be attached under this rule at any time less than twenty days before the time at which it is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered.

Attachment of debt, share, and other movable property not in possession of certificate-debtor.

18. (1) In the case of—

(a) a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument,

(b) a share in the capital of a Corporation, or

(c) other movable property not in the possession of the certificate-debtor, except property deposited in, or in the custody of, any Court, the attachment shall be made by a written order prohibiting,—

(i) in the case of the debt—the creditor from recovering the debt and the debtor from making payment thereof until the further order of the Certificate-officer;

(ii) in the case of the share—the person in whose name the share may be standing from transferring the same or receiving any dividend thereon;

(iii) in the case of the other movable property (except as aforesaid)—the person in possession of the same from giving it over to the certificate-debtor.

(2) A copy of such order shall be affixed on some conspicuous part of the office of the Certificate-officer, and another copy shall be sent, in the case of the debt, to the debtor, in the case of the share, to the proper officer of the Corporation, and, in the case of the other movable property (except as aforesaid), to the person in possession of the same.

(3) A debtor prohibited under clause (i) of sub-rule (1) may pay the amount of his debt to the Certificate-officer, and such payment shall discharge him as effectually as payment to the party entitled to receive the same.

Attachment of share in movables

19. Where the property to be attached consists of the share or interest of the certificate-debtor in movable property belonging to him and another as co-owners, the attachment shall be made by a notice to the certificate-debtor prohibiting him from transferring the share or interest or charging it in any way.

Attachment of salary or allowances of public officer or servant of Railway Company or Local Authority

20. (1) Where the property to be attached is the salary or allowances of a public officer or of a servant of a Railway Company or Local Authority, the Certificate-officer, whether the certificate-debtor or the disbursing officer is or is not within the local limits of the Certificate-officer's jurisdiction, may order that the amount shall be withheld from such salary or allowances, either in one payment or by monthly instalments as the Certificate-officer may direct; and, upon notice of the order to such officer as the Local Government may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, appoint in this behalf, the officer or other person whose duty it is to disburse such salary or allowances shall withhold and remit to the Certificate-officer the amount due under the order, or the monthly instalments, as the case may be.

(2) Where the attachable proportion of such salary or allowances is already being withheld and remitted to a Certificate-officer or to a Civil Court in pursuance of a previous and unsatisfied order of attachment, the officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf shall forthwith return the subsequent order to the Certificate-officer issuing it, with a full statement of all the particulars of the existing attachment.

(3) Every order made under this rule, unless it is returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (2), shall, without further notice or other process, bind the Government or the Railway Company or Local Authority, as the case may be; and the Government or the Railway Company or Local Authority, as the case may be, shall be liable for any sum paid in contravention of this rule.

Attachment of negotiable instruments.

21. Where the property is a negotiable instrument not deposited in a Court nor in the custody of a public officer, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the instrument shall be brought before the Certificate-officer and held subject to his orders.

Attachment of property in custody of Court or public officer.

22. Where the property to be attached is in the custody of any Court or public officer, the attachment shall be made by a notice to such Court or officer, requesting that such property, and any interest or dividend becoming payable thereon, may be held subject to the further orders of the Certificate-officer by whom the notice is issued :

Provided that, where such property is in the custody of a Court, any question of title or priority arising between the certificate-holder and any other person, not being the cetificate-debtor, claiming to be interested in such property by virtue of any assignment, attachment or otherwise, shall be determined by such Court.

Attachment of immovable property.

23. Where the property is immovable, no attachment need be made before sale.

Removal of attachment on satisfaction or cancellation of certificate

24. Where—

(a) the amount due, with costs and all charges and expenses resulting from the attachment of any property or incurred in order to a sale, are paid to the Certificate-officer, or the attachment shall be deemed to be withdrawn, and, in the case of immovable property, the withdrawal shall, if the certificate-debtor so desires, be proclaimed at his expense, and a copy of the proclamation shall be affixed in the manner prescribed by rule 47, sub-rule (1).

(b) the certificate is cance'led,

25. Under rule 15, the property seized will remain in the custody of the attaching officer or of one of his subordinates on his responsibility.

26. If no suitable place can be found in the village for the safe custody of the attached property, the attaching officer shall remove the property to the Court at the certificate-holder's expense. In the event of the certificate-holder failing to provide the necessary funds, the attachment shall be withdrawn.

List of property under attachment

27. Whenever attached property is kept at the place where it is attached, the officer shall forthwith report the fact to the Certificate-officer, and with his report shall forward an accurate list of the property seized, so that the Certificate-officer may thereon at once issue the proclamation of sale.

28. If the debtor shall give his consent in writing to the sale of the property without awaiting the expiry of the prescribed term, the officer shall receive the same and forward it without delay to the Certificate-officer for orders.

Custody of property under attachment, while in Court.

29. When property is removed to the Court, it shall be kept by the nazir on his own sole responsibility in such place as may be approved by the Certificate-officer. If the property cannot, from its nature or bulk, be conveniently kept in the Court premises, or in the personal custody of the nazir, he may, subject to approval by the Certificate-officer, make such arrangements for its safe custody under his own supervision as may be most convenient and economical and the Certificate-officer may fix the remuneration to be allowed to the persons, not being officers of the Court, in whose custody the property is kept.

Claim of any person other than the certificate-holder to the property under attachment.

30. When property remains at the place where it is attached in the custody of the attaching officer, and any person other than the certificate-debtor shall claim the same, or any part of it, the officer shall nevertheless, unless the certificate-holder desires to withdraw the attachment of the property so claimed, remain in possession, and shall direct the claimant to prefer his claim to the Certificate-officer.

31. If the certificate-holder shall withdraw an attachment, or if it be withdrawn under rule 26 or rule 33, the attaching officer shall inform the debtor, or in his absence, an adult member of his family, that the property is at his disposal.

In the absence of any person to take charge of it, or in case the officer shall have had notice of claim by a person other than the certificate-debtor, the officer shall, if the property has been moved from the premises in which it was seized, replace it where it was found at the time of seizure.

Feeding and tending of live-stock under attachment.

32. Whenever live-stock is kept at the place where it has been attached, the certificate-debtor shall be at liberty to undertake the due feeding and tending of it, under the supervision of the attaching officer; but the latter shall, if required by the certificate-holder, and on his paying for the same, at a rate to be fixed by the Certificate-officer, engage the services of as many persons as may be necessary for the safe custody of it.

Cost for feeding live-stock and expenses attending its removal to Court.

33. In the event of the certificate-debtor failing to feed attached live-stock, the officer shall call upon the certificate-holder either to pay for feeding it on the spot, or for the expenses attending its removal to the Court. If the certificate-holder shall fail to provide for either, the officer shall report the matter, without delay, to the Certificate-officer who may thereupon withdraw the attachment.

Responsibility of the nazir for safe custody and proper feeding.

34. When attached live-stock is brought to Court, the nazir shall be responsible for the safe custody and proper feeding of it so long as the attachment continues.

Responsibility of the nazir for the custody of live-stock.

36. If there be no pound available, or if, in the opinion of the Certificate-officer, it be inconvenient to lodge the attached live-stock in the pound, the nazir may keep it in his own premises, or he may entrust it to any person selected by himself and approved by the Certificate-officer. The nazir will in all cases remain responsible for the custody of the property.

Rates to be allowed for the custody and maintenance of various descriptions of live-stock.

37. The Certificate-officer shall, from time to time, fix the rates to be allowed for the custody and maintenance of the various descriptions of live-stock with reference to seasons and local circumstances. The Collector may make any alterations he deems fit in the rates so prescribed.

Fees to be charged where process of attachment of movable property is by actual seizure.

38. (1) Where process of attachment of movable property by actual seizure is issued, fees at the following rates shall be charged, and the officer deputed to attach such property shall be furnished with a certificate stating the period for which the fees in accordance with this rule have been paid.

	Rs.	A.	P.
(b) for each man necessary to ensure safe custody of property so attached, when such man is actually in possession, per diem ...	0	6	0

The daily fee (b) is to be paid at the time of obtaining the process for so many days as the Certificate-officer shall order, not being ordinarily less than fifteen days, and the number of days required for the coming and going of the attaching officer; but where that officer is not to be left in possession, then the daily fee is to be paid only for the time to be occupied by the officer going, effecting the attachment and returning. When the inventory filed by the certificate-holder shows the property to be of such small value that the expense of keeping it in custody may probably exceed the value, the Certificate-officer shall fix the daily fee with reference to the provisions of rule 15.

Provided that, if it appears that for any reason the number of days fixed by the Certificate-officer under this rule, and in respect of which fees have been paid, is likely to be exceeded and certificate-holder desires to maintain the attachment, the certificate-holder shall apply to the Certificate-officer to fix such further number of days as may be necessary and the additional fees in respect thereof shall be paid in the manner provided in sub-rule (3). If such additional fees be not paid within the period originally fixed and in respect of which fees have been paid, the attachment shall cease on the expiry of that period.

(3) The fees prescribed by this rule shall be payable in advance at the time when the petition for service or execution is presented, and shall be paid by means of Court-fee stamps affixed to the petition in addition to the stamps necessary for its own validity.

Provided that no such investigation shall be made where the Certificate-officer considers that the claim or objection was designedly or unnecessarily delayed.

Evidence to be adduced.

40. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that—

(a) (in the case of immovable property) at the date of the service of the notice under section 7, or in the possession of the certificate-debtor or of some person in trust for him or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, or that, being in the possession of the certificate-debtor at the said date, it was so in his possession, not on his own account or as his own property, but on account of or in trust for some other person, or partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person, the Certificate-officer shall make an order releasing the property, wholly or to such extent as he thinks fit, from attachment or sale.

(b) (in the case of movable property) at the date of the attachment,

Saving of suits to establish right to attached property.

VIII of 1885.

(4) Where property is divided into lots for the purpose of being sold separately, it shall not be necessary to make a separate proclamation for each lot, unless proper notice of the sale cannot, in the opinion of the Certificate-officer, otherwise be given.

Time of sale.

48. Save in the case of property of the kind described in the proviso to rule 15, no sale hereunder shall, without the consent in writing of the certificate-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immovable property, or of at least fifteen days in the case of movable property exceeding twenty rupees in value, calculated from the date on which a copy of a sale proclamation has been affixed in a conspicuous part of the office of the Certificate-officer:

NOTIFICATIONS.

No. 1091-W.—In continuation of the Notification by the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 1047W., dated the 11th December 1914, the following papers are published for general information :—

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE EUROPEAN CRISIS.

Correspondence and Statements in Parliament, together with an Introductory Narrative of Events.

INTRODUCTORY NARATTIVE OF EVENTS.

On the 23rd of June, 1914, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew of the Emperor of Austria, Heir to the Throne, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army, left Vienna to attend Army manœuvres in the Province of Bosnia. On Sunday, the 28th, he visited Sarajevo, the Capital of the province, and made a progress through the town accompanied by his wife, the Duchess of Hohenburg. While passing through the streets their automobile was fired on by an assassin. Both the Archduke and Duchess were killed.

No crime has ever aroused deeper or more general horror throughout Europe ; none has ever been less justified. Sympathy for Austria was universal. Both the Governments and the public opinion of Europe were ready to support her in any measures, however severe, which she might think it necessary to take for the punishment of the murderer and his accomplices.

It immediately appeared, from the reports of our representatives abroad, that the press and public opinion of Austria-Hungary attributed much of the responsibility for the crime to the Servian Government, which was said to have encouraged a revolutionary movement amongst the Serb populations of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

That there had for many years been a strong Serb nationalist movement in these two provinces there is no doubt. This movement in an earlier form had swept the provinces, then part of the Turkish Empire, into the insurrection against the Turkish Government in the seventies of last century, culminating in the war of 1877-78 between Russia and Turkey. It had continued when Austria took over the administration of the provinces under the treaty of Berlin in 1878. Austria then pledged her word to Turkey that her occupation should not "detract from the rights of sovereignty of His Majesty the Sultan over these provinces." Forty years later however, in 1908, she suddenly proclaimed their annexation to her Empire. On the 7th October of that year, the annexation was celebrated in Sarajevo by the firing of salutes and ringing of cathedral bells, amid scenes of official rejoicing and popular apathy. Servian nationalist feeling immediately asserted itself, and the Servian Government protested to the Powers against the annexation as a "deep injury done to the feelings, interests, and rights of the Servian people." Servia's attitude, coupled with the resentment felt by Russia and certain other Great Powers, nearly brought about a European war: but after six months of extreme tension she was induced to make a declaration abandoning her protest and promising to live on good terms with Austria. Her nationalist aspirations still continued, however, and were strengthened by her successes in the Balkan wars of 1912-13—successes which were compromised by Austria's opposition to her territorial expansion. As Servia grew, Austrian suspicion of her designs deepened.

In the light of this history the storm of anti-Servian feeling which swept Austria-Hungary after the Sarajevo murders is easily understood. It was a feeling based on patriotism and loyalty. Europe was disposed to excuse its exaggerations and to sympathise with its motives.

But the dangers to European peace which it involved were immediately evident from the reports which reached the Government in London. Anti-Serb riots took place at Sarajevo and Agram. The members of the Serb party in the Provincial Council of Croatia were assailed by their colleagues with cries of "Servian assassins." Mobs in Vienna threatened the Servian Legation. The Austrian press, almost without exception, used the most unbridled language, and called for the condign punishment of Servia. There were signs that the popular resentment was shared, and perhaps encouraged, by the Austrian Government. Both the British and also the German Government knew that the peace might be disturbed.

In view of these reports, it naturally became incumbent on disinterested Powers to exercise what influence they possessed in a direction which would reconcile justice with peace. Unfortunately, though the attitude of public opinion in Austria, and to a less degree, also in Germany, was plain, the intentions of the Austrian Government remained almost equally obscure. The Austrian Foreign Office maintained an attitude of reticence towards the British and Russian Ambassadors. On the 7th July the Government were careful to make a public announcement that a joint meeting of the Cabinets of Austria and Hungary, which had just taken place, was only concerned with the question of domestic measures to repress the Pan-Serb propaganda in Bosnia. On the 8th July the Minister-President of Hungary made, on the whole, a pacific speech in the Hungarian Parliament, defending the loyalty of the majority of the Serb subjects of the Empire. On the 11th July the Servian Minister at Vienna had no reason to anticipate a threatening communication from the Austrian Government, and as late as the 22nd July, the day before the Austrian ultimatum was delivered at Belgrade, the Minister-President of Hungary stated in Parliament that the situation did not warrant the opinion that a serious turn of events was necessary or even probable.

His Majesty's Government had therefore largely to fall back on conjecture. It was known that the situation might become serious, but it was also known that Servia had made professions of readiness to accept any demands compatible with the sovereignty of an independent State. It was known that the opinion of the Russian and French—and also of the German—Governments was that the Servian Government was not itself to blame for the crime, but that Servia must be ready to investigate and put an end to the propaganda which had apparently led to it, and which was said to have originated in part on Servian soil. Sir E. Grey advised Servia to show herself moderate and conciliatory. He promised the German Ambassador to use his influence with the Russian Government in the same direction. More could not be done, for no actual evidence had yet been furnished that Servian territory had in fact been made the base for revolutionary operations. It was only known that a court-martial had been set up at Sarajevo, the proceedings before which were secret. The Servian Government stated that they were only waiting for the Austrian Government to communicate the evidence thus collected before setting their own investigations on foot. The Servian Government also stated that both the assassins implicated were Austrian subjects, and that on a previous occasion the Austrian Government had informed the Servian Government, in reply to enquiries, that one of these men was harmless and was under their protection. It was remembered that Austria had tried on previous occasions to fasten guilt on the Servian Government by means of police evidence brought forward in Austrian courts, and had failed. It was therefore assumed on all sides that, before Austria took any action, she would disclose to the public her case against Servia. When Sir E. Grey said this to the German Ambassador on the 20th July, the latter replied that he certainly assumed that Austria would act upon some case that would be known; but, as a matter of fact, His Majesty's Government did not receive any statement of the evidence on which Austria had founded her ultimatum till the 7th August.

It was, therefore, necessary to wait. The situation was as clear as it could be made till Austria would consent to throw off her reticence. There was nothing doubtful in the general international situation, no incalculable element which Austria could not take into full consideration. Whatever she did, she would know accurately the consquences of her action. The Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente remained as they had always been. We had been quite recently assured that no new secret element had been introduced into the former, and Sir E. Grey had stated emphatically in Parliament on the 11th June that the latter had remained unchanged so far as we were concerned. Russia's interest in the Balkans was well known. As late as the 23rd May the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs had reaffirmed in the Duma the policy of the "Balkans for the Balkans," and it was known that any attack on a Balkan State by any great European Power would be regarded as a menace to that policy. If Servia was, as the Austrian Ambassador said to Sir E. Grey on the 29th July, "regarded as being in the Austrian sphere of influence;" if Servia was to be humiliated; then assuredly Russia could not remain indifferent. It was not a question of the policy of Russian statesmen at St. Petersburgh, but of the deep hereditary feeling for the Balkan populations bred in the Russian people by more than two centuries of development. These things had been, as Sir E. Grey said to Parliament in March 1913, in discussing the Balkan war, "a commonplace in European diplomacy in the past." They were the facts of the European situation, the products of years of development, tested and retested during the last decade. Patient work might change them, but the product of years could not be pushed aside in a day.

Yet two days were as much as Austria decided to allow for the task. On the 23rd July she showed her hand. She delivered an ultimatum at Belgrade and required an answer in forty-eight hours. She made ten demands, directed towards the elimination from Servian national life of everything which was hostile to Austria. These demands involved the suppression of newspapers and literature, the suppression of nationalist societies, a reorganisation of the Government schools, the dismissal of officers from the army, the participation of Austrian officials in judicial proceedings in Servia, the arrest of two specified men, the prevention of all traffic in arms across the frontier, a full explanation of anti-Austrian utterances and immediate notification of the enforcement of these measures. In addition, the Servian Government was to publish on the front page of the "Official Journal" a prescribed statement, which amounted to a full recantation of her alleged errors, and a promise of amendment. A very brief summary was annexed to the ultimatum, giving the bare findings of the secret trial at Sarajevo, with no corroborative evidence. No independent nation had ever been called on to accept a greater humiliation.

Between the delivery of this ultimatum and the declaration of war between Great Britain and Germany there was an interval of only twelve days. In the whirl of negotiations which now followed, there was no time to draw breath and ponder. At the outset, therefore, it may be well to explain definitely the British attitude towards the Austrian ultimatum.

Austria was under provocation. She had to complain of a dangerous popular movement against her government. What evidence she might have against the Servian Government no one in Europe then knew. Great Britain had no interest in the Balkans, except one. She desired the consolidation and progressive government of the Balkan States; she desired, in the words recently used by the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs before the Duma, that "the Balkan Governments should recognise that, in the matter of strengthening a State, the acquisition of territory is insufficient; the devotion and confidence of the new citizens must be enlisted." The dispute between Austria and Servia did not necessarily affect that interest; it was a dispute between two Governments with which Great Britain had nothing to do. Sir E. Grey, therefore, consistently stated that he had no concern in that dispute; that he had no title to intervene between Austria and Servia; that he would express no opinion on the merits of the ultimatum. But there was the other side. If the dispute affected the interests of Russia, then the peace of Europe was at stake; and from the first, Sir E. Grey told the Austrian Government that he did not see how Russia, interested as she was in Servia, could take any but a most serious view of such a formidable document as the ultimatum. The peace of Europe must be maintained, and it could only be maintained, as Mr. Asquith had said to Parliament in March 1913, in discussing the Balkan crisis, by a "spirit of forbearance, patience, and self-sacrifice,"—by a "loyal spirit of give and take on the part of the Great Powers directly concerned." It was as the agent of this spirit of conciliation alone that Great Britain intervened in the European crisis.

On the 23rd July the Austrian Ambassador told Sir E. Grey that an ultimatum was being handed to Servia. For the first time Sir E. Grey heard that "there would be something in the nature of a time-limit." He immediately expressed his grave alarm. Next morning the text of the ultimatum was handed to him, and he learnt that the time-limit was forty-eight hours. He confessed to the German Ambassador that, as no time had been left for deliberation, he felt helpless. There was no time to advise Russia or to influence Servia.

At this critical moment everything depended on Germany. As the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs said a little later, "the key of the situation was to be found in Berlin." What was Germany's attitude? Privately the German Minister for Foreign Affairs expressed his doubts as to the ultimatum; officially, the German Government called it "equitable and moderate," and said that they "desired urgently the localisation of the conflict." Everyone desired that, but it was no time for phrases. The same morning the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs had summoned the French and British Ambassadors in St. Petersburgh, had said that Austria's step meant imminent war, and had asked for the support of Great Britain and France. The French Ambassador had pledged the support of France, as was well known to be inevitable under the terms of her alliance. The next morning the Russian Government stated publicly that Russia could not remain indifferent to the Austro-Servian conflict. The next evening troops in Vienna had to be called out to guard the Russian Embassy from hostile crowds. "Localisation" was a good phrase, but we had to deal with facts. Austria had surprised Europe, and with surprise had come universal alarm.

During these forty-eight hours Great Britain made three attempts at peace. Before all things, the time-limit of the ultimatum had to be extended. Great Britain and Russia urged this at Vienna. Great Britain urged Germany to join in pressing the Austrian Government. All that Berlin consented to do was to "pass on" the message to Vienna.

Secondly, Sir E. Grey urged that Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy should work together at Vienna and St. Petersburgh in favour of conciliation. Italy assented; France assented; Russia declared herself ready; Germany said she had no objection, "if relations between Austria and Russia became threatening."

Thirdly, the Russian, French, and British representatives at Belgrade were instructed to advise Servia to go as far as possible to meet Austria.

But it was too late. The time-limit, which Austria would not extend, had expired; and after all Servia did not need advice. On the afternoon of Saturday, the 25th, she returned to Austria a reply which amounted to an acceptance of all Austria's demands, subject on certain points to the delays necessary for passing new laws and amending her Constitution, and subject to an explanation by Austria-Hungary of her precise wishes with regard to the participation of Austro-Hungarian officials in Servian judicial proceedings. The reply went far beyond anything which any Power—Germany not excepted—had ever thought probable. But the same day the British Ambassador at Vienna reported that the tone of the Austrian press left the impression that a settlement was not desired, and he later reported that the impression left on his mind was that the Austrian note was so drawn up as to make war inevitable. In spite of the conciliatory nature of Servia's reply the Austrian Minister left Belgrade the same evening, and Servia ordered a general mobilisation.

But an outline of the Servian reply had been communicated to Sir E. Grey an hour or two before it was delivered. He immediately expressed to Germany the hope that she would urge Austria to accept it. Berlin again contented itself with "passing on" the expression of Sir E. Grey's hope to Vienna through the German Ambassador there. The fate of the message so passed on may be guessed from the fact that the German Ambassador told the British Ambassador directly afterwards that Servia had only made a pretence of giving way, and that her concessions were all a sham.

During the next four days, 26th to 29th July, there was only one question before Europe—how could Russia and Austria be brought to an agreement? It was evident that Russia did not believe that Austria would, or could, stop short of the absolute ruin of the Servian State, if she once actually attacked it. Here again, the question was not merely one of Government policy; the popular sentiment of two great nations was involved. Austria indeed professed, no doubt with perfect honesty, that she would take no territory from Servia. But the Austrian Ministers were being borne along on a wave of violent popular enthusiasm. They said themselves that they would be swept from power if they did not follow the popular desire for a conflict with Servia. Would this popular enthusiasm be content with any mere punitive expedition against the enemy? Surely not. Russia, therefore, openly said that she would have to intervence if Servia were attacked; but she promised Austria on the 27th that she would use all her influence at Belgrade to induce the Servian Government to give satisfaction to Austria, and only asked Austria to delay hostilities in order to give time for deliberation. Austria refused, saying it was too late. She declared war on Servia on the 28th. Russia ordered a partial mobilisation on the 29th.

But meanwhile Sir Edward Grey has proposed that the German, Italian, and French Ambassadors should meet him in London, to discuss the best means towards a settlement. Italy and France at once accepted; Russia said she was ready to stand aside; but Germany refused. She did not like what she called "a court of arbitration," and proposed instead direct negotiations between Russia and Austria. These negotiations actually began, as we have seen in the last paragraph, but they were cut short by the Austrian declaration of war against Servia. Austria then apparently considered that the moment for such negotiations was passed. She had, moreover, refused to discuss the Servian reply in any way, and it was difficult to see, after that refusal, what Russia could negotiate with her about. Russia therefore fell back on Sir E. Grey's proposal for a conference of Ambassadors in London, which she had originally expressed her readiness to accept. The Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs urged Sir E. Grey to induce Germany to indicate in what way she would consent to work for a settlement.

This brings the narrative of events down to Wednesday, the 29th July. Russia was mobilising partially in her southern provinces. Austrian troops were bombarding Belgrade. But, on the other hand, better news was coming from Berlin. Up to the 28th at least, both Germany and Austria had seemed unwilling to admit that the situation was really serious; Russia, it was said, was unprepared, and France was in no condition to go to war. Germany had said, in reply to Sir E. Grey's repeated advances, that she did not like to make representations to Vienna for fear of stiffening Austria's attitude. But on the evening of the 28th the German Chancellor assured the British Ambassador that he was trying to mediate at Vienna and St. Petersburgh. On the strength of this assurance and similar assurances made by the German Ambassador in London on the 29th, Sir E. Grey telegraphed to Berlin once more, in accordance with the request of the Russian Government, urging the German Government, if they did not like the idea of the Ambassadors' conference in the form he had suggested it, to suggest any other form they pleased. "Mediation," he said "was ready to come into operation by any method that Germany thought possible if only Germany would press the button in the interests of peace." The telegram was despatched at about 4 o'clock on the evening of the 29th.

This appeal was followed almost immediately by a strange response. About midnight a telegram arrived at the Foreign Office from His Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin. The German Chancellor had sent for him late at night. He had asked if Great Britain would promise to remain neutral in a war, provided Germany did not touch Holland and took nothing from France but her colonies. He refused to give any undertaking that Germany would not invade Belgium, but he promised that if Belgium remained passive, no territory would be taken from her.

Sir E. Grey's answer was a peremptory refusal, but he added an exhortation and an offer. The business of Europe was to work for peace. That was the only question with which Great Britain was concerned. If Germany would prove by her actions now that she desired peace, Great Britain would warmly welcome a future agreement with her whereby the whole weight of the two nations would be thrown permanently into the scale of peace in years to come.

For the next two days peace proposals and negotiations continued, some initiated and all supported by Great Britain. There remained a spark of hope. But from the British point of view the face of Europe henceforward was changed. On the 29th July the only conflict in progress had been on the frontiers of Servia and Austria; the only fear of further war had lain in the relations of Russia and Austria. Germany's declarations were pacific; Russia had said she desired nothing but a period of peace to allow for her internal development; France would not fight except to help her ally. There had seemed no insuperable difficulty in keeping the peace; it was only a question of allaying the mutual suspicions between Vienna and St. Petersburgh. But now a new element of danger had been introduced. Great Britain now knew that Germany was contemplating an attack on France. She knew more. The independence of the Low Countries had for centuries been considered as one of the strongest means of securing the peace of Europe. Their position and the nature of the country rendered them the natural battlefield of Northern Europe. If it was made impossible for a Great Power to invade them, war would become increasingly difficult and dangerous. With the growth of the idea of a fixed system of international law founded on treaties, the neutrality of Belgium had been devised as a permanent safeguard to this end. As such, it had been consecrated by two international treaties signed by all the Powers, and recognised by two generations of statesmen. Now, when the peace of Europe was our one object, it was found that Germany was preparing to tear out the main rivet of that peace.

Germany's position must be understood. She had fulfilled her treaty obligations in the past; her action now was not wanton. Belgium was of supreme military importance in a war with France; if such a war occurred, it would be one of life and death; Germany feared that, if she did not occupy Belgium, France might do so. In face of this suspicion, there was only one thing to do. The neutrality of Belgium had not been devised as a pretext for wars, but to prevent the outbreak of wars. The Powers must reaffirm Belgian neutrality in order to prevent the war now threatened. The British Government, therefore, on Friday, the 31st July, asked the German and French Governments for an engagement to respect Belgium's neutrality, and the Belgian Government for an engagement to uphold it. France gave the necessary engagement the same day; Belgium gave it the day after; Germany returned no reply. Henceforward there could be no doubt of German designs.

Meanwhile, on the 30th and 31st negotiations continued between Russia and Austria. On the 29th, Germany had suggested to Austria that she should stop as soon as her troops had occupied Belgrade. Late on the same night Russia offered to stop all military preparations, if Austria would recognise that the conflict with Servia had become a question of general European interest, and would eliminate from her ultimatum the points which involved a violation of the sovereignty of Servia. As the result of this offer, Russia was able to inform His Majesty's Government on the 31st that Austria had at last agreed to do the very thing she had refused to do in the first days of the crisis, namely, to discuss the whole question of her ultimatum to Servia. Russia asked the British Government to assume the direction of these discussions. For a few hours there seemed to be a hope of peace.

At this moment, on Friday, the 31st, Germany suddenly despatched an ultimatum to Russia, demanding that she should countermand her mobilisation within twelve hours. Every allowance must be made for the natural nervousness which, as history has repeatedly shown, overtakes nations when mobilisation is under way. All that can be said is that, according to the information in the possession of His Majesty's Government, mobilisation had not at the time proceeded as far in Russia as in Germany, although general mobilisation was not publicly proclaimed in Germany till the next day, the 1st August. France also began to mobilise on that day. The German Secretary of State refused to discuss a last proposal from Sir E. Grey for joint action with Germany, France, and Italy until Russia's reply should be received, and in the afternoon the German Ambassador at St. Petersburgh presented a declaration of war. Yet on this same day, Saturday, the 1st, Russia assured Great Britain that she would on no account commence hostilities if the Germans did not cross the frontier and France declared that her troops would be kept 6 miles from her frontier so as to prevent a collision. This was the situation when every early on Sunday morning, the 2nd August, German troops invaded Luxemburg, a small independent State whose neutrality had been guaranteed by all the Powers with the same object as the similar guarantee of Belgium. The die was cast. War between Germany, Russia, and France had become inevitable.

Only one question now remained for this country. His Majesty's Government failed in their attempts to secure a general peace. Should they now remain neutral? The grounds on which that question was decided are clearly set forth in the statements of Sir E. Grey and Mr. Asquith in Parliament, which are contained in this volume,* and no additional explanations are needed here. But one fact may be emphasised. From the 24th July, when Russia first asked for British support, to the 2nd August, when a conditional promise of naval assistance was given to France, Sir E. Grey had consistently declined to give any promise of support to either of our present allies. He maintained that the position of Great Britain was that of a disinteresed party whose influence for peace at Berlin and Vienna would be enhanced by the knowledge that we were not committed absolutely to either side in the existing dispute. He refused to believe that the best road to European peace lay through a show of force. We took no mobilisation measures except to keep our fleet assembled, and we confined ourselves to indicating clearly to Austria on the 27th July and to Germany on the 29th July, that we could not engage to remain neutral if a European conflagration took place. We gave no pledge to our present allies, but to Germany we gave three times—on the 30th July, the 31st July, and the 1st August—a clear warning of the effect which would be produced on our attitude and on the sentiment of the British people by a violation of the neutrality of Belgium.

After Germany's declaration of war on Russia on the afternoon of the 1st, the Tsar telegraphed to His Majesty the King as follows: "In this solemn hour I wish to assure you once more that I have done all in my power to avert war." It is right to say that His Majesty's Government believe this to be a true statement of the attitude both of Russia and France throughout this crisis. On the other hand, with every wish to be fair and just it will be admitted that the response of Germany and Austria gave no evidence of a sincere desire to save the peace of Europe.

SPEECHES IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

(1) STATEMENT BY SIR EDWARD GREY IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS. AUGUST 3, 1914.

LAST week I stated that we were working for peace not only for this country, but to preserve the peace of Europe. To-day events move so rapidly that it is exceedingly difficult to state with technical accuracy the actual state of affairs, but it is clear that the peace of Europe cannot be preserved, Russia and Germany, at any rate, have declared war upon each other.

Before I proceed to state the position of His Majesty's Government, I would like to clear the ground so that, before I come to state to the House what our attitude is with regard to the present crisis, the House may know exactly under what obligations the Government is, or the House can be said to be, in coming to a decision on the matter. First of all let me say, very shortly, that we have consistently worked with a single mind, with all the earnestness in our power, to preserve peace. The House may be satisfied on that point. We have always done it. During these last years, as far as His Majesty's Government are concerned, we would have no difficulty in proving that we have done so. Throughout the Balkan crisis, by general admission, we worked for peace. The co-operation of the Great Powers of Europe was successful in working for peace in the Balkan crisis. It is true that some of the Powers had great difficulty in adjusting their points of view. It took much time and labour and discussion before they could settle their differences, but peace was secured, because peace was their main object, and they were willing to give time and trouble rather than accentuate differences rapidly.

In the present crisis, it has not been possible to secure the peace of Europe; because there has been little time, and there has been a disposition—at any rate in some quarters on which I will not dwell—to force things rapidly to an issue, at any rate to the great risk of peace, and, as we now know, the result of that is that the policy of peace as far as the Great Powers generally are concerned, is in danger. I do not want to dwell on that, and to comment on it, and to say where the blame seems to us to lie, which Powers were most in favour of peace, which were most disposed to risk or endanger peace, because I would like the House to approach this crisis in which we are now from the point of view of British interests, British honour, and British obligations, free from all passion as to why peace has not been preserved.

We shall publish papers as soon as we can regarding what took place last week when we were working for peace; and when those papers are published I have no doubt that to every human being they will make it clear how strenuous and genuine and whole-hearted our efforts for peace were, and that they will enable people to form their own judgment as to what forces were at work which operated against peace.

I come first, now, to the question of British obligations. I have assured the House—and the Prime Minister has assured the House more than once—that if any crisis such as this arose we should come before the House of Commons and be able to say to the House that it was free to decide what the British attitude should be, that we would have no secret engagement which we should spring upon the House and tell the House that because we had entered into that engagement there was an obligation of honour upon the country. I will deal with that point to clear the ground first.

There has been in Europe two diplomatic groups, the Triple Alliance and what came to be called the Triple Entente, for some years past. The Triple Entente was not an alliance—it was a diplomatic group. The House will remember that in 1908 there was a crisis—also a Balkan crisis—originating in the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Russian Minister, M. Isvolsky, came to London, or happened to come to London, because his visit was planned before the crisis broke out. I told him definitely then, this being a Balkan crisis, a Balkan affair, I did not consider that public opinion in this country would justify us in promising to give anything more than diplomatic support. More was never asked from us, more was never given, and more was never promised.

In this present crisis, up till yesterday, we have also given no promise of anything more than diplomatic support—up till yesterday no promise of more than diplomatic support. Now I must make this question of obligation clear to the House. I must go back to the first Moroccan crisis of 1906. That was the time of the Algeciras Conference, and it came at a time of very great difficulty to His Majesty's Government when a general election was in progress, and Ministers were scattered over the country, and I—spending three days a week in my constituency and three days at the Foreign Office—was asked the question whether, if that crisis developed into war between France and Germany, we would give armed support. I said then that I could promise nothing to any foreign Power unless it was subsequently to receive the whole-hearted support of public opinion here if the occasion arose. I said, in my opinion, if war was forced upon France then on the question of Morocco—a question which had just been the subject of agreement between this country and France, an agreement exceedingly popular on both sides—that if out of that agreement war was forced on France at that time, in my view public opinion in this country would have rallied to the material support of France.

I gave no promise, but I expressed that opinion during the crisis, as far as I remember almost in the same words, to the French Ambassador and the German Ambassador at the time. I made no promise, and I used no threats; but I expressed that opinion. That position was accepted by the French Government, but they said to me at the time, and I think very reasonably, "If you think it possible that the public opinion of Great Britain might, should a sudden crisis arise, justify you in giving to France the armed support which you cannot promise in advance, you will not be able to give that support, even if you wish to give it, when the time comes, unless some conversations have already taken place between naval and military experts." There was force in that. I agreed to it, and authorised those conversations to take place, but on the distinct understanding that nothing which passed between military or naval experts should bind either Government or restrict in any way their freedom to make a decision as to whether or not they would give that support when the time arose.

As I have told the House, upon that occasion a general election was in prospect; I had to take the responsibility of doing that without the Cabinet. It could not be summoned. An answer had to be given. I consulted Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Prime Minister; I consulted, I remember, Lord Haldane, who was then Secretary of State for War; and the present Prime Minister, who was then Chancellor of the Exchequer. That was the most I could do, and they authorised that on the distinct understanding that it left the hands of the Government free whenever the crisis arose. The fact that conversations between military and naval experts took place was later on—I think much later on, because that crisis passed, and the thing ceased to be of importance—but later on it was brought to the knowledge of the Cabinet.

The Agadir crisis came—another Morocco crisis—and throughout that I took precisely the same line that had been taken in 1906. But subsequently, in 1912, after discussion and consideration in the Cabinet, it was decided that we ought to have a definite understanding in writing, which was to be only in the form of an unofficial letter, that these conversations which took place were not binding upon the freedom of either Government; and on the 22nd November 1912 I wrote to the French Ambassador the letter which I will now read to the House, and I received from him a letter in similar terms in reply. The letter which I have to read to the House is this, and it will be known to the public now as the record that, whatever took place between military and naval experts, they were not binding engagements upon the Government :—

"My dear Ambassador,

"From time to time in recent years the French and British naval and military experts have consulted together. It has always been understood that such consultation does not restrict the freedom of either Government to decide at any future time whether or not to assist the other by armed force. We have agreed that consultation between experts is not, and ought not to be regarded as an engagement that commits either Government to action in a contingency that has not yet arisen and may never arise. The disposition, for instance, of the French and British fleets respectively at the present moment is not based upon an engagement to co-operate in war.

"You have, however, pointed out that, if either Government had grave reason to expect an unprovoked attack by a third Power, it might become essential to know whether it could in that event depend upon the armed assistance of the other.

"I agree that, if either Government had grave reason to expect an unprovoked attack by a third Power, or something that threatened the general peace, it should immediately discuss with the other whether both Governments should act together to prevent aggression and to preserve peace, and, if so, what measures they would be prepared to take in common."

Lord Charles Beresford.—What is the date of that?

Sir E. Grey.—The 22nd November 1912. That is the starting point for the Government with regard to the present crisis. I think it makes it clear that what the Prime Minister and I said to the House of Commons was perfectly justified, and that, as regards our freedom to decide in a crisis what our line should be, whether we should intervene or whether we should abstain, the Government remained perfectly free, and, a fortiori, the House of Commons remains perfectly free. That I say to clear the ground from the point of view of obligation. I think it was due to prove our good faith to the House of Commons that I should give that full information to the House now, and say what I think is obvious from the letter I have just read, that we do not construe anything which has previously taken place in our diplomatic relations with other Powers in this matter as restricting the freedom of the Government to decide what attitude they should take now, or restrict the freedom of the House of Commons to decide what their attitude should be.

Well, Sir, I will go further, and I will say this: The situation in the present crisis is not precisely the same as it was in the Morocco question. In the Morocco question it was primarily a dispute which concerned France—a dispute which concerned France and France primarily—a dispute, as it seemed to us, affecting France out of an agreement subsisting between us and France, and published to the whole world, in which we engaged to give France diplomatic support. No doubt we were pledged to give nothing but diplomatic support; we were, at any rate, pledged by a definite public agreement to stand with France diplomatically in that question.

The present crisis has originated differently. It has not originated with regard to Morocco. It has not originated as regards anything with which we had a special agreement with France; it has not originated with anything which primarily concerned France. It has originated in a dispute between Austria and Servia. I can say this with the most absolute confidence—no Government and no country has less desire to be involved in war over a dispute with Austria and Servia than the Government and the country of France. They are involved in it because of their obligation of honour under a definite alliance with Russia. Well, it is only fair to say to the House that that obligation of honour cannot apply in the same way to us. We are not parties to the Franco-Russian Alliance. We do not even know the terms of that alliance. So far I have, I think, faithfully and completely cleared the ground with regard to the question of obligation.

I now come to what we think the situation requires of us. For many years we have had a long-standing friendship with France. I remember well the feeling in the House—and my own feeling—for I spoke on the subject, I think, when the late Government made their agreement with France—the warm and cordial feeling resulting from the fact that these two nations, who had had perpetual differences in the past, had cleared these differences away; I remember saying, I think, that it seemed to me that some benign influence had been at work to produce the cordial atmosphere that had made that possible. But how far that friendship entails obligation—it has been a friendship between the nations and ratified by the nations—how far that entails an obligation, let every man look into his own heart, and his own feelings, and construe the extent of the obligation for himself. I construe it myself as I feel it, but I do not wish to urge upon anyone else more than their feelings dictate as to what they should feel about the obligation. The House, individually and collectively, may judge for itself. I speak my personal view, and I have given the House my own feeling in the matter.

The French fleet is now in the Mediterranean, and the northern and western coasts of France are absolutely undefended. The French fleet being concentrated in the Mediterranean, the situation is very different from what it used to be, because the friendship which has grown up between the two countries has given them a sense of security that there was nothing to be feared from us.

The French coasts are absolutely undefended. The French fleet is in the Mediterranean, and has for some years been concentrated there because of the feeling of confidence and friendship which has existed between the two countries. My own feeling is that if a foreign fleet, engaged in a war which France had not sought, and in which she had not been the aggressor, came down the English Channel and bombarded and battered the undefended coasts of France, we could not stand side, and see this going on practically within sight of our eyes, with our arms folded, looking on dispassionately, doing nothing. I believe that would be the feeling of this country. There are times when one feels that if these circumstances actually did arise, it would be a feeling which would spread with irresistible force throughout the land.

But I also want to look at the matter without sentiment, and from the point of view of British interests, and it is on that that I am going to base and justify what I am presently going to say to the House. If you say nothing at this moment, what is France to do with her fleet in the Mediterranean? If she leaves it there, with no statement from us as to what we will do, she leaves her northern and western coasts absolutely undefended, at the mercy of a German fleet coming down the Channel to do as it pleases in a war which is a war of life and death between them. If we say nothing, it may be that the French fleet is withdrawn from the Mediterranean. We are in the presence of a European conflagration; can anybody set limits to the consequences that may arise out of it? Let us assume that to-day we stand aside in an attitude of neutrality, saying, "No, we cannot undertake and engage to help either party in this conflict." Let us suppose the French fleet is withdrawn from the Mediterranean; and let us assume that the consequences—which are already tremendous in what has happened in Europe even to countries which are at peace—in fact, equally whether countries are at peace or at war—let us assume that out of that come consequences unforeseen, which make it necessary at a sudden moment that, in defence of vital British interests, we should go to war; and let us assume—which is quite possible—that Italy, who is now neutral—because, as I understand, she considers that this war is an aggressive war, and the Triple Alliance being a defensive alliance her obligation did not arise—let us assume that consequences which are not yet foreseen and which perfectly legitimately consulting her own interests, make Italy depart from her attitude of neutrality at a time when we are forced in defence of vital British interests ourselves to fight—what then will be the position in the Mediterranean? It might be that at some critical moment those consequences would be forced upon us because our trade routes in the Mediterranean might be vital to this country.

Nobody can say that in the course of the next few weeks there is any particular trade route, the keeping open of which may not be vital to this country. What will be our position then? We have not kept a fleet in the Mediterranean which is equal to dealing alone with a combination of other fleets in the Mediterranean. It would be the very moment when we could not detach more ships to the Mediterranean, and we might have exposed this country from our negative attitude at the present moment to the most appalling risk. I say that from the point of view of British interests. We feel strongly that France was entitled to know—and to know at once—whether or not in the event of attack upon her unprotected northern and western coasts she could depend upon British support. In that emergency, and in these compelling circumstances, yesterday afternoon I gave the French Ambassador the following statement:—

> "I am authorised to give an assurance that if the German fleet comes into the Channel or through the North Sea to undertake hostile operations against the French coasts or shipping, the British fleet will give all the protection in its power. This assurance is, of course, subject to the policy of His Majesty's Government receiving the support of Parliament, and must not be taken as binding His Majesty's Government to take any action until the above contingency of action by the German fleet takes place."

I read that to the House, not as a declaration of war on our part, not as entailing immediate aggressive action on our part, but as binding us to take aggressive action should that contingency arise. Things move very hurriedly from hour to hour. Fresh news comes in, and I cannot give this in any very formal way; but I understand that the German Government would be prepared, if we would pledge ourselves to neutrality, to agree that its fleet would not attack the northern coast of France. I have only heard that shortly before I came to the House, but it is far too narrow an engagement for us. And, Sir, there is the more serious consideration—becoming more serious every hour—there is the question of the neutrality of Belgium.

I shall have to put before the House at some length what is our position in regard to Belgium. The governing factor is the treaty of 1839, but this is a treaty with a history—a history accumulated since. In 1870, when there was war between France and Germany, the question of the neutrality of Belgium arose, and various things were said. Amongst other things, Prince Bismarck gave an assurance to Belgium that—confirming his verbal assurance, he gave in writing a declaration which he said was superfluous in reference to the treaty in existence—that the German Confederation and its allies would respect the neutrality of Belgium, it being always understood that that neutrality would be respected by the other belligerent powers. That is valuable as a recognition in 1870 on the part of Germany of the sacredness of these treaty rights.

What was our own attitude? The people who laid down the attitude of the British Government were Lord Granville in the House of Lords and Mr Gladstone in the House of Commons. Lord Granville on the 8th August 1870, used these words. He said:—

> "We might have explained to the country and to foreign nations, that we could not think this country was bound either morally or internationally, or that its interests were concerned in the maintenance of the neutrality of Belgium; though this course might have had some conveniences, though it might have been easy to adhere to it, though it might have saved us from some immediate danger, it is a course which Her Majesty's Government thought it impossible to adopt in the name of the country with any due regard to the country's honour or to the country's interest."

Mr. Gladstone spoke as follows two days later:—

> "There is, I admit, the obligation of the treaty. It is not necessary, nor would time permit me, to enter into the complicated question of the nature of the obligations of that treaty; but I am not able to subscribe to the doctrine of those who have held in this House what plainly amounts to an assertion, that the simple fact of the existence of a guarantee is binding on every party to it, irrespectively altogether of the particular position in which it may find itself at the time when the occasion for acting on the guarantee arises. The great authorities upon foreign policy to whom I have been accustomed to listen, such as Lord Aberdeen and Lord Palmerston, never to my knowledge took that rigid and, if I may venture to say so, that impracticable view of the guarantee. The circumstance, that there is already an existing guarantee in force, is, of necessity, an important fact, and a weighty element in the case, to which we are bound to give full and ample consideration. There is also this further conderation, the force of which we must all feel most deeply, and that is, the common interests against the unmeasured aggrandisement of any Power whatever."

The treaty is an old treaty—1830—and that was the view taken of it in 1870. It was one of those treaties which are founded. not only on consideration for Belgium, which benefits under the treaty, but in the interests of those who guarantee the neutrality of Belgium. The honour and interests are, at least, as strong to-day as in 1870, and we cannot take a more narrow view or a less serious view of our obligations and of the importance of those obligations, than was taken by Mr. Gladstone's Government in 1870.

I will read to the House what took place last week on this subject. When mobilisation was beginning, I knew that this question must be a most important element in our policy—a most important subject for the House of Commons. I telegraphed at the same time in similar terms to both Paris and Berlin to say that it was essential for us to know whether the French and German Governments respectively were prepared to undertake an engagement to respect the neutrality of Belgium. These are the replies. I got from the French Government this reply :—

"The French Government are resolved to respect the neutrality of Belgium, and it would only be in the event of some other Power violating that neutrality that France might find herself under the necessity, in order to assure the defence of her security, to act otherwise. This assurance has been given several times. The President of the Republic spoke of it to the King of the Belgians, and the French Minister at Brussels has spontaneously renewed the assurance to the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs to-day."

From the German Government the reply was :—

"The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs could not possibly give an answer before consulting the Emperor and the Imperial Chancellor."

Sir Edward Goschen to whom I had said it was important to have an answer soon, said he hoped the answer would not be too long delayed. The German Minister for Foreign Affairs then gave Sir Edward Goschen to understand that he rather doubted whether they could answer at all, as any reply they might give could not fail, in the event of war, to have the undesirable effect of disclosing, to a certain extent, part of their plan of campaign. I telegraphed at the same time to Brussels to the Belgian Government, and I got the following reply from Sir Francis Villiers :—

"Belgium expects and desires that other Powers will observe and uphold her neutrality, which she intends to maintain to the utmost of her power. In so informing me, Minister for Foreign Affairs said, that in the event of the violation of the neutrality of their territory they believed that they were in a position to defend themselves against intrusion. The relations between Belgium and her neighbours were excellent, and there was no reason to suspect their intentions; but he thought it well, nevertheless. to be prepared against emergencies."

It now appears from the news I have received to-day—which has come quite recently, and I am not yet quite sure how far it has reached me in an accurate form—that an ultimatum has been given to Belgium by Germany, the object of which was to offer Belgium friendly relations with Germany on condition that she would facilitate the passage of German troops through Belgium. Well, Sir, until one has these things absolutely definitely, up to the last moment, I do not wish to say all that one would say if one were in a position to give the House full, complete, and absolute information upon the point. We were sounded in the course of last week as to whether, if a guarantee were given that, after the war, Belgium integrity would be preserved, that would content us. We replied that we could not bargain away whatever interests or obligations we had in Belgium neutrality.

Shortly before I reached the House I was informed that the following telegram had been received from the King of the Belgians by our King—King George :—

> "Remembering the numerous proofs of your Majesty's friendship and that of your predecessors and the friendly attitude of England in 1870, and the proof of friendship she has just given us again, I make a supreme appeal to the diplomatic intervention of your Majesty's Government to safeguard the integrity of Belgium."

Diplomatic intervention took place last week on our part. What can diplomatic intervention do now? We have great and vital interests in the independence—and integrity is the least part—of Belgium. If Belgium is compelled to submit to allow her neutrality to be violated, of course the situation is clear. Even if by agreement she admitted the violation of her neutrality, it is clear she could only do so under duress. The smaller States in that region of Europe ask but one thing. Their one desire is that they should be left alone and independent. The one thing they fear is, I think, not so much that their integrity but that their independence should be interfered with. If in this war which is before Europe the neutrality of one of those countries is violated, if the troops of one of the combatants violate its neutrality and no action be taken to resent it, at the end of the war, whatever the integrity may be, the independence will be gone.

I have one further quotation from Mr. Gladstone as to what he thought about the independence of Belgium. It will be found in "Hansard," volume 203, p. 1787. I have not had time to read the whole speech and verify the context, but the thing seems to me so clear that no context could make any difference to the meaning of it. Mr. Gladstone said :—

> "We have an interest in the independence of Belgium which is wider than that which we may have in the literal operation of the guarantee. It is found in the answer to the question whether, under the circumstances of the case, this country, endowed as it is with influence and power, would quietly stand by and witness the perpetration of the direst crime that ever stained the pages of history, and thus become participators in the sin."

No, Sir, if it be the case that there has been anything in the nature of an ultimatum to Belgium, asking her to compromise or violate her neutrality, whatever may have been offered to her in return, her independence is gone if that holds. If her independence goes, the independence of Holland will follow. I ask the House from the point of view of British interests, to consider what may be at stake. If France is beaten in a struggle of life and death, beaten to her knees, loses her position as a great Power, becomes subordinate to the will and power of one greater than herself—consequences which I do not anticipate, because I am sure that France has the power to defend herself with all the energy and ability and patriotism which she has shown so often—still, if that were to happen, and if Belgium fell under the same dominating influence, and then Holland, and then Denmark, then would not Mr. Gladstone's words come true, that just opposite to us there would be a common interest against the unmeasured aggrandisement of any Power?

It may be said I suppose, that we might stand aside, husband our strength, and that, whatever happened in the course of this war, at the end of it intervene with effect to put things right, and to adjust them to our own point of view. If, in a crisis like this, we run away from those obligations of honour and interest as regards the Belgian treaty, I doubt whether, whatever material force we might have at the end, it would be of very much value in face of the respect that we should have lost. And do not believe, whether a great Power stands outside this war or not, it is going to be in a position at the end of it to exert its superior strength. For us, with a powerful fleet, which we believe able to protect our commerce, to protect our shores, and to protect our interests, if we are engaged in war, we shall suffer but litle more than we shall suffer if we stand aside.

We are going to suffer, I am afraid, terribly in this war, whether we are in it or whether we stand aside. Foreign trade is going to stop, not because the trade routes are closed, but because there is no trade at the other end. Continental nations engaged in war—all their populations, all their energies, all their wealth, engaged in a desperate struggle—they cannot carry on the trade with us that they are carrying on in times of peace, whether we are parties to the war or whether we are not. I do not believe for a moment, that at the end of this war, even if we stood aside and remained aside, we should be in a position, a material position, to use our force decisively to undo what had happened in the course of the war, to prevent the whole of the West of Europe opposite to us—if that had been the result of the war—falling under the domination of a single power, and I am quite sure that our moral position would be such as to have lost us all respect. I can only say that I have put the question of Belgium somewhat hypothetically, because I am not yet sure of all the facts, but, if the facts turn out to be as they have reached us at present, it is quite clear that there is an obligation on this country to do its utmost to prevent the consequences to which those facts will lead if they are undisputed.

I have read to the House the only engagements that we have yet taken definitely with regard to the use of force. I think it is due to the House to say that we have taken no engagement yet with regard to sending an expeditionary armed force out of the country. Mobilisation of the fleet has taken place; mobilisation of the army is taking place; but we have as yet taken no engagement, because I feel that—in the case of a European conflagration such as this, unprecedented, with our enormous responsibilities in India and other parts of the Empire, or in countries in British occupation, with all the unknown factors—we must take very carefully into consideration the use which we make of sending an expeditionary force out of the country until we know how we stand. One thing I would say.

The one bright spot in the whole of this terrible situation is Ireland. The general feeling throughout Ireland—and I would like this to be clearly understood abroad—does not make the Irish question a consideration which we feel we have now to take into account. I have told the House how far we have at present gone in commitments and the conditions which influence our policy, and I have put to the House and dwelt at length upon how vital is the condition of the neutrality of Belgium.

What other policy is there before the House? There is but one way in which the Government could make certain at the present moment of keeping outside this war, and that would be that it should immediately issue a proclamation of unconditional neutrality. We cannot do that. We have made the commitment to France that I have read to the House which prevents us doing that. We have got the consideration of Belgium which prevents us also from any unconditional neutrality, and, without these conditions absolutely satisfied and satisfactory, we are bound not to shrink from proceeding to the use of all the forces in our power. If we did take that line by saying, "We will have nothing whatever to do with this matter" under no conditions—the Belgium treaty obligations, the possible position in the Mediterranean, with damage to British interests, and what may happen to France from our failure to support France—if we were to say that all those things mattered nothing, were as nothing, and to say we would stand aside, we should, I believe, sacrifice our respect and good name and reputation before the world, and should not escape the most serious and grave economic consequences.

My object has been to explain the view of the Government, and to place before the House the issue and the choice. I do not for a moment conceal, after what I have said, and after the information, incomplete as it is, that I have given to the House with regard to Belgium, that we must be prepared, and we are prepared, for the consequences of having to use all the strength we have at any moment—we know not how soon—to defend ourselves and to take our part. We know, if the facts all be as I have stated them, though I have announced no intending aggressive action on our part, no final decision to resort to force at a moment's notice, until we know the whole of the case, that the use of it may be forced upon us. As far as the forces of the Crown are concerned, we are ready. I believe the Prime Minister and my right hon. friend the First Lord of the Admiralty have no doubt whatever that the readiness and the efficiency of those forces were never at a higher mark than they are to-day, and never was there a time when confidence was more justified in the power of the navy to protect our commerce and to protect our shores. The thought is with us always of the suffering and misery entailed, from which no country in Europe will escape by abstention, and from which no neutrality will save us. The amount of harm that can be done by an enemy ship to our trade is infinitesimal, compared with the amount of harm that must be done by the economic condition that is caused on the Continent.

The most awful responsibility is resting upon the Government in deciding what to advise the House of Commons to do. We have disclosed our mind to the House of Commons. We have disclosed the issue, the information which we have, and made clear to the House, I trust, that we are prepared to face that situation, and that should it develop, as probably it may develop, we will face it. We worked for peace up to the last moment, and beyond the last moment. How hard, how persistently, and how earnestly we strove for peace last week the House will see from the papers that will be before it.

But that is over, as far as the peace of Europe is concerned. We are now face to face with a situation and all the consequences which it may yet have to unfold. We believe we shall have the support of the House at large in proceeding to whatever the consequences may be and whatever measures may be forced upon us by the development of facts or action taken by others. I believe the country, so quickly has the situation been forced upon it, has not had time to realise the issue. It perhaps is still thinking of the quarrel between Austria and Servia, and not the complications of this matter which have grown out of the quarrel between Austria and Servia. Russia and Germany we know are at war. We do not yet know officially that Austria, the ally whom Germany is to support, is yet at war with Russia. We know that a good deal has been happening on the French frontier. We do not know that the German Ambassador has left Paris.

The situation has developed so rapidly that technically, as regards the condition of the war, it is most difficult to describe what has actually happened. I wanted to bring out the underlying issues which would affect our own conduct, and our own policy, and to put them clearly. I have put the vital facts before the House, and if, as seems not improbable, we are forced, and rapidly forced, to take our stand upon those issues, them I believe, when the country realises what is at stake, what the real issues are, the magnitude of the impending dangers in the West of Europe, which I have endeavoured to describe to the House, we shall be supported throughout, not only by the House of Commons, but by the determination, the resolution, the courage, and the endurance of the whole country.

(2) FURTHER STATEMENT MADE BY SIR EDWARD GREY IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, AUGUST 3, 1914.

GERMANY AND BELGIUM.

I want to give the House some information which I have received, and which was not in my possession when I made my statement this afternoon. It is information I have received from the Belgian Legation in London, and is to the following effect:—

> "Germany sent yesterday evening at 7 o'clock a note proposing to Belgium friendly neutrality, covering free passage on Belgian territory, and promising maintenance of independence of the kingdom and possession at the conclusion of peace, and threatening, in case of refusal, to treat Belgium as an enemy. A time-limit of twelve hours was fixed for the reply. The Belgians have answered that an attack on their neutrality would be a flagrant violation of the rights of nations, and that to accept the German proposal would be to sacrifice the honour of a nation. Conscious of its duty, Belgium is firmly resolved to repel aggression by all possible means."

Of course, I can only say that the Government are prepared to take into grave consideration the information which it has received. I make no further comment upon it.

(3) STATEMENT BY THE PRIME MINISTER IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, AUGUST 4, 1914.

Mr. Bonar Law.—I wish to ask the Prime Minister whether he has any statement that he can now make to the House?

The Prime Minister (Mr. Asquith).—In conformity with the statement of policy made here by my right hon. friend the Foreign Secretary yesterday, a telegram was early this morning sent by him to our Ambassador in Berlin. It was to this effect:—

> "The King of the Belgians has made an appeal to His Majesty the King for diplomatic intervention on behalf of Belgium. His Majesty's Government are also informed that the German Government has delivered to the Belgian Government a note proposing friendly neutrality entailing free passage through Belgian territory, and promising to maintain the independence and integrity of the Kingdom and its possessions at the conclusion of peace, threatening in case of refusal to treat Belgium as an enemy. An answer was requested within twelve hours. We also understand that Belgium has categorically refused this as a flagrant violation of the law of nations. His Majesty's Government are bound to protest against this violation of a treaty to which Germany is a party in common with themselves, and must request an assurance that the demand made upon Belgium may not be proceeded with, and that her neutrality will be respected by Germany. You should ask for an immediate reply."

We received this morning from our Minister at Brussels the following telegram:—

> "German Minister has this morning addressed note to the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs stating that, as Belgian Government have declined the well-intended proposals submitted to them by the Imperial Government, the latter will, deeply to their regret, be compelled to carry out, if necessary by force of arms, the measures considered indispensable in view of the French menaces."

Simultaneously—almost immediately afterwards—we received from the Belgian Legation here in London the following telegram:—

> "General staff announces that territory has been violated at Gemmenich (near Aix-la-Chapelle)."

Subsequent information tended to show that the German force has penetrated still further into Belgian territory. We also received this morning from the German Ambassador here the telegram sent to him by the German Foreign Secretary, and communicated by the Ambassador to us. It is in these terms:—

> "Please dispel any mistrust that may subsist on the part of the British Government with regard to our intentions by repeating most positively formal assurance that, even in the case of armed conflict with Belgium, Germany will, under no pretence whatever, annex Belgian territory. Sincerity of this declaration is borne out by fact that we solemnly pledged our word to Holland strictly to respect her neutrality. It is obvious that we could not profitably annex Belgic territory without making at the same time territorial acquisitions at expense of Holland. Please impress upon Sir E. Grey that German army could not be exposed to French attack across Belgium, which was planned according to absolutely unimpeachable information. Germany had consequently to disregard Belgian neutrality, it being for her a question of life or death to prevent French advance."

I have to add this on behalf of His Majesty's Government: We cannot regard this as in any sense a satisfactory communication. We have, in reply to it, repeated the request we made last week to the German Government, that they should give us the same assurance in regard to Belgian neutrality as was given to us and to Belgium by France last week. We have asked that a reply to that request and a satisfactory answer to the telegram of this morning—which I have read to the House—should be given before midnight.

(4) STATEMENT BY THE PRIME MINISTER IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, AUGUST 5, 1914.

Mr. Bonar Law.—May I ask the Prime Minister if he has any information he can give us to-day ?

The Prime Minister.—Our Ambassador at Berlin received his passports at 7 o'clock last evening and since 11 o'clock last night a state of war has existed between Germany and ourselves.

We have received from our Minister at Brussels the following telegram :—

"I have just received from Minister for Foreign Affairs"
—that is the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs—

"a note of which the following is a literal translation :—

"'Belgian Government regret to have to inform His Majesty's Government that this morning armed forces of Germany penetrated into Belgian territory in violation of engagements assumed by treaty.

"'Belgian Government are further resolved to resist by all means in their power.

"'Belgium appeals to Great Britain and France and Russia to co-operate, as guarantors, in defence of her territory.

"'There would be concerted and common action with the object of resisting the forcible measures employed by Germany against Belgium, and at the same time of guarding the maintenance for future of the independence and integrity of Belgium.

"'Belgium is happy to be able to declare that she will assume defence of her fortified places.'"

We have also received to-day from the French Ambassador here the following telegram received by the French Government from the French Minister at Brussels :—

"The Chef du Cabinet of the Belgian Ministry of War has asked the French military attaché to prepare at once for the co-operation and contact of French troops with the Belgian army pending the results of the appeal to the guaranteeing Powers now being made. Orders have therefore been given to Belgian provincial Governors not to regard movements of French troops as a violation of the frontier."

This is all the information I am at the moment able to give to the House, but I take the opportunity of giving notice that to-morrow, in Committee of Supply, I shall move a vote of credit of 100,000,000*l.*

(5) STATEMENT BY THE PRIME MINISTER IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, AUGUST 6, 1914.

Motion made, and Question proposed, "That a sum, not exceeding £100,000,000 be granted to His Majesty, beyond the ordinary grants of Parliament, towards defraying expenses that may be incurred during the year ending March 31st, 1915, for all measures which may be taken for the security of the country, for the conduct of Naval and Military operations, for assisting the food supply, for promoting the continuance of trade, industry and business communications, whether by means of insurance or indemnity against risk, or otherwise for the relief of distress, and generally for all expenses arising out of the existence of a state of war."

The Prime Minister (Mr. Asquith).—In asking the House to agree to the resolution which Mr. Speaker has just read from the Chair, I do not propose, because I do not think it is in any way necessary, to traverse the ground again which was covered by my right hon. friend the Foreign Secretary two or three nights ago. He stated—and I do not think any of the statements he made are capable of answer and certainly have not yet been answered—the grounds upon which, with the utmost reluctance and with infinite regret, His Majesty's Government have been compelled to put this country in a state of war with what, for many years and indeed generations past, has been a friendly Power. But, Sir, the papers which have since been presented to Parliament, and which are now in the hands of hon. Members will, I think, show how strenuous, how unremitting, how persistent, even when the last glimmer of hope seemed to have faded away, were the efforts of my right hon. friend to secure for Europe an honourable and a lasting peace. Everyone knows, in the great crisis which occurred last year in the East of Europe, it was largely, if not mainly, by the acknowledgment of all Europe, due to the steps taken by my right hon. friend that the area of the conflict was limited, and that, so far as the great Powers are concerned, peace was maintained. If his efforts upon this occasion have, unhappily, been less successful, I am certain that this House and the country and I will add posterity and history will accord to him what is, after all, the best tribute that can be paid to any statesman: that, never derogating for an instant or by an inch from the honour and interests of his own country, he has striven, as few men have striven, to maintian and preserve the greatest interest of all countries—universal peace. These papers which are now in the hands of hon. Members show something more than that. They show what were the terms which were offered to us in exchange for our neutrality. I trust that not only the Members of this House, but all our fellow-subjects everywhere will read the communications, will read, learn and mark the communications which passed only a week ago to-day between Berlin and London in this matter. The terms by which it was sought to buy our neutrality are contained in the communication made by the German Chancellor to Sir Edward Goschen on the 29th July, No. 85 of the published Paper.* I think I must refer to them for a moment. After referring to the state of things as between Austria and Russia, Sir Edward Goschen goes on:—

> "He then proceeded to make the following strong bid for British neutrality. He said that it was clear, so far as he was able to judge the main principle which governed British policy, that Great Britain would never stand by and allow France to be crushed in any conflict there might be. That, however, was not the object at which Germany aimed. Provided that neutrality of Great Britain were certain, every assurance would be given to the British Government that the Imperial Government"——

Let the House observe these words—

> "aimed at no territorial acquisition at the expense of France should they prove victorious in any war that might ensue."

Sir Edward Goschen proceeded to put a very pertinent question:—

> "I questioned His Excellency about the French Colonies"——

What are the French colonies? They mean every part of the dominions and possessions of France outside the geographical area of Europe—

> "and he said that he was unable to give a similar undertaking in that respect."

Let me come to what, in my mind, personally, has always been the crucial and almost the governing consideration, namely, the position of the small States:—

> "As regards Holland, however, His Excellency said that so long as Germany's adversaries respected the integrity and neutrality of the Netherlands, Germany was ready to give His Majesty's Government an assurance that she would do likewise."

* See Part II, No. 85, page 64.

Then we come to Belgium:—

> "It depended upon the action of France what operations Germany might be forced to enter upon in Belgium, but, when the war was over, Belgian integrity would be respected if she had not sided against Germany."

Let the House observe the distinction between those two cases. In regard to Holland it was not only independence and integrity but also neutrality; but in regard to Belgium there was no mention of neutrality at all, nothing but an assurance that after the war came to an end the integrity of Belgium would be respected. Then His Excellency added:—

> "Ever since he had been Chancellor the object of his policy had been to bring about an understanding with England. He trusted that these assurances"—— the assurances I have read out to the House—

> "might form the basis of that understanding which he so much desired."

What does that amount to? Let me just ask the House. I do so, not with the object of inflaming passion, certainly not with the object of exciting feeling against Germany, but I do so to vindicate and make clear the position of the British Government in this matter. What did that proposal amount to? In the first place, it meant this: That behind the back of France—they were not made a party to these communications—we should have given, if we had assented to that, a free license to Germany to annex, in the event of a successful war, the whole of the extra-European dominions and possessions of France. What did it mean as regards Belgium? When she addressed, as she has addressed in these last few days, her moving appeal to us to fulfil our solemn guarantee of her neutrality, what reply should we have given? What reply should we have given to that Belgian appeal? We should have been obliged to say that, without her knowledge, we had bartered away to the Power threatening her our obligation to keep our plighted word. The House has read, and the country has read, of course, in the last few hours, the most pathetic appeal addressed by the King of Belgium, and I do not envy the man who can read that appeal with an unmoved heart. Belgians are fighting and losing their lives. What would have been the position of Great Britain to-day in the face of that spectacle, if we had assented to this infamous proposal? Yes, and what are we to get in return for the betrayal of our friends and the dishonour of our obligations? What are we to get in return? A promise—nothing more; a promise as to what Germany would do in certain eventualities; a promise, be it observed—I am sorry to have to say it, but it must be put upon record—given by a Power which was at that very moment announcing its intention to violate its own treaty and inviting us to do the same. I can only say, if we had dallied or temporised, we, as a Government, should have covered ourselves with dishonour, and we should have betrayed the interests of this country, of which we are trustees. I am glad, and I think the country will be glad, to turn to the reply which my right hon. friend made, and of which I will read to the House two of the more salient passages. This document, No. 101 of my Paper,* puts on record a week ago the attitude of the British Government, and, as I believe, of the British people. My right hon. friend says:—

> "His Majesty's Government cannot for a moment entertain the Chancellor's proposal that they should bind themselves to neutrality on such terms. What he asks us in effect is to engage to stand by while French Colonies are taken if France is beaten, so long as Germany does not take French territory as distinct from the Colonies. From the material point of view"——

My right hon. friend, as he always does, used very temperate language:—

> "such a proposal is unacceptable, for France, without further territory in Europe being taken from her, could be so crushed as to lose her position as a Great Power, and become subordinate to German policy."

* See Part II, No. 101, page 77

That is the material aspect. But he proceeded :—

> "Altogether, apart from that, it would be a disgrace for us to make this bargain with Germany at the expense of France, a disgrace from which the good name of this country would never recover. The Chancellor also in effect asks us to bargain away whatever obligation or interest we have as regards the neutrality of Belgium. We could not entertain that bargain either."

He then says :—

> "We must preserve our full freedom to act, as circumstances may seem to us to require."

And he added, I think, in sentences which the House will appreciate :—

> "You should . . . add most earnestly that the one way of maintaining the good relations between England and Germany is that they should continue to work together to preserve the peace of Europe. . . . For that object this Government will work in that way with all sincerity and good-will.
> "If the peace of Europe can be preserved and the present crisis safely passed, my own endeavour will be to promote some arrangement to which Germany could be a party, by which she could be assured that no aggressive or hostile policy would be pursued against her or her allies by France, Russia, and ourselves, jointly or separately. I have desired this and worked for it "—

The statement was never more true :—

> "as far as I could, through the last Balkan crisis and Germany having a corresponding object, our relations sensibly improved. The idea has hitherto been too Utopian to form the subject of definite proposals, but if this present crisis, so much more acute than any that Europe has gone through for generations, be safely passed, I am hopeful that the relief and reaction which will follow may make possible some more definite rapprochement between the Powers than has been possible hitherto."

That document, in my opinion, states clearly, in temperate and convincing language, the attitude of this Government. Can any one who reads it fail to appreciate the tone of obvious sincerity and earnestness which underlies it; can any one honestly doubt that the Government of this country in spite of great provocation—and I regard the proposals made to us as proposals which we might have thrown aside without consideration and almost without answer—can any one doubt that in spite of great provocation the right hon. Gentleman, who had already earned the title—and no one ever more deserved it—of Peace Maker of Europe, persisted to the very last moment of the last hour in that beneficent but unhappily frustrated purpose? I am entitled to say, and I do so on behalf of this country—I speak not for a party, I speak for the country as a whole—that we made every effort any Government could possibly make for peace. But this war has been forced upon us. What is it we are fighting for? Every one knows, and no one knows, better than the Government, the terrible incalculable suffering, economic, social, personal and political, which war, and especially a war between the Great Powers of the world, must entail. There is no man amongst us sitting upon this bench in these trying days—more trying perhaps than any body of statesmen for a hundred years have had to pass through, there is not a man amongst us who has not, during the whole of that time, had clearly before his vision the almost unequalled suffering which war, even in a just cause, must bring about, not only to the peoples who are for the moment living in this country and in the other countries of the world, but to posterity and to the whole prospects of European civilisation. Every step we took we took with that vision before our eyes, and with a sense of responsibility which it is impossible to describe. Unhappily, if—in spite of all our efforts to keep the peace, and with that full and overpowering consciousness of the result if the issue be decided in favour of war—we have, nevertheless, thought it to be the duty as well as the interest of this country to go to war, the House may be well assured it was because we believe, and I am certain the country will believe, we are unsheathing our sword in a just cause.

If I am asked what we are fighting for, I reply in two sentences. In the first place to fulfil a solemn international obligation, an obligation which, if it had been entered into between private persons in the ordinary concerns of life, would have been regarded as an obligation not only of law but of honour, which no self-respecting man could possibly have repudiated. I say secondly, we are fighting to vindicate the principle which, in these days when force, material force, sometimes seems to be the dominant influence and factor in the development of mankind, we are fighting to vindicate the principle that small nationalities are not to be crushed, in defiance of international good faith, by the arbitrary will of a strong and overmastering Power. I do not believe any nation ever entered into a great controversy—and this is one of the greatest history will ever know—with a clearer conscience and stronger conviction that it is fighting not for aggression, not for the maintenance even of its own selfish interest, but that it is fighting in defence of principles, the maintenance of which is vital to the civilisation of the world. With a full conviction, not only of the wisdom and justice but of the obligations which lay upon us to challenge this great issue, we are entering into the struggle. Let us now make sure that all the resources, not only of this United Kingdom, but of the vast Empire of which it is the centre, shall be thrown into the scale, and it is that that object may be adequately secured, that I am now about to ask this Committee—to make the very unusual demand upon it—to give the Government a Vote of Credit of 100,000,000*l*. I am not going, and I am sure the Committee do not wish it, into the technical distinctions between Votes of Credit and Supplementary Estimates and all the rarities and refinements which arise in that connection. There is a much higher point of view than that. If it were necessary, I could justify, upon purely technical grounds, the course we propose to adopt, but I am not going to do so, because I think it would be foreign to the temper and disposition of the Committee. There is one thing to which I do call attention, that is, the Title and Heading of the Bill. As a rule, in the past, Votes of this kind have been taken simply for naval and military operations, but we have thought it right to ask the Committee to give us its confidence in the extension of the traditional area of Votes of Credit so that this money, which we are asking them to allow us to expend, may be applied not only for strictly naval and military operations, but to assist the food supplies, promote the continuance of trade, industry, business, and communications—whether by means of insurance or indemnity against risk or otherwise—for the relief of distress, and generally for all expenses arising out of the existence of a state of war. I believe the Committee will agree with us that it was wise to extend the area of the Vote of Credit so as to include all these various matters. It gives the Government a free hand. Of course, the Treasury will account for it; and any expenditure that takes place will be subject to the approval of the House. I think it would be a great pity—in fact, a great disaster—if, in a crisis of this magnitude, we were not enabled to make provision—far more needed now than it was under the simpler conditions that prevailed in the old days—for all the various ramifications and developments of expenditure which the existence of a state of war between the great Powers of Europe must entail on any one of them.

I am asking also in my character of Secretary of State for War—a position which I held until this morning—for a Supplementary Estimate for men for the Army. Perhaps the Committee will allow me for a moment just to say on that personal matter that I took upon myself the office of Secretary of State for War under conditions, upon which I need not go back but which are fresh in the minds of everyone, in the hope and with the object that the condition of things in the Army, which all of us deplored, might speedily be brought to an end and complete confidence re-established. I believe that is the case; in fact, I know it to be. There is no more loyal and united body, no body in which the spirit and habit of discipline are more deeply ingrained and cherished than in the British Army. Glad as I should have been to continue the work of that office, and I would have done so under normal conditions, it would not be fair to the Army, it would not be just to the country, that any Minister should divide his attention between that Department and another, still less that the First Minister of the Crown, who has to look into the affairs of all departments and who is ultimately responsible for the whole policy of the Cabinet, should give, as he could only give, perfunctory attention to the affairs of our Army in a great war. I am very glad to say that a very distinguished soldier and administrator, in the person of Lord Kitchener, with that great public spirit and patriotism that everyone would expect from him, at my request stepped into the breach. Lord Kitchener, as everyone knows, is not a politician. His association with the Government as a Member of the Cabient for this purpose must not be taken as in any way identifying him with any set of political opinions. He has, at a great public emergency, responded to a great public call, and I am certain he will have with him, in the discharge of one of the most arduous tasks that has ever fallen upon a Minister, the complete confidence of all parties and all opinions.

I am asking on his behalf for the Army power to increase the number of men of all ranks, in addition to the number already voted, by no less than 500,000. I am certain the Committee will not refuse its sanction, for we are encouraged to ask for it not only by our own sense of the gravity and the necessities of the case, but by the knowledge that India is prepared to send us certainly two Divisions, and that every one of our self-governing Dominions, spontaneously and unasked, has already tendered to the utmost limits of their possibilities, both in men and in money every help they can afford to the Empire in a moment of need. Sir, the Mother Country must set the example, while she responds with gratitude and affection to those filial overtures from the outlying members of her family.

Sir, I will say no more. This is not an occasion for controversial discussion. In all that I have said, I believe I have not gone, either in the statement of our case or in my general description of the provision we think it necessary to make, beyond the strict bounds of truth. It is not my purpose—it is not the purpose of any patriotic man—to inflame feeling, to indulge in rhetoric, to excite international animosities. The occasion is far too grave for that. We have a great duty to perform, we have a great trust to fulfil, and confidently we believe that Parliament and the country will enable us to do it.

No. 1032-W.—In continuation of the notification by the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 1091-W., dated the 17th December 1914, the following papers having been presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of His Majesty are published for general information :—

DESPATCHES FROM HIS MAJESTY'S AMBASSADOR AT BERLIN RESPECTING AN OFFICIAL GERMAN ORGANIZATION FOR INFLUENCING THE PRESS OF OTHER COUNTRIES.

No. 1.

Sir E. Goschen to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received March 2.)

Berlin, February 27, 1914.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith a report on the establishment, under Government control, of a powerful secret association for the purpose of influencing the foreign press in the interest of the German export trade and of the spread of German influence generally.

I have, etc.,

W. E. GOSCHEN.

Enclosure 1 in No. 1.

Report.

For some time past a variety of schemes had been ventilated in the press with the object of improving German prestige abroad. It was said that in certain foreign parts Germany was being persistently and wrongfully abused, that she could obtain no fair hearing because the press of those distant countries was in hands hostile to any German enterprise, and because the telegraphic agencies serving those countries were equally biassed. An "Association for World-Commerce" was to have remedied this evil by a persistent pro-German propaganda in the countries most bitterly complained of. It was hoped that the necessary funds could have been raised by contributions from all the trading and industrial societies interested in the German export trade, and, in view of the supreme importance to Germany of her export trade, it was intended that agents of the Association should be sent and stationed abroad to assist the exporting industries by timely advice and an active policy generally, such as private individuals could pursue more effectively than officials.

The opportunity for realising this scheme seemed to offer itself under the following circumstances. A plan was being prepared to start a German-American Economic Society. Similar societies with an application to other countries already exist—e.g., a German-Argentine Society, a German-Canadian Society, a German-Russian Society, etc. The foundation of a German-American Society had been advocated in connection with the revision of the American tariff which gave German industries new chances of an intensified export to the United States. As was natural in any matters dealing with German-American affairs, M. Ballin, of the Hamburg-America Line, was approached to take the matter in hand. He consented. Under his inspiration the idea of a German-American society was abandoned and the idea of a World Society was substituted. A preliminary meeting was held at which the various German-foreign societies were represented; there were present also representatives of the "Central Association of German Industrials," and of its great rival, the "Federation of Industrials," as well as of most of the leading industrial firms. Internal dissensions, however, soon appeared and several important members sent in their resignations.

The details of the foundation were to have been settled at a meeting convened for the 26th February; to-day the whole scheme stands prorogued sine die. If it is ever realised its plan will have to be considerably altered. In the meantime the original plan of the German-American Society has been revived. This society is, in fact, to be constituted in Berlin early in March in the form originally intended.

It would seem strange had M. Ballin so readily accepted defeat. The explanation lies in the fact that, at the request of very highly placed persons, his interest has been transferred to another more delicate and more or less secret organization, devised to undertake those duties of M. Ballin's would-be "Weltverein" which concerned the German reputation abroad.

A short time ago, a meeting, of which the secret has been well kept, was convened in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, of which Dr. Hamann, the notorious head of the Press Bureau of the German Foreign Office, was the originator and at which the Foreign Secretary himself was present. The meeting was attended by members of the leading industrial concerns of this country: the North German Lloyd, the Hamburg-America Company, the Deutsche Bank, the Disconto Gesellschaft, the Allgemeine Electricitats-gesellschaft, Siemens and Halske, the Schuckert Works, Krupp, the Cruson Works, etc. They formed a private company with the purpose of "furthering the German industrial prestige abroad"—a conveniently vague purpose. The company will be financed by private subscriptions and by a Government grant. The sum at first suggested as a necessary revenue from private subscription was 12,500*l*., but the company present at the first meeting was so enthusiastic that it definitely promised annual subscriptions amounting to 25,000*l*. The Government will add 12,500*l*. per annum—the whole Secret Service Fund, in fact, at the disposal of the Imperial Foreign Office for similar purposes (e.g., for the payment of subsidies to certain papers abroad).

The company has entered into an agreement with the "*Agence Havas" that the latter will in future only publish news concerning Germany if supplied through "Wolff's Telegraphen-Bureau." The latter will receive its German news exclusively from the new company. The company intends to make a similar arrangement with Reuter's Telegraphic Bureau for those foreign countries in which Reuter controls telegraphic communications. If Reuter declines, the "Deutsche Kabelgesellschaft," a smaller German news agency supplying telegrams from certain countries (e.g., Mexico) and working in agreement with Wolff's Telegraphic Bureau, is to be financed by the new company to run a service in competition to Reuter's.

All the concerns represented at the meeting have furthermore agreed to pay into the company's hotchpot the very vast sums which they are accustomed to spend abroad for their advertisements in foreign papers. The total of this item alone is believed to be not less than 25,000*l*. per annum—so the annual sum available for the purpose of the new company will reach a total of 50,000*l*. to 75,000*l*. The company will in future issue the advertisements of its members only to those foreign papers which publish German information originating exclusively from the new company, which is to be regarded as the only authentic source of information concerning Germany and all things German. This information they are to receive free of cost or at a nominal sum—so that the willing foreign papers will derive very material benefits from their collaboration with the company; viz., lucrative advertisements and free matter written in the language of the country in which the papers are published. The foreign press is to be watched by the company's agents appointed in the various foreign centres. Any incorrect reports are to be telegraphed home and corrected by telegrams issued by the company. The countries in which the system is to be immediately inaugurated are chiefly the South American States and those of the Far East, but the system is to embrace all countries outside Europe. The German cable rates for press telegrams are to be reduced in the interests of the new company.

It is difficult to say whether the evil which the new company is to remedy really exists or exists to any perceptible extent, but it is certain that a very influential private company has been called into existence with every official encouragement commanding an enormous revenue for the purposes of a pro-German newspaper propaganda. Whether the evil exists or not—the money will be spent on secret service to popularise Germany abroad. It does not seem to have occurred to the promoters of the scheme that they are preparing the ground for a vast system of international blackmail—hardly a proper way to reach the desired end.

* NOTE.—Information since furnished to the Foreign Office has conclusively established that such an agreement, whilst apparently intended by the German Company, was not in fact entered into, or indeed ever contemplated, by the Agence Havas.

No. .

Sir E. Goschen to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received April 6.)

Berlin, April 3, 1914.

Sir,

IN my despatch of the 27th February last concerning the secret foundation of a German society to supply the foreign press of certain countries with news favourable to Germany and German interests, it was foreshadowed that German cable rates for press telegrams would probably be reduced in the interests of the new society.

I have the honour now to report that, in fact, reduced rates for telegrams to the United States, Canada, Argentine, Chile, Peru, and the German colonies are to come into operation as from the 1st April 1914. These telegrams, which are to be officially known as week-end telegrams, will be admitted at a reduced rate between Saturday midnight and Sunday midnight, to be delivered on Monday or Tuesday respectively. These week-end telegrams must have reached the cable station at Emden before midnight on Saturday, but can be handed in at any telegraph office in the course of the week.

The rates, which in some cases represent a reduction to one-fourth of the usual rates fixed, are :—

	Pfennings per word.
To New York, Canada, Argentine, Chile, Peru (minimum charge for each telegram 20 M.) ...	80
To Togo and Cameroons (minimum charge 18 M.) ...	90
To German South-West Africa (minimum charge 15 M.)	75

Negotiations are pending for extending the week-end telegram service to other distant countries.

Telegrams sent to the United States or Canada are sent at the reduced rate only to New York or Montreal respectively; thence they are forwarded either free of charge, by letter, or at the local telegram rates per word by telegram.

I have, etc.,

W. E. GOSCHEN.

No. 3.

Sir E. Goschen to Sir E. Grey.—(Received May 4.)

Berlin, May 2, 1914.

Sir,

WITH reference to my despatch of the 3rd ultimo, I have the honour to report that according to an announcement in the "North German Gazette," the system of reduced rates for what are called "week-end telegrams" is to be extended as from the 1st instant to Cape Colony, Natal, The Orange Free State, Transvaal, South and North Rhodesia, Nyasaland, British India, Burma, Ceylon, Malacca, Penang, Singapore, and Labuan, under the conditions described in my above-mentioned despatch.

The rates are as follows :—

	Pfennings per word.
To Cape Colony, Natal, Orange Free State, Transvaal ...	70
To South Rhodesia, Malacca, Penang, Singapore, and Labuan	80
To North Rhodesia and Nyasaland	95
To British India, Burma, and Ceylon	50

W. E. GOSCHEN.

No. 4.

Sir E. Goschen to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received June 12.)

Berlin, June 9, 1914.

Sir,

I HAD the honour, in my despatch of the 27th February last, to explain a scheme under which a society had been founded with the object of supplying the foreign press, by telegraph, with information favourable to Germany generally and to German industrial enterprise in particular. I have since transmitted lists of the countries to which, under the name of "week-end telegrams," the cable rates have been very considerably reduced to assist the propaganda of the said society.

I to-day have the honour to forward a translation of a cutting from the "Deutsche Export Revue" of the 5th June, 1914, in which the existence of the scheme is, for the first time, as far as I know, admitted in public print.

The "Deutsche Export Revue," which is published in Berlin, is a weekly periodical devoted to the interests of the German export trade. It is regarded as well informed, and enjoys a good reputation generally.

The article confirms the various particulars set out in my despatch; it confirms more especially the fact that the Imperial Foreign Office is supporting the scheme with an annual subscription of 12,500*l.*, paid out of its secret service fund. It supplies a list of the members of the society, the names of the directors, etc. The last paragraph of the article merits special attention on account of a certain refreshing ingenuousness.

I am informed that the order has gone forth from high official quarters not to reproduce or in any way to refer to this article, as its inadvertent publication is not unnaturally considered extremely inopportune and embarassing.

I have, etc.,

W. E. GOSCHEN.

Enclosure in No. 4.

EXTRACT FROM THE "DEUTSCHE EXPORT REVUE" OF JUNE 5, 1914.

GERMANY'S WORLD-WIDE ECONOMIC AIMS.

A Syndicate for the supply of News Abroad.

Our readers will remember that one of the items in the programme of the German Association for World Commerce was the establishment of a new service abroad on generous lines. Whilst the other parts of the Association's programme met with hostile criticism as soon as they became known, the proposed service for the supply of news abroad was greeted with general sympathy, as such activity promised to have a useful effect on our foreign relations. The failure to organize the Association for World Commerce seemed unhappily to render it doubtful whether the organisation of the news service could be realised. It is all the more gratifying that, according to information which has reached us from well-informed quarters, the scheme for a German news service in foreign countries has by no means been abandoned, but that, on the contrary, an extensive organisation is actually doing work in the desired direction.

A German syndicate was very quietly formed a few weeks ago for the purposes of this foreign news service. It uses the organisation of a news agency already in existence; its activity is gradually to be extended over the whole globe. Its main object will be to reply in an appropriate form to the prejudiced news concerning Germany and to the attacks made upon her, and by the judicious publication of newspapers inspiring the necessary articles to spread abroad the knowledge of the true state of German industry and of Germany's cultural achievements.

We are in a position to give the following information concerning the organisation of the enterprise. It is presided over by a directorate, consisting of three men, viz.:—

Privy Councillor von Borsig;
"Landrath" Roetger (retired); and
Herr Schacht, a director of the Deutsche Bank

A special administrative board, the main duty of which it is to make suggestions as to the organisation and the methods of reporting, comprises among others:—

Professor Duisburg, of the dye works, "Bayer";
Herr Hagen, of the Disconto Gesellschaft;
Commercial Councillor Hasenclever, of Remscheid;
Herr Hermann Hecht, of Berlin;
Director Heineken, of the North German Lloyd;
Director Helfferich, of the Deutsche Bank;
Director Huldermann, of the Hamburg-America Line;
Director Kosegarten, of the "Deutsche Waffen-und Munitions-Fabrik"; Herr von Langen, of the Disconto Gesellschaft;
Privy Councillor Rathenau;
Director Reuter, of the Maschinen Fabrik, Duisburg;
Director Salomonsohn, of the Disconto Gesellschaft;
Privy Councillor von Siemens;
Herr Edmond Bohler, Hamburg, etc., etc.

The management will be entrusted to two managers, Herr Asch and Dr. Hansen. The former has for years edited several foreign news agencies; the latter is known to the readers of the "Deutsche Export Revue" through a series of articles dealing with the question of a supply of news covering the whole world.

For the present the enterprise has taken the form of a loose syndicate constituted for three years, which is, later on, to be replaced by a more systematic form of organisation. The annual subscription payable by the firms which are members amounts to a minimum of 50*l*. It is a significant fact that the Imperial Foreign Office has voted a grant of 12,500*l*. towards the expenses of the syndicate, provided the same amount is contributed by German industrial houses. As the subscriptions and the contributions by the latter already exceed the sum of 12,500*l*., the contribution from the Foreign Office funds seems secured. As every firm subscribing a sum of 50*l*. has a vote, or, rather, as for every 50*l*. subscribed the subscriber receives a vote, it may be expected that the Imperial Foreign Office will have a powerful and decisive influence upon the management of the syndicate generally and upon the development of the news service in particular.

We further learn that efforts are now being made to induce the joint German and Foreign Economic Societies to join the syndicate, as these societies embrace pre-eminently merchants and manufacturers interested in the German foreign trade. These societies, it is true, appear to be still divided in their opinion concerning the new enterprise—at least, so far no definite decision has been arrived at.

It is believed that an increasing membership will make it possible to establish a reserve fund out of subscriptions and voluntary contributions received, so that, later on, the interest of the reserve fund may suffice to defray the expenses of the news service. It is also hoped that the foreign press may eventually be induced to pay for the news supplied. Finally, it is intended to send journalists to the various countries who are there to busy themselves in favour of German interests in the manner indicated above.

The task which the syndicate has set itself is in itself worthy of acknowledgment. But only the future can show whether the task can be accomplished in the manner indicated. We are of opinion that good results could be achieved, and perhaps with greater success, by utilising the German legations and consulates abroad, if ample funds for this purpose were placed at the disposal of the official departments. At the same time, the joint German and Foreign Economic Societies might well, as indeed some of them already do, work quietly for a better appreciation abroad of the state of German industry and of German cultural progress. The intended despatch of journalists we believe, however, in any case to be a mistake, as it would certainly soon become common talk in the editorial offices in the several places abroad that they represent a syndicate officially supported by the German Empire. If such things are intended, it would be better to fall back upon gentlemen who are already in touch with the respective editorial offices, and who could serve German interests without attracting so much attention as would journalists sent out for the purpose.

No. 1093-W.—In continuation of the Notification by the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 1092-W., dated the 17th December 1914, the following papers having been presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of His Majesty are published for general information :—

CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING EVENTS LEADING TO THE RUPTURE OF RELATIONS WITH TURKEY.

No. 1.

Sir Edward Grey to Mr. Beaumont.

(Telegraphic.) Foreign Office, August 3, 1914.

TURKISH ships building in Great Britain.

Arrangements are being made with the firm of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. for his Majesty's Government to take over the Turkish battleship "Osman I" now building with that firm.

Please inform Turkish Government that His Majesty's Government are anxious to take over the contract.

No. 2.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received August 4.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 3, 1914.

GRAND VIZIER and Minister of the Interior spoke to me with some vexation of the detention of Turkish ship, which they seemed to consider an unfriendly act as Turkey is not at war. Minister of the Interior referred to the very heavy financial sacrifices by which this ship had been paid for with money borrowed at a rate amounting to interest at 20 per cent.

No. 3.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received August 4.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 4, 1914.

GRAND VIZIER to-day renewed assurances that Turkey intends to observe strict neutrality. Mobilisation had been decided upon only because it would take months to complete, and because the Government wished not to be taken by surprise in case of aggression by Bulgaria, though they had also been alarmed by rumours of action by Russia—attributable, I think, to German Ambassador. Retention of German military mission meant nothing and had no political significance. He regarded them as Turkish employés who were doing good work, and as they had offered to remain, it would have been ungracious to refuse.

No. 4.

Sir Edward Grey to Mr. Beaumont.

(Telegraphic.) Foreign Office, August 4, 1914.

YOUR telegram of 3rd August.*

I am sure Turkish Government will understand necessity for His Majesty's Government to keep all warships available in England for their own needs in this crisis.

Financial and other loss to Turkey will receive all due consideration, and is subject of sincere regret to His Majesty's Government. You should inform Grand Vizier.

* See No. 2.

No. 5.

Sir Edward Grey to Mr. Beaumont.

(Telegraphic.) Foreign Office, August 7, 1914.

IF Turkey remains neutral and Egypt remains quiet, and should no unforeseen circumstances arise, His Majesty's Government do not propose to alter the status of Egypt.

A report has reached me that it is being alleged that the annexation of Egypt is under consideration by His Majesty's Government.

You should emphatically contradict this to the Turkish Government, and say that we have no intention of injuring Turkey, and you should add an assurance in the sense of the first paragraph.

No. 6.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received August 10.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 9, 1914.

AN official communiqué was recently published here which showed a distinctly hostile tone towards Great Britain. This communiqué dealt with the requisition of the Turkish warships by His Majesty's Government. The Grand Vizier has told me that Turkish Government had to pretend to the Turkish public, as the latter had subscribed towards the purchase-money for the vessels, that they were taking a stronger line than really was the case. He said, however, that we should not attach too much importance to publications of this kind.

Public opinion is daily growing more excited, and I think that if His Majesty's Government were able to give an assurance that Turkey would have the ships, if possible, on the conclusion of hostilities, such an assurance would have a soothing effect.

I have received a most emphatic assurance from the Grand Vizier that nothing will induce Turkey to join Austria and Germany as long as he remains in power. His position is strong enough to give a certain value to this assurance.

No. 7.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received August 11.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 11, 1914.

A REPORT has reached me from Vice-Consul at the Dardanelles, dated evening of the 10th August, that two large warships, thought to be the "Goeben" and the "Breslau," have entered the Straits, and that the German Consul went to meet them. Arrival of these vessels at Nagara late on same evening was reported in a second telegram.

No. 8.

Sir Edward Grey to Mr. Beaumont.

(Telegraphic.) Foreign Office, August 11, 1914.

I LEARN that at 8-30 P.M. last night "Goeben" and "Breslau" reached the Dardanelles. These ships should not be allowed to pass through the Straits, and they should either leave within twenty-four hours, or be disarmed and laid up. You should point out to the Turkish Government that these are the duties entailed upon them by their neutrality, and that His Majesty's Government expect that they will act up to their obligations.

No. 9.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey—(Received August 12.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 11, 1914.

MY telegram of 11th August.*

The Ottoman Government have bought "Goeben" and "Breslau." Officers and men will be allowed to return to Germany. Grand Vizier told me that purchase was due to our detention of "Sultan Osman." They must have ship to bargain with regard to question of the islands on equal terms with Greece, and it was in no way directed against Russia, the idea of which he scouted.

He formally asked that the British naval mission might be allowed to remain.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey– (Received August 12.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 11, 1914.

FOLLOWING from Consul, Dardanelles, to-day :—

"The large German ship has just left for Contantinople.

"Boats from small German ship have perquisitioned our ships here, and destroyed Marconi apparatus on French ships under threat of sinking them.

"We have protested, demanding disarmament or expulsion of German ship before night.

"It seems that they desire to force Turkey into war."

Military authorities seem to have completely lost their heads. British ships are capriciously detained at Dardanelles, and port officials here are refusing to issue papers to outgoing vessels.

YOUR telegram of 11th August.†

If the crews of the "Goeben" and "Breslau" are returned to Germany at once and if the transfer of those vessels to Turkey is bona fide, so that they can only reappear as Turkish ships with Turkish crews, there seems no reason that the British naval mission should be withdrawn.

I SAW the Grand Vizier this morning and made strong representations to him against restrictions of free passage of the Straits, which the military authorities are now imposing under various pretexts. I said they had been holding up passenger and grain ships in the Dardanelles, refusing to deliver papers to ships wishing to leave Constantinople, and ordering grain ships to return to Constantinople at their caprice.

The Grant Vizier admitted that the War Office had been most high handed in their action, in violation of international obligations.

It seems that the Minister of War has now got entirely out of hand, and I gather that he alone is responsible for the present situation. Matters are undoubtedly becoming serious, but a Cabinet Council is being held this afternoon, and I hope I may be able afterwards to report some improvement.

I should add that all foreign shipping is affected by the restrictions to which I have alluded above.

You should at once point out to Grand Vizier that Turkish Government must not permit German ships to commit acts of war in the Straits, and ask why British merchant ships are detained.

L'AMBASSADEUR de Turquie présente ses compliments à Sir E. Grey et a Phonneur de communiquer ci-dessous à son Excellence le texte du télégramme qu'il vient de recevoir à l'instant de son Gouvernement:

" Pour ne laisser subsister aucun doute sur Pattitude pacifique que le Gouvernement Impérial a décidé d'observer dans les conflits actuels, je vous informe derechef qu'il est résolu de garder stricte neutralite."

Ammbassade Impérale ottomane Londres, le 13 aŭot 1914.

THE Turkish Ambassador presents his compliments to Sir E. Grey and has the honour to communicate herewith the text of a telegram just received from his Government, which runs as follows:—

In order that there may be no doubt as to the pacific attitude which the Turkish Government have decided to observe in the existing struggle, I inform you forthwith that they are determined to maintain strict neutrality."

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople August 14, 1914

ADMIRAL LIMPUS has received promise from Minister of Marine that his Excellency will make crews for the "Goeben" and "Breslau." This will take time, but nevertheless it will be done; and his Excellency has undertaken to hand over the two ships bodily to the British admiral.

Admiral Limpus informs me that a month will probably elapse before "Sultan Selim" (late "Goeben") can be even moved by the Turkish crew; but the formalities of transfer may be complete technically in a day or two. Further delay in taking delivery from the Germans is unavoidable.

Minister of Marine declared there was no intention of sending the ships outside Sea of Marmora until the end of the war.

No. 16.

Mr. Beaumont to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received August 16.)

(Telegraphic.) Constantinople, August 15, 1914.

ADMIRAL LIMPUS and all officers of British Naval Mission have suddenly been replaced in their executive comand by Turkish officers, and have been ordered to continue work at Ministry of Marine if they remain. Although I have been given to understand by a member of the Government that they are still anxious to get officers and crew of the "Goeben" and "Breslau" out of Turkey, this will probably mean retention of mechanics and technical experts at least, which will create most dangerous situation here.

As soon as French and Russian Ambassadors are similarly instructed, you are authorised to declare to Turkish Government that if Turkey will observe scrupulous neutrality during the war England, France, and Russia will uphold her independence and integrity against any enemies that may wish to utilise the general European complication in order to attack her.

THIS morning Grand Vizier assured me again most solemnly that Turkish neutrality would be maintained. That Germany was doing her utmost to compromise the Turkish Government he did not deny, and he went so far as to admit that there was a danger of provoking Russia if Turkey lent herself to German designs which it served Turkey's interests to acquiesce in. This ambiguous expression no doubt refers to the fact that a certain number of German experts will be left on "Goeben" and "Breslau," owing to the inability of the Turks to handle those ships themselves. It would have been an impossible situatiou for Admiral Limpus, if he had had under his direct orders a mixed crew of Turks and Germans, and perhaps reason of his withdrawal from executive command may lie in this consideration.

The "Goeben" and "Breslau" are at present lying off Constantinople. The Grand Vizier has assured me that there is no intention of moving them from Marmora. They are now flying the Ottoman flag under nominal command of Turkish officer, and have been transferred. This at least is a good sign.

I HAVE received the following telegram, dated the 15th August, from His Majesty's vice-consul at Dardanelles:—

"A new field of mines has been laid in the zone formerly sown with mines of observation type. It may be assumed that these latter had previously been removed

"The new contact mines, to the number of forty-one, were laid by the 'Mtibah' from Kephez to Suandere in a double line. Seven were kept on the ship, and the tweny-four from the 'Selanik,' which is proceeding to Constantinople, were also taken on board.

"The 'Lily Rickmers,' a German ship which has arrived here, carries a wireless installation.'

I HAVE been accorded most cordial reception upon my return to my post by the Grand Vizier, of whom I enquired whether the German crews would be removed soon, and what guarantee he would give that the "Goeben" and "Breslau" would be used neither against Great Britain nor against Russia. I also expressed my surprise that the Turkish Government should be apparently entirely under German influence, and that they should have committed such a serious breach of neutrality as was involved by their action in the matter of the German ships.

His Highness said that he deeply deplored this breach of neutrality, which he could not deny. He begged me to give him time to get rid of German crews, which he promised he would do gradually, but until arrival of Turkish transport with crews from London, Turkish Government had no crew to replace Germans.

His Highness added that he had protested against the action of the "Breslau" in boarding British and French ships at the Dardanelles, and he expressed the hope that I would not take too serious a view of that incident.

Situation is delicate, but I have great hopes that if His Majesty's Government will exercise patience, it may yet be saved; for Grand Vizier solemnly assured me that neither the "Goeben" nor the "Breslau" would go into the Black Sea or the Mediterranean.

His Highness said that seizure of Turkish ships building in England by His Majesty's Government had caused the whole crisis, and, as almost every Turkish subject had subscribed towards their purchase, a terrible impression had been made throughout Turkey, where British attitude had been attributed to intention to assist Greece in aggressive designs against Turkey. Turkish population would have understood if Great Britain had paid for the ships, or if she had promised to return them when the war was over; but as it was it looked like robbery. Germans had not been slow to exploit the situation, of which they had taken every advantage.

His Highness was much impressed and relieved when I informed him of the declaration authorized in your telegram of the 16th August.* He said that this would be of enormous assistance to him, and he assured me that I need not be anxious lest Turkey should be drawn into war with Great Britain or with Russia. The present crisis would pass.

I am convinced of the absolute personal sincerity of Grand Vizier in these utterances.

I saw the Grand Vizier on the afternoon of 17th August, and made strong representations to him with regard to the detention of vessels laden with cargoes consigned from Russian ports to the Mediterranean.

He promised to give immediate instructions that ships should be allowed to proceed.

The port authorities were undoubtedly instructed yesterday morning to permit seven ships loaded with grain and one with petroleum for the Mediterranean, and one ship with coal for the Danube, to depart, but this permission was cancelled later.

It appears from this as if the military party, supported by the Germans, were determined to reassert themselves, and that a serious conflict of authority has arisen.

I propose to see Grand Vizier, whom I was unable to see last night, as early as possible this morning, and to insist upon his carrying out of his promise with regard to laden ships.

If these are permitted to leave, only four ships will remain, and no others have arrived since yesterday.

Of these four ships only one is in a position to leave immediately, but their case is different to that of the nine ships mentioned above, of which the cargoes have never touched Turkish soil, and which are covered by treaties guaranteeing free passage of the Straits at all times, thus making their detention a far more serious matter.

MINISTER of Marine to see me to-day and expressed his relief at being able to talk to me freely.

He put forward the following proposal:—

Firstly, that the Capitulations should be abolished immediately. I pointed out the difficulty of this, and he suggested that the Minister of Finance should come and discuss the question with me.

Secondly, he demanded the immediate return of the two Turkish battleships acquired by His Majesty's Government at the commencement of the war. I told him that this was impossible, but that I would endeavour to obtain as good terms as possible for them, and that I hoped they would not be needed during the war, and would soon be returned to Turkey; in the meanwhile they should be regarded as a loan from Turkey to a friend.

Thirdly, he asked for renunciation of any interference with the internal affairs of Turkey. This need not be taken seriously, and is, of course, an absurd proposal.

Fourthly, he asked that if Bulgaria should intervene against the Triple Entente, Western Thrace should be given back to Turkey.

Fifthly, he wanted the restoration of the Greek islands. I told him that this was impossible, and he finally agreed to the basis arranged just before the present war broke out.

His final proposal was that the Allied Powers should undertake to oblige the Triple Alliance to accept any agreements which might be reached with respect to the Capitulations.

Our conversation was of the friendliest description, and at its close the Minister of Marine asked whether I would sanction the chartering of a British oil-tank steamer now at Tenedos to convey oil from Constanza. I asked him the purposes for which this oil was required, and he replied that it was for use in Turkish destroyers. I said that I thought that such a request, when the German crews of the "Breslau" and "Goeben" were masters of the situation here, would greatly surprise His Majesty's Government, and he replied that he did not wish to create any suspicion in their minds, and would therefore withdraw his request, adding that any suspicion that the German ships would be allowed to attack our shipping was absurd.

I said that, although I personally believed in the sincerity of his assurances, there seemed to be no doubt that the German admiral was now the master here. Minister seemed greatly surprised at this, but finally asked me to assure you that he would open the Dardanelles to the British fleet, if the German crews would not leave the two ships when he told them to do so.

"Passages were stopped this afternoon, while seventeen more mines were laid in a zig zag line along one side of the channel, which has been rendered extremely narrow. There is a heavy oil-steamer to pass to-morrow, and it may not be easy.

"Mines remain, but I suspect that there are more on board 'Rickmers.'

"Weber Pasha, who has returned with other German officers, is believed to be on board the latter vessel.

"Several Hotchkiss guns have arrived and have been mounted on both sides of the Straits commanding minefield."

Reply to representations received from Porte expresses regrets for unfortunate incident of which British merchant vessels at Dardanelles were object, and gives formal assurances that similar acts shall not occur again. Explanation of detention of ships given in Porte's note is that in consequence of some mines having been detached from their moorings, authorities had prevented vessels from continuing their voyage until mines had been picked up, in order to avoid accidents.

No mention is made of real reason, which was wish of military authorities to requisition grain and other cargoes.

I WAS informed by the Grand Vizier to-night that he wanted all the support that the Triple Entente could give him, and that the sooner they could give a written declaration respecting the independence and integrity of Turkey the better.

A sharp struggle, which may come to a head at any moment, is in progress between the Moderates and the German party, headed by the Minister for War, and is meanwhile creating anarchy here.

Marshal Liman* and the German Ambassador are recklessly striving to force the Turks into declaring war on Russia, in which case the "Goeben" and "Breslau" would presumably sail for the Black Sea. They prepared to achieve this object if necessary, by a coup d' Etat, making the Minister of War dictator.

It is said that the Dardanelles forts have German garrisons, and that the "Goeben," which has been slightly damaged, will be repaired by the 2nd September, or possibly earlier.

THE Minister of War has not yet recovered from his illness. I have made it absolutely clear to the Grand Vizier that there is evidently no reason for delaying transfer of ships now that changes have come, and I said that His Majesty's Government would not tolerate that the Turkish fleet, as well as the Turkish army, should be in the hands of Germany, warning His Highness that the British fleet would not leave the Dardanelles until His Majesty's Government were satisfied that the Turkish Government had loyally carried out the condition laid down, and until British merchantmen could navigate Turkish waters without either delay or molestation. It was therefore obvious that if there was any idea of manning the Turkish fleet with German officers and men it must be given up, The situation was already quite humiliating enough for the Turkish Empire, which was in peril of total ruin if the Turkish Government allowed the domination of Constantinople by Germany. The Grand Vizier assured me that the Turkish Government had not the slightest intention of Germanising their fleet; and while it is my impression that the forces in favour of the maintenance of strict neutrality by Turkey are slowly gaining, I replied that I should not be satisfied with less then the actual departure of the German crews.

NINETY German sailors passed through Sophia yesterday on their way to Constantinople. I have protested strongly, but Grand Vizier is unable to contol the situation, which is dominated by the German Ambassador and Generals. Weber Pasha, who is in command at the Dardanelles, is said to be urging closing of the Straits. I have brought this to the notice of the Grand Vizier. His Highness most positively repudiated any such idea, and begged me to have patience, as this situation would not last, and he was gaining authority.

In the meantime, general mobilisation is proceeding feverishly, and preparations are being pushed on in the fleet. Eighty pounds' worth of surgical appliances, dressings, etc., were bought by doctor of the "Coroovado" to-day. I am informed that there is a 5-inch gun hidden by canvas at her stern. She still lies at Therapia. It is not likely that the two German Men-of-War will come out of the Dardanelles, but there are grounds for thinking that German plan is to urge Turkey to attack Russia after France is beaten—about ten days hence, in their estimation. Straits would be entirely closed, and according to the German Ambassador, quite impossible to force, since Germans have taken special measures to make them impregnable.

To sum up, the situtation is most unsatisfactory, though not actually desperate.

GERMAN ships.

There are grounds for thinking that Germans are urging Turks to send "Goeben" into Black Sea, where they would argue that she has a right to go as a Turkish ship. Germans would count upon Russian warship attacking her, and war would ensue, seemingly provoked by Russia.

Object of Germans is to create a diversion here, draw off some Russian troops and enemies from Austria, and embroil us at the same time.

MY telegram of 27th August.*

Russian Ambassador is at present with Grand Vizier, whom I have just seen. I again impressed upon his Highness my apprehensions lest "Goeben" should make a raid. I expressed my conviction that, should Turkey be so unwise as to provoke the Powers of the Triple Entente, it would mean the end of the Ottoman Empire. To these observations on my part, his Highness replied that the "Goeben," manned as she was with German crew, would never be allowed by the Turkish Government to enter the Black Sea. His language on this point was most emphatic, and I believe that he was sincere in what he said. I did not fail, however, to draw His Highness's attention to the fact that, if the Minister of Marine, the Minister of War, and the German Ambassador ordered the "Goeben" to go there, I did not quite see how His Highness was going to prevent it. If the German Emperor ordered the German Admiral to go into the Black Sea, it did not seem to me that the two Turkish Ministers could, even if they would, prevent the Admiral from obeying those commands.

Grand Vizier assured me most emphatically that my fears were entirely without foundation, but he did not give me any reasons to back up this optimistic opinion. His Highness was much upset when I rejoined that, so long as German crews remained His Highness was not master of his own house, but at the mercy of the Germans, who had, to all intents and purposes, occupied Constantinople. His Highness admitted that Germans were urging Turkey to depart from her neutrality, and that they wished to embroil her with the Russians and ourselves but he nevertheless solemnly assured me that Turkish Government would not depart from there neutrality. He fully understood Garmany's aims in this matter, and all Turkish Government were determined not to fall into the trap.

Grand Vizier is, I am sure, absolutely sincere himself. But none the less the situation is as I have described it in the proceding paragraphs.

In reply to my enquiries, Grand Vizier stated that neither he nor Minister of Marine knew anything about the reported arrival German sailors. They had not been asked for by the Turkish Government.

I said that, if this really was the case, it furnished yet another proof of how completely Germany had obtained control here. German merchantmen were, to my knowledge, arming in the port of Constantinople, and it was obvious that the German sailors were to be put into these ships or on board the Turkish fleet. This being so, it was my duty to warn His Highness of the unfortunate effect that this continued violation of Turkish neutrality in favour of Germany was bound to have upon the Governments of the Triple Entente.

OTTOMAN forces are being mobilised in Hedjaz and further south, and existing military activity in Red Sea may thus be explained. About sixty Turkish officers arrived at Alexendria recently and passed through Egypt down Red Sea. Their destination was the Yemen.

Twelve thousand Turkish troops are reported in Jeddah region.

Signs are not lacking that, in case of war, an attack on Egypt is contemplated by Turkey. A few Turkish officers are now in the Delta. Steps have been taken to watch all those that are known. I learn from a good source that all information of Turkish mobilisation reported from Constantinople is correct. Meanwhile emissaries are being sent to India, the Yemen, Senoussi, and Egypt, to stir up feeling against Great Britain. Activity at Gaza is reported, but it is uncertain whether this is more than raising of levies to replace regulars withdrawn from the north by mobilisation.

GENERAL situation here.

It is possible, though I consider it highly improbable, that Turks may make a dash out of the Dardanelles when their fleet is better prepared. It is equally possible that Turkey may make some forward movement against Servia or Greece on land. Nevertheless, I trust that you will not read my various reports to mean that I have abandoned last hope that neutrality will be maintained to extent of not actually attacking Russia in Black Sea. I still think that it is far from probable that Turkey will for the time being make any forward move.

News propagated by German Ambassador here this morning is that Germans are marching on Paris, and that they have decisively worsted the allies. This message has without doubt come by wireless, as the Ambassador is in direct communication with German General Staff. This news will, I fear, tend to shake Turks still further, as they now confidently expect that Triple Entente will be annihilated. There is also no doubt that very active preparations are in hand, and that Germans here are confident of hostilities. Consignments of gold from Germany have arrived for German and Austrian banks, private German residents have sent away their wives, and quantities of medical stores have been purchased and put on board on German ships.

I hear that German Ambassador is adopting tone of friendly commiseration for Great Britain, who, he asserts, will never assist Russia in any movement against Turkey. He has made the remarkable statement that his Government will now offer favourable terms to France, which she will certainly accept; that Germany will then wage a platonic war with England, whose heart is not in the struggle, and who will make terms to save her fleet; and that Germany and England will then combine against Russia.

German Ambassador's attitude seems to indicate great preoccupation as regards British fleet and as regards Russian advance in East Prussia, and a desire to make terms now in order to save Germany's resources for a final struggle with us under more favourable conditions. I have made it known privately in the proper quarter that under no conditions would Great Britain abandon her allies, and that whatever the present situation in the field may be, it is still but the beginning of a struggle from which we are firmly resolved to emerge victoriously.

FROM informotion that has reached me, there is no doubt that in course of time the whole area of the Dardanelles, Constantipole, and the Bosphorus will become nothing more or less than a sort of German enclave. Sailors recently arrived from Sophia will be sent to Straits forts and more will follow. This is over and above German military reservists already allotted to garrison those forts.

I hear that, although Turks have not yet any ordnance of the more modern type for mounting in Straits defences, it is very probable that consignment of guns will arrive in the near future from Germany and Austria through Constanza.

I AND my colleagues still do not regard situation as hopeless, and are of opinion that we should go on as long as possible without provoking a rupture. I find it hard to believe that, when it comes to the point, Turks would declare war on Russia or on ourselves.

Eventuality of a general war is doubtless counted on by Germany with the object of diverting energies of Russia from the main object of European conflict. Germans may even argue that, in the event of Russians receiving serious check in Germany, they might be induced to desist from struggle by bait of Constantinople.

There is no doubt that it is object of Germany to involve Russia and Great Britain in serious troubles here in the hope of general Balkan conflagration and of complications for us in India and Egypt. I heard to-day on good authority that it is admitted in Berlin that, if necessary, they will encourage a "Jehod"* with this object.

I have strong impression that Turkish Government, with exception of its extreme chauvinists, are aware of Germany's objects, which I have not ceased to instil into them, and that time may cool their ardour for their German masters. I warned Grand Vizier this morning of inevitable results of siding with Germany against us, and said that our patience was not inexhaustible, and that consequences of allying themselves with our enemies would be serious. His Highness seemed to be impressed, and promised that German sailors should be sent away.

Note verbale communicated to Sublime Porte, Constantinople, August 14, 1914.

IT having been brought to the notice of His Britannic Majesty's Government that, while in the neutral port of Chanak (Dardanelles), boats of the cruiser "Breslau," flying the German flag, boarded and effected perquisitions on British ships, His Britannic Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires has been instructed to request that the Imperial Ottoman Government will not permit German ships to commit acts of war in Turkish ports or in the Straits, the neutrality of which is guaranteed by international treaties.

Mr. Beaumont is instructed at the same time to enquire on what grounds British ships have recently been prevented from leaving the port of Constantinople, and have been detained on arrival at the Dardanelles, in some cases for several days.

According to a telegram received to-day from His Majesty's Vice-Consul at the Dardanelles, British ships are still being held up there, and His Britannic Majesty's Chargé d'Affairs has the honour to request that immediate orders may be sent to allow them to proceed.

Note verbale communicated by Sublime Porte.

LE Ministère Impérial des Affairs Étrangères a eu l'honneur de recevoir la note verbale que l'Ambassade de Sa Majesté britannique a bien voulu lui adresser en date du 14 courant.

En réponse, le Ministère Impérial des Affaires Etrangères s'empresse d'exprimer tous ses regrets à M. le Chargé d'Affaires de Sa Majesté britannique pour le fâcheux incident dont furent l'object quelques bâtiments de commerce battant pavillon anglais dans le port de Chanak ; la Sublime Porte est en mesure de donner les assurances les plus formelles que pareil fait ne se répétera plus.

Quant aux bateaux retenus à Chanak, des torpilles sous-marines s'etant détachées, les autorités Impériales ont cru de leur devoir d'empêcher ces bateaux de continuer leur voyage jusqu'au repêchage desiditis mines, pour éviter de fâcheux incidents. Cette interdiction provisoire est donc le résultat d'une mesure générale que le Gouvernement Impérial s'est ve obligé de prendre afin d'assurer la sécurité de la navigation dans les eaux Impériales.

Le 16 août, 1914.

(Translation.)

THE Imperial Ministry for Foreign Affairs had the honour of receiving the note verbale which His Britannic Majesty's Embassy was good enough to communicate on the 14th instant.

In reply the Imperial Ministry for Foreign Affairs hastens to express great regret to the Chargé de' Affaires for the annoying incident suffered by some merchant vessels flying the Britise flag in the harbour of Chanak ; the Sublime Porte are able to give the most formal assurances that such an act shall not be repeated.

As regards the vessels detained at Chanak, some submarine mines having become detached. the Imperial authorities thought it incumbent upon them to prevent those vessels from continuing their voyage until the said mines had been recovered, in order that annoying incidents might be prevented. This provisional prohibition is, it will thus be seen, the result of a general measure which the Imperial Government have been obliged to take with a view to ensuring the safety of navigation in Turkish waters.

The Ministry for Foreign Affairs has the honour to inform His Britannic Majesty's Embassy that, the mines having been recovered, the competent authorities have been requested by the Government to raise the prohibition of free passage, and to do their best to facilitate navigation for all vessels.

(Telegraphic) Constantinople, September 6, 1914.

MINISTER of Interior yesterday assured me that there was no question of Turkey going to war.

I used every possible argument to dissuade Minister of the Interior from leaving on a military adventure, reminding him that in the end Turkey would inevitably pay. I told him His Majesty's Government regarded Turkish fleet as annex of German fleet. and that if it went out into the Ægean we should sink it. He quite realised this, and said that fleet had no intention of leaving Dardanelles.

I went carefully over several infringements of neutrality of which Turks had been guilty, and I said that so long as a single German officer, naval or military, remained here I should consider Turkey as a German protectorate ; that I had been informed that Turkish Government attached no importance to written declaration which I and my French and Russian colleagues had made them respecting their integrity. I was greatly surprised at this attitude, but personally somewhat relieved, as to guarantee integrity and independence of Turkey was like guaranteeing life of man who was determined to commit suicide.

We sincerely desired independence and integrity of Turkey, but he must not imagine that Great Britain was afraid of Turkey, or that we feared to face alternative if forced upon us. Most ridiculous stories about insurrections in India and Egypt and approaching downfall of British Empire were being circulated broadcast, and were apparently believed by Minister of War I hope that Minister of the Interior was not under those and similar dangerous illusions.

Minister of the Interior said that he understood.

He then proceeded to state that Turkish Government now wished to sell us two Turkish ships outright. They wanted money badly, as the economic situation was desperate. I replied that I did not know His Majesty's Government's views, which I would enquire, but that: personally, I should be reluctant to inflict so mortal a stab on the wounded heart of the Turkish people, who were already suffering so much by temporary detention of their ships. Their purchase might give rise to another tempest of indignation.

Moreover, I doubted whether His Majesty's Government would readily pay several millions to a country which was entirely in German hands, and which was breathing out threats against ourselves and our allies.

He replied that His Majesty's Government could make what conditions they liked if they bought ships; and that Turkish Government would send away all Germans I said that I woul reflect on proposal and repeat it to you.

THERE is fresh evidence that there has been no sale of the "Goeben" and "Breslau" to Turkey. I learn on unimpeachable authority that German Ambassador has twice sent down orders to customs for admission, duty free, of effects for His Imperial Majesty's ship "Goeben." I have brought this to notice of Grand Vizier, and have reminded him that we do not recognise sale.

Should I not tell his Highness that His Majesty's Government will require to be satisfied that the sale is a genuine and legal one, before they can recognise the ship as Turkish? I think that this should be done, even if the German crews go.

I have said to both Talaat and Grand Vizier that if "Goeben" and "Breslau" leave Dardanelles they will be treated as German ships. They fully realise this, and have assured me that the ships will on no account leave.

Before any decision respecting the recall of the mission is taken by His Majesty's Government, I wish to have your views on the subject. I am reluctant to take any step, however justified it may be, that would precipitate unfavourable developments, as long as there is a reasonable chance of avoiding them. What effect do you consider that withdrawal of mission would have upon the political situation ?

The Admiralty are of opinion that the position of the mission may become unsafe and that it is already undignified. They therefore wish it to be recalled and attached to the Embassy until you can arrange a safe passage home for Admiral Limpus and the other officers. There is clearly ample justification for the view taken by the Admiralty,

I HAVE on more than one occasion told Grand Vizier that resentment is probable in England, especially in present circumstances, at the slight put upon British Admiral, and that, much as His Majesty's Government desire to remain on friendly terms with Turkey, such proceedings on the part of the Turkish Government cannot be indefinitely overlooked.

In many respects the situation seems to show improvement, but unless His Majesty's Government wish mission to remain indefinitely it seems to me that the present would be a suitable moment to withdraw it. The Turks could not regard this step as a grievance as it is obviously justified by their conduct. The mission are at present treated as non-existent, and their position is consequently both false and inivdious. German hold on the navy is becoming stronger daily, and there is no sign of German crews leaving. As a matter of fact, far from being disadvantageous to us, this is becoming embarrassing to the Turkish Government, who are at last beginning to realise that the Germans are not an unmixed blessing. Great discontent reigns among Turkish naval officers, so Admiral Limpus tells me, as they dislike German officers, and they even hint that they would rather mutiny than serve under them.

I am of opinion that the time has come to withdraw the mission and if this can be approved in principle, I will speak to the Admiral, who feels his position acutely, and ask him to make the necessary arrangements.

I said that this information would greatly surprise my Government, whom I would at once apprise.

The Capitulations and conventions were not a unilateral agreement ; we had on a former occasion informed the Turkish Government that we were willing to consider any request they might put forward in a generous spirit, but I did not imagine that my Government would acquiesce in their total abolition by a stroke of the pen. We were now under martial law. Did he expect us to allow British subjects to be judged by court-martial, especially so long as army was in hands of Germans ?

Earlier in the day the Italian Ambassador had informed me that German and Austrian Ambassadors were ready to associate themselves with us in protesting against the abolition.

German Ambassador has disclaimed authorship of this move on the part of Turkey, and I think that he may be speaking the truth; but every statement he makes must be received with caution. Nevertheless, statement by Minister of Interior, to which I have alluded above, seems to bear him out in this case.

I have discussed the proposed abolition with the Minister of the Interior, and he maintains that they all feel that the time has come to emancipate Turkey from foreign shackles. But he disclaimed any intention of histility against foreigners He had already sent instructions to all Valis and police officials not to inflame people against foreigners, and he would give strictest orders that no foreigners should be taken before courts-martial.

I told His Excellenay that I thought the action of the Turkish Government would inevitably lead to greater interference than ever in the internal affairs of Turkey. I could only regret that they should have acted so precipitately.

FLEET is now entirely in German hands, and Minister of Marine is powerless. Germans consider that Dardanelles are now impassable, and they are impressing this upon military authorities. It is said that, if the Turkish fleet moved into the Black Sea, Straits would be entirely closed by additional mines, which have just been sent there on the "Nilufer."

Though I do not say that this coup will actually come off, danger is undoubtedly greater since news has been received of the recent successes of the allies, as the Germans are all the more anxious to create a diversion. My impression is that majority of the Cabinet and the Grand Vizier himself are entirely opposed to any such adventure, and that they are doing their utmost to prevent it; but they are finding out, though they will not admit it, that they are powerless to stop matters.

Both I and my Russian colleague have received independent information that German and Austrian Ambassadors are making a determined effort to force the Minister of War to send the "Goeben" and the rest of the fleet into the Black Sea. Fifty transports have been ready for some time, and I understand that everything is prepared for the reception on board these vessels of a large number of Turkish troops.

Abolition of the Capitulations is now the principal card in the hands of the peace party. They would, I think, be ready to defer discussion of abolition of judicial Capitulations if abolition of fiscal and commercial treaties could be agreed to forthwith by the three Powers.

I hear that 15 per cent. duties will be applied from the 1st October, but a law is at present under consideration exempting existing contracts. As nothing is at present coming into ports, application of these duties is, as a matter of fact, of little consequence. The temettu also will be applied to foreigners.

United Shipowners' Freight, Demurrage, and Protective Association to Sir Edward Grey.—(Received September 17.)

Vienna Chambers, Bute Docks, Cardiff,
September 16, 1914.

Sir,

WE are instructed by the owners of the steamship "Reliance" to seek your aid for the recovery of compensation from the Turkish Government for the detention of their steamer by the Turkish authorities.

The facts of the case are as follows:—

On the 1st August last the steamship "Reliance" sailed from Nickolaief with a cargo of barley for Hamburg and arrived off Constantinople at noon on the 3rd. The captain waited at Constantinople for orders from the owners of his steamer until the 6th, but he received no communication from his owners as the Turkish authorities had stopped the delivery of telegrams.

On the 6th August the captain proceeded on his voyage and arrived off Nagara Point, Dardanelles, on the following day at 8 A.M. when he sent his permit to pass through the Dardanelles ashore in accordance with the usual practice and received a signal from the fort that the canal was blocked. This blocking signal was kept up on the 8th, 9th, and 10th August; on the latter date several Italian vessels were piloted out and the German warships "Goeben" and "Breslau" were piloted in by Turkish torpedo craft and anchored in Nagara Bay. A German merchant vessel, the "General," was also piloted in.

The captain of the "Reliance" daily saw the British Consul at Chanak, but the Consul was unable to obtain permission for the "Reliance" to pass through the Dardanelles.

On the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th August the "Reliance" remained off Nagara Point, and on these days Roumanian, French and Italian steamers were piloted in and out, but no British ships were allowed to leave.

At 5-50 P.M. on the 14th August the captain received orders from Turkish officials to proceed to Constantinople and remain there until the cargo had been discharged. Several other British steamers that were waiting received similar orders, amongst them being the steamship "Hillhouse," the steamship "Countess of Warwick," and the steamship "Barrowmore."

The captain proceeded to Constantinople and arrived there at 1 P. M. on the 15th August. On arrival he went ashore and noted protest against the detention of his steamer and also saw the British Consul. On the following day the "Goeben" and "Breslau" arrived off Constantinople under the Turkish flag. On this day the "Reliance" was boarded by a Turkish officer who asked for the displacement of the vessel and for information as to the capacity for carrying horses and troops.

On the 18th the captains of all British ships at Constantinople were told by the British harbour-master, on instructions from the British Consul-General, that they were now allowed to proceed and were again to apply for permits. On the same day the captain of the "Reliance" obtained a permit and sailed from Constantinople and arrived again off Nagara Point at 8 A. M. the following morning (19th August) when he sent his second permit ashore, but the Turkish authorities cancelled the permit and ordered the "Reliance" to anchor. On the 20th August one Italian ship and the British ship "Ryton," in ballast were allowed to pass through, and on the following day the steamship "Bullmouth" loaded with kerosene and three other steamers were piloted out. It was not until the 22nd ultimo at 11-40 A. M. that the "Reliance" was allowed to sail.

We respectfully submit that the Turkish authorities should be made to pay compensation for their action in detaining British ships, and on behalf of the owners of the "Reliance" we request that their claim of 640*l*., being at the ordinary charter-party rate of 40*l*., a day, for the detention of their steamer from the 6th to the 22nd August, should be made against the Turkish Government by the British Ambassador at Constantinople.

His Excellency admitted, however, that there had been an idea of sending the fleet to visit Trebizond, as he claimed that the Government had a right to do.

I pointed out, should they do so, as long as German officers were on board, there was bound to be a certain risk of some incident occurring, in view of well-known desire of Germans to provoke trouble between Russia and Turkey. His Excellency did not demur to this opinion, and said that he would at once see the Grand Vizier in order to stop it.

TURKISH military preparations.

In conversation with the President of the Chamber to-day, I said that if it was really Turkey's intention to go to war with Russia, I considered such a policy absolute madness.

President said that, even if Turkish fleet went into Black Sea, it would not be with any hostile intention towards Russia, with whom they were not going to war. I pointed out to him that Germany was pressing Turkey to send their fleet into the Black Sea with one object only, namely, that war might be provoked by some incident. I therefore urged him most strongly against any such action. He said that he was against it, and that he saw the force of my argument, to which I replied that as the Minister of War was supreme it was unfortunately no guarantee that it would not be done. President told me that the Cabinet had their own policy, which was to remain neutral, and that they were all alive to the aims of Germany. I pressed him hard as to what was the policy of the Minister of War.

I do not regard situation as hopeless. Party in favour of neutrality is growing, but it would be unsafe to rely on their power to restrain war party.

I hear that 156 more mines and the mine-layer "Ghairet" have been sent to Roumeli Kanak, on the Bosphorus. Turkish fleet went to Halki yesterday for review, and will probably remain there till next week, when the "Hamedieh" and "Messudiyeh" will be ready. German officers and men continue to arrive by train. It is probable that there are German reservists resident in Turkey who have been incorporated in Turkish army. 200 Germans arrived at the Dardanelles on September 17th.

Cavalry and horse artillery are reported to have moved from Erzeroum towards the frontier.

I BELIEVE that Minister of War is the only firebrand. Committee of Union and Progress is exercising a restraining influence. I think it is undoubted that party in favour of peace is daily increasing.

French Ambassador had a conversation yesterday with Minister of Marine. Latter assured his Excellency that Turkish Government were determined not to be drawn into war, to which his Excellency retorted that if this assurance was correct, it was difficult to understand why preparations to send Turkish fleet into Black Sea were being made. Minister of Marine replied that Council of Ministers had decided that two destroyers only should go into Black Sea and that the fleet should not go. He admitted that the Minister of War, who was generalissimo of the army and navy, had, as a matter of fact, ordered the fleet to go, but, as all orders had to pass through him as Minister of Marine, he had insisted that this order should be referred to the Council, with the result above stated.

As an illustration of the entire lack of control possessed by the Cabinet over the Minister of War and the Germans, if any further illustration is needed, I have to report that, despite this assurance from the Minister of Marine, the "Breslau" and three other smaller ships passed us this morning and entered the Black Sea. My Russian colleague trusts that no incident will happen and proposes to ignore this proceeding.

I HAVE just had an animated interview with the Grand Vizier, and I am convinced that he is sincere. Other Ministers are all peaceably inclined, with the exception of the Minister of War. So long as the latter remains supreme an incident may occur at any moment. I tackled the Grand Vizier on the subject of the "Berslau" entering the Black Sea. He vehemently disclaimed any intention of attacking Russia, and said that Turkish Government had a right to sent their fleet into the Black Sea if they wished to. I reminded him that neither the "Goeben" nor the "Breslau" were Turkish ships according to international law, and said that if they left the Dardanelles we would most certainly treat them as enemy ships. He replied that I had told him this often before, and there was no question of the ships leaving the Dardanelles. I then said that information had reached me that Council of Ministers, in order to avoid risk of an incident, had come to the wise decision that the "Goeben" and the "Breslau" should not go into the Black Sea; and yet on the very day on which this decision had been reached by the Cabinet, it was totally disregarded by the Minister of War, as His Highness was doubtless aware. This showed how much control His Highness now exercised. Constantinople and the neighbourhood formed nothing more nor less than an armed German camp, and we all, including His Highness, were at the mercy of Liman Pasha* and the Minister of War. Many more German officers and men had arrived, and there must now be between 4,000 and 5,000 German soldiers and sailors here. Grand Vizier replied that he was determined to maintain peace, and that more adherents were joining the peace party every day. He would never allow Minister of War or anyone else to supersede him. Speaking with the utmost energy and even violence he assured me that, in spite of appearances, which he admitted looked bad, nothing would happen.

I said that doubtless peace party was growing, but, nevertheless, Minister of War was pushing forward warlike preparations uninterruptedly. I was receiving constant information respecting British official war news being stopped, cases of requisitions, etc., and I knew as a fact that intrigues against Egypt were being carried on. If His Highness could stop these things, why did he not do so, and when would he be able to do so? His Highness gave me to understand that if a crisis did come there would be a means of stopping Minister of War.

INFORMATION respecting Turkish preparations against Egypt receives fresh corroboration. There has been no slackening of military preparation in Palestine and in Syria.

If Turkish preparations continue, it may become necessary to put patrols into Sinai and to support our posts in the Peninsula. Action of forces in Egypt has been hitherto confined; as you are aware, to patrol of Suez Canal, but I think that Turkish Government should be warned that measures for the protection of the Egyptian frontier may become necessary,

A LETTER was yesterday received by British postmaster from a subordinate official in the Turkish postal administration. In this letter postmaster was informed that foreign post offices in Turkey would be abolished as from 1st October next. I instructed British postmaster to return the lettter and to say that matter had been referred to his Ambassador.

This discourteous manner of communication was my first official information of any intention to abolish foreign post offices in Turkey. I accordingly saw Grand Vizier at once, and said that I resented the manner of communication, and had instructed British postmaster to return the letter. Post offices did not depend upon the Capitulations, and if Turkish Government wished to see the system modified. they should approach His Majesty's Government through the usual diplomatic channel, I warned him that His Majesty's Government would not allow themselves to be ignored in this manner, and I would not, unless by your instructions, consent to summary closing of British post offices on 1st October unless Turkish Government had given guarantees for safeguarding British interests. His Highness said that Great Britain was not aimed at specially. A similar communication had been addressed to all the Powers I said I was indifferent as to view of the matter taken by my French and Russian colleagues, nor had I yet had time to ascertain what they thought. Grand Vizier assured me that until an understanding had been come to with His Majestys' Government nothing further would be done in the matter.

I would oberve that, in my opinion, considerable modification of existing system can not properly be resisted. If Russian and French Ambassadors agree may I come to some arrangement on the lines of consenting to incorporation of the British post office as a section of the Ottoman post, if the latter will undertake to take over some of present British employés? I think we might also consent to use Turkish stamps.

POLITICAL situation in Turkey.

His Majesty's Government regard state of things at Constantinople as most unsatisfactory. On behalf of His Majesty's Government you should speak in the following sense to the Grand Vizier :—

British Government contemplate no hostile act towards Turkey by British fleet and they have no desire to precipitate a conflict with her. But the fact that Great Britain has not taken any hostile action against her must not mislead Turkish Government into supporting that His Majesty's Government consider Turkey's attitude is consistent with the obligations imposed upon her by the neutrality which she has officially declared. German officers and men are participating increasingly in Turkish fleet and Dardanelles defences, and not only has Turkey failed to send away the German officers and crews, as she promised, but she has admitted more overland, and they are now in active control of the "Goeben" and "Breslau." The capital is undoubtedly now under control of the Germans. If His Majesty's Government so desired, present state of things affords ample justification for protesting against violation of neutraliy. Great Britain has not, however, so far taken action, as she cherishes the hope that the peace party will win the day. It should, however, be realised by the Grand Vizier and his supporters that unless they soon succeed in getting the situation in hand and bringing it within the limits of neuterality, it will become clear that Constantinople is no longer under Turkish but German control and that open hostility will be forced on by Germany.

I HEAR that Egyptian frontier has been violated by armed mounted Arabs said to be encouraged by Turkish troops, and also that Hedjaz line is being reserved for troops. TURKISH preparation against Egypt.

I have addressed a note to the Grand Vizier recapitulating information recently received on this subject. I reminded his Highness of the assurances which I had several times given him, based upon your telegram of 7th August,* and I specially pointed out their conditional nature. Finally I warned him that the information respecting Turkish preparations against Egypt would infallibly produce a most serious impression upon his Majesty's Government.

I later communicated the contents of my note to President of the Council, Minister of Finance, and Minister of Interior, and asked them what explanation they could give, whereupon they enquired why so many thousand Indian troops were being sent to Egypt by His Majesty's Government. To this I answered that it was essential to ensure the safety of Egypt and the protection of the Suez Canal, and that as the British garrison of Egypt had been sent to France, it was, necessary to replace it by British Indian troops. This seemed to safety them.

I cannot believe that they are not alive to the disastrous consequences of going to war with us, or that they seriously can contemplate an expedition against Egypt, They have undoubtedly been strongly urged to send such an expedition by the Germans and I think that they have allowed preparations to be made, partly to profit as much as possible by German connection and by allowing the Germans to think that they will act, and partly in order to be ready, if Great Britain sustains a serious defeat by land or sea.

Danger of the present situation is obvious, and developments are not improbable, and I shall see the Grand Vizier this morning and endeavour to bring him to book. There is a circumstantial report that the Germans are now making desperate efforts to force the Turks' hands and to compel them to fulfil their part of the bargain. but that at the same time their efforts are meeting with considerable resistance.

I HAVE informed the Grand Vizier that Austro-German intrigues to involve Turkey in an expedition against Egypt are within my knowledge. Grand Vizier denied that such intrigues existed, but he finally admitted that pressure was being exerted. He declared that he was firmly resolved to keep out of any such intrigue, any complicity in which he disclaimed with emphasis. I strongly urged His Highness to make his position clearer, for preparations at the Dardanelles showed that he was either guilty of complicity or that he was not master in his own house. He answered that his intentions were entirely pacific, and that he did not mean to engage in any quarrel with Great Britain.

His Highness seemed more preoccupied with the Balkan situation at the moment than with anything else. He said that Turkish Government would be unable to refrain from an attempt to get back what they had lost in Balkan wars if Balkan complications ensued. No arguments of mine would induce him to change his attitude in this respect. He said he would be powerless to prevent it.

YOUR telegram of the 23rd September.*

I have again seen Grand Vizier, and pointed out to him as earnestly as is within my power the fatal result to the Turkish Empire of persisting in a course of veiled hostility and petty intrigue against the British Empire. I recalled to him that time and again he had undertaken that the German crews of the "Goeben" and the "Breslau" should be sent out of Turkey, and that not only had these promises been broken, but further German officers and men had actually arrived. This proved conclusively that he was either insincere in his assurances or that he was powerless.

* See No. 88.

His Highness begged that I would credit him with the fact that for eight weeks he had kept the peace. He assured me that he had every intention of seeing to it that peace was maintained. I replied that it was not his good intentions that I doubted, but I did distinctly doubt his ability to control the situation. The Germans had evidently gained complete control. An incident might happen at any moment, and the most serious consequences might be involved. His Highness was evidently nettled at what I said, and angrily replied that he was determined to keep the peace, and that, in a matter of peace and war, he was absolute master. This I met by referring him to the serious character of the preparation at present on foot, and by pointing out that, whether he wished it or not, a repetition of the Arab raid across the Egyptian frontier might lead to incidents which would involve him. His Highness said that Minister of War was returning to-day, and that he would at once ask what the preparations were to which I referred. He asserted with violence that no incident would occur.

I have also seen Halill Bey, to whom news of preparations against Egypt seemed to be unknown. He expressed astonishment to hear of them, and was evidently horrified at the idea of war with us. He promised to go and see the Minister of War at once.

Position of Grand Vizier is difficult, and to maintain any kind of control, he is obliged to shut his eyes to much that is going on. I am still strongly of opinion that, unless some act of gross antagonism takes place, we should maintain policy of reserve and abstain from making categorical demands with which His Highness is not yet able to reply, continuing to devote all our efforts towards preventing Turkey from taking active part in hostilities which German and especially Austrian Ambassadors are urging. Main fact of the situation is that, in spite of great pressure, Grand Vizier has kept the peace, and that his party is gaining ground.

Two Germans connected with Bagdad Railway, one of whom is an expert in blasting operations and mine-laying, left Aleppo this morning for Damascus, the other telling his servant that they were going to Akaba. They had with them 1,600 dynamite cartridges and 1,500 metres of detonating wires. They may, perhaps, be commissioned to lay mines in Red Sea as there has been talk of Turkish military designs regarding Akaba recently.

AN incident has occurred outside the Dardanelles. At 6 o'clock this evening I heard that a Turkish destroyer was stopped last night outside the Dardanelles and turned back by one of our destroyers. Upon this, Commandant of the Dardanelles closed the Straits. When the news arrived, the Russian and French Ambassadors were with me, and we at once went to see the Grand Vizier. When I arrived the Grand Vizier was in a state of some perturbation. He said sudden action of British fleet had given rise to the belief that an immediate attack was contemplated. Having reassured His Highness that any such belief was unfounded, I said that it seemed to me highly desirable that the Dardanelles should be opened at once, for should the incident become known, it would certainly create the impression that some desperate step was intended by Turkish Government. I explained to His Highness that we were naturally apprehensive lest Germans on Turkish destroyers might endeavour to torpedo or mine our ships, and that it was for that reason that British fleet had been instructed to prevent any Turkish ships from leaving the Dardanelles, so long as any German officers or crews remained.

Grand Vizier asserted that he, personally, favoured the reopening of the Straits, and he requested me to assure His Majesty's Government, in the most formal and solemn manner, that Turkish Government would never make war upon Great Britain. I said that if the accounts that I had received were accurate, Turkish action on Egyptian frontier required explanation, where they had already committed acts of war. He said that facts had been greatly exaggerated ; that I might rest assured that there would be no more acts of aggression ; that there was no thought or question of attacking Egypt ; and that orders had been sent for the immediate withdrawal of raiding Bedouins. He added that moblisation was general, and therefore included those parts of the Empire contiguous to Egypt. He has promised to send a formal answer to my representations on the subject.

Germans are making capital out of closure of the Straits, and I hear on good authority that great pressure is being exerted by them to induce Turkey to attack Russia in the Black Sea. Turks have, however, refused so far to fall in with this scheme.

INFORMATION continues to reach me corroborating reports of Turkish preparations against Egypt. Large transport camel corps arrived at Jerusalem yesterday, and I hear of transport of warlike materials, food-stuffs, and military stores on line Jenin—Nablus—Jerusalem, and also to Maan. Seven German military officers have been sent to Damascus and neighbourhood. This has stimulated preparations, and it is believed in Syria that Turkish Government has decided upon a movement against Egypt, Damascus division being assembled for advance by Akaba, Jerusalem division for that by Rafa. Inhabitants at Beirout and Haifa are being removed inland as a precautionary measure against any action which may be taken by British fleet when the advance on Egypt begins. It is reported from Haifa that localities along the coast are being garrisoned by newly-arrived troops. I have brought the gravity of the existing situation to the notice of the Grand Vizier in the strongest terms in a further note, though I do not view any actual movement against Egypt as imminent at the moment. In my note I have informed His Highness that the measures now undertaken can have no reason except as a threat against Egypt, and that they can no longer be regarded as incidental to an ordinary mobilisation of troops in their peace stations, and I have stated that His Majesty's Government can only view any further preparations at Jerusalem or at Maan in a serious light.

In addition to above-mentioned military measures, movements of suspicious individuals have now been supplemented by those of a German naval officer named Hilgendorf, who is at present on his way from Damascus to Petra with a party of eight Germans. It is understood that they will be joined by a smaller party from Haifa viâ Amman, and that they are conveying a large supply of explosives. I have made representations to the Grand Vizier explaining that such hostile enterprizes against Great Britain cannot be allowed in a neutral country, and that these people must be arrested.

Speaking generally, I am inclined to think that both in the neighbourhood of Constantinople, on the Black Sea, the Egyptian frontier, and elsewhere, the Turks intend to have their troops all ready for action at a favourable point should the general European situation afford a good oppurtunity. Should the German Admiral take the "Goeben" into the Black Sea and attack the Russian fleet, or should things take an unfavourable turn for the Allies, Turkish troops would be in a position to cross the Egyptian frontier without much further delay. His Majesty's Government will doubtless consider what, if any, military measures are necessary for the strengthening of strategical points in the Sinai peninsula.

CLOSING of Dardanelles.

Germans have certainly long been working for the closing of the Straits, presumably with the object of obtaining a freer hand in the Black Sea. There is every reason to suppose that the Dardanelles are closed to shipping not only by administrative act; but also effectively by mines. From information that reaches me from a reliable source, it seems that these mines have been laid by the Germans, and that the Turks are unaware of their position.

TURKEY is now bankrupt. Supply of coal is, I am glad to say, cut off. Fresh provisions are not coming in, and there is some discontent in the navy and even in the army. Situation is doubtless very delicate, but Turks would be unlikely to go all lengths with Germany, at any rate until German success in the war seems more assured. I think that Turks are possibly less blind to their interests than is generally supposed, and I am still of opinion that situation may be saved. Time is now on our side, and I am strongly in favour of avoiding all occasion of conflict by temporising.

The question of reopening the Dardanelles is really no longer a practical one, for the Straits are now effectively closed by mines, and I am informed that their position is unknown to the Turks themselves.

Russian and French Ambassadors agree with me that our interests are not primarily affected by the closure, as the requistioning and other measures taken by the Turks against our nationals had already stopped our trade. This is the line I am taking with the Turks. I think they will begin to realize the facts before long. Total cessation of imports is already causing anxiety to Minister of Finance, and Turkish Government will soon become aware that they are the chief losers. The Germans have closed the Straits from political motives, partly, no doubt, because they believe that, by closing the Straits and preventing the entry of the British fleet it will be easier for them to induce the Turks to take action against Russia in the Black Sea; partly, no doubt, in order to injure the trade of the Allies and to prevent communication by sea with Russia.

I think that self-interested designs of Germany are not unknown to the Turks, who are playing up to Germany, not with the intention of falling in with those designs, at any rate for the present, to the extent of making war, but in order to extract as much as possible from her. In the opinion of many people, Germans are now in a position to take matters into their own hands, if they think that German interests demand it. If, however, the Turks' game is such as I have outlined above, it is undoubtedly a dangerous one. As is only natural, Turkish Government profess their ability to check any attempt on the part of Germany to take matters into their own hands, but it is not quite clear how they would be able to prevent it.

MILITARY attaché had a long interview with Minister of War yesterday, from which he derived the impression that his Excellency had ambitious schemes in the Arab world and in Egypt. These may perhaps refer more to the future, and possibly measures are now being taken so as to prepare for the eventuality of Great Britain being worsted in war with Germany; meanwhile the way is being paved indirectly for present or future action. During the conversation, Minister of War disclaimed any intention on the part of the Turks of initiating, themselves, any offensive movements against Egypt, and pointed out that ordinary Syrian garrison had not been reinforced. He said that, as in the case of other troops within the Empire, Syrian garrison had been fully mobilised. It was being equipped with necessary transport animals, etc., on a war scale, and it was being carefully trained with the help of the officers of the German Mission as elsewhere throughout Turkey. Everything, he said, depended on the political situation, for which he was not responsible individually; and it was quite possible that the Syrian Army corps might finally be moved in another direction, even, perhaps, to Constantinople. He scouted the idea of individual Germans undertaking enterprises against the Suez Canal or elsewhere, but he admitted that proposals had certainly been made to the Bedouin tribes to enlist their sympathies as supporters of the Empire in all eventualities. He defended the concentration of stores at Maan, Nablus, and Jerusalem, and he added that no troops, but only gendarmes, had been moved in the direction of Gaza. Nevertheless, he could not deny that some of the measures taken were certainly precautionary against Great Britain, and in justification of this he pointed to the entrance of British Men-of-War into the Shatt-el-Arab, to the arrival of Indian troops in Egypt, and to the presence of the British fleet in Turkish territorial waters outside the Dardanelles. Military attaché said that, as far as the action of the fleet and of His Majesty's Government were concerned, this was due to infringement of neutrality by the Turks, and Great Britain certainly had not the slightest intention of making any attack upon Turkey. It was quite ridiculous to suppose that the arrival of Indian troops in Egypt had anything to do with hostility to Turkey. Minister of War at once advanced such arguments as that Turkey had maintained her neutrality; that German officers and men on auxiliary ships were entirely under Turkish control, indeed they were in the Turkish service. Military attache said that Turks could not be surprised that Great Britain should be preoccupied if Turkish troops were assembled further south than Jerusalem or Beersaheba on the one side, or Maan on the other.

"Vali says that he must obey the orders which he has received. He has communicated a copy of these to me. They are to the effect that the whole of the Shatt-el-Arab and Sea within six miles of the shore are closed to warships, as they are territorial waters. Any Men-of-War disregarding this prohibition will be fired upon by the guns at Fao. These regulations will be enforced from to-morrow evening, Wednesday, 7th October. They are somewhat obscure, but they mean that H.M.S. 'Espiègle' in the Karun and H.M.S. 'Dalhousie' at Abadan will be interned, unless they leave before the time fixed. No other British Man-of-War is this side of Fao. H.M.S. 'Lawrence' is in the Shatt-el-Arab to the best of my belief. His Majesty's Consul at Mohammerah has been informed of the above."

H.M.SS. "Espiegle," "Odin," and "Dalhousie" are not in Turkish waters. There can be no question of their being ordered out of waters which are not Turkish nor of their being interned by the Turkish Government. According to generally accepted principles of international law. Turkish territorial waters extend to 3 miles out to sea from the coast. Two of His Majesty's ships are being instructed to keep outside the 3-mile limit, while the remaining ship is being told to remain at Mohammerah, which does not belong to Turkey. Our long-established right to pass freely up and down Shatt-el-Arab at all times is not in question, and it must be recognised that we fully reserve that right.

Constantinople, September 22, 1914.

Sir,

REFERRING to your telegram of 25th August,* in which I was authorised to convey to His Imperial Majesty a message from the King, on the occasion of my reception in audience after my return from leave of absence, I have the honour to state that I was received in audience by His Imperial Majesty yesterdy.

In view of the difficulty of conversing with His Majesty in an ordinary way, I prepared a written statement containing the message, and I read a separate statement of my own on the subject of the withdrawal of Admiral Limpus, having previously arranged with the Master of the Ceremonies, who was to act as interpreter, that this should be translated clause by clause as I read it. I enclose a copy of these statements which I read as arranged, subject to some slight modifications necessitated by the turn which the interview took.

His Imperial Majesty seemed not only fully to grasp the sense of the communication, to which he listened with eager attention, but responded to it immediately with great vivacity and vehemence, showing a considerable grasp of the issues with which his country is now confronted.

I was much impressed with the earnestness of His Imperial Majesty's repeated assurances of his desire and determination to maintain the ancient friendship between the two Empires and to avoid war with any Power.

A memorandum is enclosed recording what passed at my audience.

I have, etc.,

LOUIS MALLET.

Communication read to the Sultan by Sir L. Mallet on September 21, 1914.

décision prise par son Gouvernement de rendre ces vaisseaux à la Turquie à la fin de la guerre actuelle suffira pour la convaincre que leur détention ne fut motivée par aucune intention inimicale envers l'Empire, qui est lié avec le sien par une amitié plus que séculaire. C'est parse que cette amitié n'a jamais été rompue que mon Souverain espére que la Turque ne fera rien qui puisse empêcher son Gouvernement de donner suite à cette décision, qu'elle gardera une neutralité stricte et absolue pendant la guerre actuelle, et que l'on ne tardera pas à mettre fin à quelques faits centraires à la neutralité qui ont provoqué quelque inquiétude au sujet de l'attitude du Gouvernement ottoman.

thinks that the decision of his Government to return these vessels to Turkey at the end of the present war will suffice to convince you that their detention was due to no unfriendly intention towards an Empire bound to his by a friendship of more than a century. It is owing to the fact that this friendship has never been broken that my Sovereign trusts that Turkey will do nothing to prevent his Government from acting up to this decision, that she will maintain strict and absolute neutrality during the present war, and that there will be no delay in putting an end to certain facts contrary to neutrality which have caused some anxiety as to the attitude of the Turkish Government.

Statement by Sir L. Mallet with regard to Admiral Limpus on September 22, 1914.

L'AMIRAL LIMPUS, qui, sous les auspices de votre Majesté, rendu de si grands services à la marine Impériale, m'a prié de faire part à votre Majesté de son regret de ne pas avoir pu déposer ses hommages an pied de son trône avant de quitter Constantinople. Votre Majesté n'ignore pas los circonstances qui ont necessité son départ, du moment que lui et la mission navale qu'il présidait ont été rélégués à une position où ils ne pouvaient plus rien faire pour le bien de la marine ottomane. Rappelé par mon Gouvernement dans ces circonstances regrettables. l'Amiral Limpus s'est vu forcé de se rendre aux ordres de ses chefs et à quitter Constantinople dans un délai tropcourt pour lui permettre de demander une audience de votre Majesté.

ADMIRAL LIMPUS, who, under your Majesty's auspices, has rendered such great services to the Turkish navy, has begged me to inform your Majesty of his regret that he was unable to pay his respects to your Majesty before leaving Constantinople. Your Majesty is aware of the circumstances necessitating his departure from the moment when he and the naval mission under his command were relegated to a position in which they could do nothing further for the welfare of the Turkish navy. Recalled in these regrettable circumstances by my Government, Admiral Limpus was obliged to obey the orders of his superiors and to leave Constantipole within too short a space to be able to request an audience of your Majesty.

Enlosure 3 in No. 112.

Memorandum.

THE Sultan listened to my communication in silence until the Master of the Ceremonies translated the clause containing the words "quelques faits contraires a la neutralilé." He then broke in with an eager disclaimer of any unneutral conduct on the part of Turkey. On my mentioning, as a specific instance, the retention of German officers and crews on board the "Goeben" and "Breslau," His Majesty explained with some lucidity that they had been kept for a short time to train the Turkish crews. The "captains" available in the Turkish navy were unequal to the task, and it was necessary for that reason to do what had been done. The German crews would be sent away in "five or ten days," and the officers also. Only one or two of the latter would be retained. He would speak frankly, he said. Great Britain was a great Power with a great navy, and had no need of the two ships of the Ottoman fleet. Great Britain had taken them, but he knew they would be given back at the end of the war. On my remarking that Great Britain wished to make absolutely sure of the position at sea, the Sultan again said that she was too great a Maritime Power to need these ships, but he once more stated his conviction that they would be given back. Anyhow, he and his Government were not going to depart from their neutrality. His Majesty repeated this more than once, saying that they knew that that was the only path of safety, and that his great desire was to keep the peace. He laid stress on the friendship between Great Britain and Turkey. This was the more striking, because the words were not put into his mouth, as might be supposed, by myself, the Master of Ceremonies having quite failed to render the parts of my communication in which I dwelt on past relations between England and Turkey.

When, referring to what the Sultan had said about the need for training his navy, I expressed regret that the British Naval Mission had not been allowed to complete that task. His Majesty did not seem to grasp the main point, but on my referring to the circumstances of Admiral Limpus's departure, he broke in with some emotion, and said twice over that it was not by his wish that the Admiral had left Constantinople without an audience. The Admiral had not asked for one or come to the Palace. Had he done so he, the Sultan, would have postponed all other business in order to see him. I said I would convey this to Admiral Limpus. I also promised to communicate the Sultan's assurances, which I said I sincerely believed, to the King who would be gratified at receiving them.

Just before I took my leave, His Majesty was good enough to express his warm personal regard, and made some further kind remarks about the value which he attached to his personal relations with me. The Sultan spoke throughout in the most homely language, but with great liveliness and point, and with obvious sincerity. His assurances about his desire to observe neutrality and remain at peace, rather lost than gained in force by the way in which the Master of Ceremonies (whose mind is slow and whose French is defective) translated them. His remarks on the embargo on the two ships were plainly, but not discourteously or resentfully, worded.

THERE has been fighting during the last few days on frontier between Russian troops and Kurds supported by Turkish troops. Last night Russian Ambassador made strong representations to the Grand Vizier, and said that the Turkish Government must restrain the activities of their troops on the frontier. Furthermore, Russian Consul had been arrested. Replying to these representations, Grand Vizier assured Russian Ambassador, in writing, that the Consul should be released at once and that the fighting should cease. Russian Ambassador has certain information that Turks are being incited to fight by Germans and Austrians. His Excellency agrees with me that Grand Vizier is honestly exercising what influence he has in favour of peace, but it is doubtful if he has the power to restrain the military party under Enver Pasha.

IT is highly probable that for some time past money has been sent to Syria mainly with the object of subsidising the Bedouins. It is also supposed that the Germans in Syria have had sums of money with them. The following is the number of German military officers known to be in Syria at present: Seven who went there some time ago, of whom Colonel Kress von Kressenstein is one, four who arrived 2nd October at Damascus, and five more who arrived there on 6th October. My information is to the effect that seven more may since have arrived at Alexandretta. Meanwhile, another party of Turkish sailors is leaving Constantinople overland for Bagdad and the Tigris. Information has just reached me from Damascus to the effect that Colonel von Kressenstein had gone to Maan to inspect, but only two military trains with details and stores had left in the last two days. West of the Jordan no movements had taken place. Two railway vans of dynamite had left Damascus for Beirout; 4,000 Mosul troops had reached Aleppo, but were waiting there for the present.

IT seems to me that the key of the situation lies in Constantinople. It would be fatal to give way to Turkish demands beyond a certain point, especially in the Persian Gulf, but, nevertheless, I entirely share your view that His Majesty's Government should avoid giving even a plausible cause of offence to Turkey. I think that our attitude during the past eight weeks has shown irrefutably that we desire to avoid a rupture with Turkey.

I HAVE received note dated the 11th October from Porte, of which following is substance:—

From information received by Porte, two British Men-of-War have one after the other passed up the Shatt-el-Arab to anchor at Mohammerah.

According to Treaty of Erzeroum, the town of Mohammerah and its port belong to Persia, whilst Shatt-el-Arab is under Turkish domination.

This principle was reaffirmed by Turco-British Declaration of the 29th July, 1913, which specifies that from Nahr Nazaille, above Mohammerah, frontier follows river to sea, leaving under Turkish sovereignty river itself and all the islands expect ten, and modern port and anchorage of Mohammerah. This port and the anchorage thus formed an enclave in Ottoman waters which must be traversed in order to reach them. Consequently Men-of-War in question have not respected Imperial territory in penetrating into her internal waters and have disregarded neutrality of Porte whose duty it is not to allow passage of foreign Men-of-War.

On these grounds the Porte asks me to cause instructions to be sent to Commanders of Men-of-War in question to leave the port of Mohammerah within eight days and to go to sea.

MY despatch of the 4th October.*

I have received note from the Porte in reply to my note of the 2nd October respecting Turkish preparations against Egypt.

It says that military activity in Syria is common to all provinces of the Empire and is natural consequence of mobilisation, having no other object than to put Turkey on a footing to defend her neutrality. Turkey's position being one of simple and legitimate precautions, it will be readily recognised that it would not be conceivable that she should change it in order to attack Egypt, which is one of her own provinces.

The Porte goes on to observe that, although I have on several occasions assured Grand Vizier that His Majesty's Government have no intention of altering status of Egypt, yet declaration that Egypt is in a state of war, dismissal of German and Austrian agents, who receive their exequaturs from the Porte, and above all arrival in Egypt of important contingents from India as well as other acts, have attracted serious attention of Imperial Government and have created real anxiety.

Note concludes by reiterating to me assurance that Turkey has no hostile intention towards any Power whatever, and that military preparations have purely and exclusively defensive character.

I think that it would be right to remind Grand Vizier that I have always made it perfectly clear that undertaking not to change the status of Egypt was conditional on Turkey maintaining strict neutrality.

I DO not think that we could now leave Mohammerah without loss of prestige. In view of receipt of Vali's note respecting presence of British men-of-war in the Shatt-el-Arab, effect of moving His Majesty's ships at the request of the Turkish Government, once they were sent to Mohammerah, might have led the Arabs to misinterpret the action of His Majesty's Government.

I would not regard the note in the light of an ultimatum, though it is not impossible that Turks might close the channel, and thus prevent His Majesty's ship from going out, except in agreement with the Turkish authorities.

General belief is that Germans are at present applying considerable pressure upon the Turks to take part in the war, but that the Turks are so far resisting. My anxiety is lest the resistance which the Minister of War is encountering from the Moderates should be weakened by any act on our part which could be interpreted as aggressive by the Turks. Enver Pasha is said to be in favour of immediate co-operation with the Germans.

In the course of ensuing conversation, His Highness seemed as confident as ever that he was able to resist German pressure, and he repeated that he was absolulely determined to avoid war in any case.

"His Majesty's Government are prepared to respond in a conciliatory spirit whenever the Ottoman Government shall have conformed, as a neutral, to the principles of international law prescribing the duties of neutral Powers.

Interrogatories of Lieutenant Mors.

MULAZIM AWAL ROBERT CASIMIR OTTO MORS, Egyptian Police, examined, states:—

"At Constinople I was acquainted with a German official who was formerly in the German Diplomatic Agency in Cairo. This gentleman, whose name I must refuse to give, was in agreement with the Turkish Government on the subject of military operations in Egypt, and as he knew that I knew Egypt very well, he conducted me to Enver Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War. The latter questioned me on the military situation; if it were true that the British had disarmed the Egyptian army, etc. I replied that I did not know, and thought it unlikely. I then left the presence of Enver, and he remained talking with the German official. I forgot to mention that he asked me if I would participate in operations in Egypt. I replied that I would only participate in open military action. I was afterwards informed by the German official that Enver had sent officers from the Turkish army to Egypt to prepare native public opinion for action in favour of Turkey. I also heard from the German official that one of Enver's emissaries was an officer of the Egyptian army, but I did not know his name then. I must mention here that I understood from various things and from conversations that I overheard between the said German official and various people that he had the intention of sending printed matters and explosives to Egypt. I also understood that it was the Egyptian army officer who was charged with the transport of these things. We were held up in the Dardanelles for six days owing to the wreck of a cargo boat. On the second we were stopped there; the 'Bash Reis' (boatswain) of the 'Saidieh' brought me a small leather bag (which I recognised as being the property of the said German official), and told me that somebody on board had given it to him to give to the passenger in No. 7 cabin, viz., my cabin. At the same time the 'Bash Reis' asked me if it belonged to me. I said 'Yes,' because I began to suspect that the contents of the bag were the explosives that I had heard about. I opened the bag and found it was half full of packing material; and on probing it I found there were hard substances underneath. I thought that if I said that the sack did not belong to me it might be handed over to the ship's captain, and it would then be discovered what the contents were, and an accident might even occur. I did not know at this time that the 'Bash Reis' had guilty knowledge of the contents of the bag, and therefore told him that there was nothing in it. I then took it into my cabin to examine it, and found the two tin boxes which you seized. While we were still in the Dardanelles—as far as I can remember it was the fourth day there—the Egyptian officer came to me and said in Arabic: 'Are you not the passenger occupying No. 7 cabin?' I said: 'Yes; why?' and he said: 'Have you received the things'? ('Wasal-lak el shay?') I replied: 'Was it you who sent it to me?' He said: 'Perhaps' ('Yimkin').

"I then said: 'What have such things to do with me?' He said: 'I cannot keep such things myself.' I then asked him who gave them to him. He replied: 'Fouad.' I do not know who this Fouad is exactly, but it is possibly Ahmad Fouad at Constantinople, whom I have seen with the German official, and who is an intimate friend of Sheik Abd-el-Aziz Shawish, according to all reports. He then told me his name was Ahmad Hamuda, and that he had fought against the Italians in Tripoli. He showed me his card, on which was written: 'Ahmad Hamuda, Officer of the Egyptian Army.' I do not remember if the card bore his rank or not. I saw Ahmad Hamuda Effendi after leaving Piræus, when he came and asked me what I had done with the tin boxes. I understood, from the way he put it, that he wanted to take them from me, but this is only an idea I had. I told him I had thrown them overboard. When we were anchored in the harbour, he again came and asked me to take his revolver ashore. I replied that I had my own revolver, and that I should be searched like everybody else. He then asked me if they would search his wife. I said: 'Naturally they have female searchers at the Customs.'

"I had the intention of throwing the tin boxes overboard, but I was afraid that they might explode on striking the water. I therefore procured some cord with which I meant to lower them into the water. I never got a chance, and I was afraid that the propeller would catch the cord, and the steamer might be blown up or damaged.

"Another thing which deterred me was that I was afraid the boxes might float and be dangerous to shipping, so I postponed it until our arrival at Smyrna, where I telegraphed to the German official at Constantinople stating that two tin boxes with unknown contents had been handed to me, and I desired instructions. At Piræus I received a telegram telling me to throw them overboard, which, for the reasons I have just given, I again postponed."

Q. Have you any witnesses to prove that the boatswain gave you the bag containing the tin boxes?—A. Yes; a certain Fortunato, the cabin steward, was present, and I gave him the bag with the packing after removing the tin boxes, asking him to throw the packing overboard. He did so, and returned me the bag.

On arrival in port here I gave the tin boxes to Mohamed Ali, the purser, and asked him to keep them with him until he had a chance to throw them overboard without being observed by the various launches. I also recommended him not to throw them from the deck, but to descend the gangway and drop them into the sea carefully after weighting them with a piece of iron. I told him they contained dangerous substances, and to be very careful. I noticed he seemed afraid, and told him if he did not wish to do it he should give them back to me. He said he did not mind doing it, and if I wished he would pass them through the Customs for me without difficulty.

Q.—Why did you select Mohamed Ali for the mission?—A. Because I heard at Piræus that he was a Turkish Agent.

Q. From whom did you hear this?—A. From a Turk at the German Consulate at Piræus.

Q. How did you meet this Turk?—A. He was introduced to me by the German Vice-Consul.

Q. What is his name?—A. I do not remember. He gave me his visiting card, and I destroyed it.

Q. How did you approach Mohamed Ali on the subject?—A. I showed him the visiting card of the Turk, to which he said at once, salaaming with his hand, "Ahlan wa Sahlan."

Q. Where did you procure the map of the Suez Canal?—A. It was given to me by the German official.

Q. Why did he give you the map?—A. I do not know. We were talking together, and he showed me the map. I admired it, and he told me to take it.

Q. Where did you get the cypher found with your effects?—A. I invented it with the assistance of the German official, for correspondence with him at Constantinople.

Q. Where is the key to it?—A. I destroyed it.

Q. Can you tell me what it was?—A. It was to let him know if the Egyptian army had been disbanded; if there were difficulties for me here to enter the country; by what route I intended to return, etc.

R. MORS.

Enquiry into Mors's Case, held on September 28, 1914.

1. Mors interrogated.

Q. Can you explain this telegram (telegram addressed to "Prill, Bacos, Bulkely, Alexandria," from Schneider)?—A. No. You must ask the French lady who is staying with us ("il faut demander á Mademoisselle chez nous"), as it is a private telegram of hers. It seems to be asking news of her health.

Q. Who is Schneider?—A. I do not know.

Q. Who is Omar Fawzi and Suliman Askari?—A. Two officers I met in Constantinople whom the German introduced to me.

Q. Where did you meet them?—A. At the hotel Tokatlian in Constantinople.

Q. What is the name of this German official?—A. I do not know.

Q. When was he in Cairo?—A. Two years ago.

Q. Was this your first visit to Constantinople?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you know this gentleman before?—A. No.

Q. You realise that your position is a serious one?—A. Yes.

Q. You refuse to give his name?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me the name of the Turk whom you met in Alexandra?—A. I must refuse, but if you suggest his name I will tell you if you are right or wrong.

Q. Do you deny that the German official is Baron Oppenheim?—A. Yes; Oppenheim is at Berlin.

Q. Do you know Baron Oppenheim?—A. I have never seen, but often heard of him. He is over 50 years of age. According to Berlin opinion, he is merely a "blagueur," and of no importance.

Q. Did you see Ezzedin Fawzi in Constantinople?—A. No; he had left before I arrived.

Q. What did he do there?—A. I do not know. I heard from my sister-in-law that he had left for Constantinople. He was charged with my private affairs.

Q. Was not this rather a serious arrangement to make?—A. No; he was always a great friend of mine.

Q. Do you know his political opinions?—A. No.

Q. You appear to have had some previous knowledge of the preparation of explosives for use in Egypt?—A. I heard in Constantinople that something of the nature of explosives were to be prepared and sent to Egypt.

Q. What was the ultimate destination of these things?—A. I don't know. I was only three days at Constantinople.

Q. Have these explosives penetrated into Egypt?—A. I don't know. Perhaps other emissaries arrived in Egypt at the same time as I did.

Q. Who is Fahmy Bey?—A. Mohamed Bey Fahmy, Master of Ceremonies in the Khedive's household, who arrived in Constantinople in the "Saidieh."

Q. How did you get to know him?—A. He rented our house three years ago.

Q. Who sent you this telegram?—A. It was the answer to my telegram.

Q. Why did you send the first telegram?—A. To see if it were possible and advisable, in view of the reported state of things in Egypt, for me to return here, or if it would be better for my family to join me there.

Q. Is this the bag you brought with you?—A. Yes.

Q. Who sent it to you?—A. I do not know. The boatswain brought it to me saying it was for whoever occupied cabin No. 7. Probably Ahmad Hamuda gave it to him to give to me.

Q. Did you see Enver Pasha in Constantinople?—A. Yes. I had a conversation with him.

Q. How was it that you had this conversation?—A. The German official introduced me to Enver at the War Office.

Q. What did Enver Pasha say to you?—A. He questioned me as to the state of affairs in Egypt.

Q. Is the German official a German naval officer?—A. No.

Q. Did Enver Pasha express any opinions?—A. He said that he wanted a campaign against Egypt, should war break out, for which two army corps would be required.

Q. What did he want you to do here?—A. He asked me if I would help.

Q. What did you reply?—A. I agreed to do so in the event of a Military expedition.

Q. Who gave you the idea that explosives were being prepared to be sent to Egypt?—A. I suspected the German officer, whom I saw with an Egyptian Effendi unknown to me.

Q. How did Ahmad Hamuda get to know you?—A. He came to see me on the voyage—in the Dardanelles, I think.

Q. Why did he trust you?—A. I do not know.

Q. Had you made no previous promises?—A. No.

Q. Whom did you see at the Piræus?—A. The consul, where I saw the telegrams and the Turkish gentleman who told me of Mohamed Ali, the purser.

Q. Why did you send this telegram?—A Because I know something was being prepared, and suspected that the bag had some connection with it. Besides there were several emissaries on board, and there had been many circulars in the hotels in Constantinople.

Q. Who were these emissaries?—A. I do not know, but I head that Sheikh Shawish had said there were thirteen who had left.

Q. Will you explain how you knew of these preparations?—A. Through the German official and various people I met casually at odd times. The German official arrived in Constantinople from Berlin the day before me.

Q. Did Omar Fawzi speak to you of Egypt?—A. Yes; he said he had fought in Tripoli and had been to Egypt where he had many friends.

Q. Where did you meet the Turk at Piræus?—A. At the German consulate.

Q. Have you ever visited Tchiboukli Palace?—A. No.

Q. Why did you write Omar Fawzi's name in the piece of paper?—A. Because I had to meet him at the "Petit Champs," a restaurant in Constantinople, and I wished to remember.

Q. Will you explain what the code found in your tarbush was?—A. The references to cotton were information about troops, the best quality denoted British and the inferior Native soldiers. Kantars referred to the number of men. Certain phrases referred to the disarmament of Egyptian troops. "Suis disposè," I recollect, meant that I should return.

Q. When did you want to leave the country?—A. As soon as possible, for I understood that all Germans serving under foreign Governments had to resign.

Q. What did "venez per le premier bateau" mean?—A. That things were in a dangerous state here.

Q. And No 15?—A. "Don't come to Turkey."

Q. "Ne venez pas-tout arrangè"?—A. I have forgotten.

Q. "Venez de suits"?—A. I have forgotten.

Q. "Bèbè va mieux"?—A. I have forgotten—all this was made up hurriedly before I left Constantinople during the last half-hour when I was packing my luggage. I did not look at it again before I destroyed the key-; it is now three weeks since I left Constantinople.

Q. How is it that you know some of the expressions and not others?—A. In view of what I have explained, it seems clear. Those referring to the "Sante de la famille" refer to Turkish officers, but I cannot remember the details.

Q. Did it refer to their going to the Red Sea?—A. I don't know, but I have an idea it was with a view to finding out what difficulties were placed in the way of Turkish officers in Egypt.

Q. Who was to have taken charge of the explosives here?—A. The agents of Sheikh Shawish.

Q. Who?—A. I do not know.

Q. Did you not know that the German official was going to give you these things?—A No.

Q. How did you recognise the bag?—A. I saw it in the hotal at Constantinople and recognised the repair which I had seen at a restaurant in the hands of an effendi.

Q. How did you get to know so many people?—A. I met them casually at the hotel and the German Embassy, where I called and learnt that it was difficult to get to Egypt.

Q. How did you meet the German official?—A. I met him at the embassy.

2. Boatswain interrogated.

Q. Have you seen this bag before?—A. Yes. I first saw it on board the "Saidieh" in Constantinople on the 3rd September with a sailor called Ali, who asked me to give it to the occupant of cabin No. 7.

Q. Where was it given to you?—A. I think on deck. I told Ali that he had better give it to a steward in the first class, which he did. The next morning Mors asked me who had given me the bag.

Q. Why should Mors have asked you this? How was it that he connected the bag with you?—A. Because I told the steward to give it to him, and perhaps he told Mors so.

Q. When did Mors speak to you?—A. The next morning at about 8 A.M. He brought me the bag and asked me who gave it to me, as he wanted to give me a tip. I refused the latter as it was not I who brought the bag.

Q. Who gave Ali the bag?—A. He told me an Arab did so.

Q. Was the latter on the steamer?—A. I do not know.

3. Mors and Boatswain confronted.

Q. (To Mors.) Who brought you this bag?—A. This boatswain with the steward.

Q. Did you offer the boatswain a tip?—A. Yes, but he refused it.

Q. Why did you want to give it to him if the bag was not yours?—A. I accepted the bag for the reasons I have already given you.

Q. Why offer him a tip?—A. For the sake of my friend, and because I did not want the matter exposed.

Q. Who gave him the bag?—A. I do not know, but it must have been Ahmad Hamuda.

Q. (To the Boatswain.) Do you know Ahmad Hamuda?—A. No.

THE whole of the Turkish fleet has re-entered the Bosphorus.

The "Leros" and "Lrissos," two German steamers which have been convoyed from Sulina by the "Breslau," sailed under the Turkish flag until they were inside the Bosphorus. The same thing was done on a former occasion, when two ships from Black Sea ports were similarly convoyed by the "Breslau."

ABOUT 600 Moslem "fedahis," dressed in various guises, have arrived at Aleppo in batches during past fortnight, their head being an officer related to Ottoman Minister of War; 400 of these came from Smyrna, where they had incited Moslems against Greeks. At Aleppo they intrigued, with the aid of Committee of Union and Progress, with Sheikhs against Great Britain. Discourses of a guarded anti-British tendency were pronounced in mosques. The last batch left Aleppo 12th October by rail. Parties of them have proceeded to Hama, Homs, Baalbek, Damascus, the Hauran to incite Sheikhs against Great Britain, and they are to continue their journey south by Hedjaz Railway, and to find their way into Egypt to incite Moslems there. Many of the principal Sheikhs of Aleppo seem now gained over to side of Germany.

SON of Kurdish chief Issa, who is stated to have influence in Mesopotamia, and who has been in Constantinople for instructions, is said to have left for Basrah to work anti-English propaganda, and other agents, including Germans, are said to be on their way to Afghanistan on similar errand.

I learn that Zekki Pasha, commander of 8th corps, has lately received £5,000 to distribute amongst Bedouins, and that as much as £35,000 in gold left here by train on 12th for Syria. Senator Abdurrahman is working among Bedouins at Maan and Muntaz Bey on the west by Beersheba and Jerusalem.

Party of Turkish sailors mentioned as having left here by train for Basrah are now stated to be on the way to Akaba with consignment of metal boats. Another lot of boats is at Rayak, possibly on the way to Beirout. Quantities of dynamite have been sent to the coast towns of Syria, probably to serve for mining purposes of land defence. This is in addition to sea mines which have been also forwarded. Numbers of " working battalions " (soldiers as yet untrained) are road constructing in southern Syria.

All above and previous reports in a similar sense show that there is very considerable activity being directed in a sence hostile to us, and this activity is being worked by German influence and agents in every conceivable direction. Probably Government as a whole have little control over these activities, but do not disapprove of them. As regards actual military preparations, Germen element has sufficient power to persuade the authorities on certain points. German press is directing movement, and has obtained despatch of numbers of German officers to Syria to superintend preparations and training of corps there for war, concentration of stores and supplies at suitable spots, preparation of lines of communcation and defence of coast.

POUR faire suite à ma note du 9 courant, j'ai l'honneur d'informer votre Excellence que par suite de l'abrogation des Capitulations à compter du 1er octobre, 1914, les bureaux des postes étrangères fonctionnant provisoirement dans l'Empire devront cesser leurs opérations à partir de cette date.

Je prie, par conséquent, votre Excellence de vouloir bien inviter les directeurs des bureaux de postes anglaises se trouvant en Turquie à agir en conformité des communications qui leur ont été faites par le Ministére Impérial des Postes et Télégraphes et dont copies ont été déjà transmises à l'Ambassade de Sa Majesté britannique en date 24 septembre, 1914.

Constantinople, September 27, 1914.

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

IN continuation of my note of the 9th instant, I have the honour to inform you that, in consequence of the abolition of the Capitulations as from the 1st October, 1914, the foreign post offices provisionally existing in the Turkish Empire must cease working from that date.

I accordingly request your Excellency to be so good as to request the directors of British post offices in Turkey to act in conformity with the communications addressed to them by the Imperial Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, copies of which have already been communicated to His Britannic Majesty's Embassy on the 24th September 1914.

M. LE MINISTRE,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the note dated 27th September, by which your Highness requests me to instruct the directors of the British post offices established in the Ottoman Empire to act in accordance with the communications which have been addressed to them by officials of the Imperial Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs with a view to their ceasing their operations from to-day onwards.

The fact that a measure of such importance affecting an official department of His Majesty's Government should have been adopted in virtue of a unilateral decision of the Sublime Porte, and that effect has been given to the measure in so precipitate a manner, compels me to formulate the most express reservations both as to the procedure followed and as to the principle underlying the question.

With a view to avoiding incidents of a public nature I have instructed the British post offices in the Empire to suspend their ordinary postal operations from to-day onwards. By so doing and by authorising a verbal exchange of views, in order to mitigate the inconvenience resulting from this suspension, I must not be considered to have prejudiced the question of principle. It will be for my Government to consider what further action shall be taken in the matter.

YOUR HIGHNESS.

ON the occasion of the audience which His Imperial Majesty the Sultan was graciously pleased to accord me on the 21st ultimo, I had the honour to convey to His Imperial Majesty a message from the King, my Sovereign, respecting the detention in England of the two Turkish vessels of war. I had previously communicated to your Highness the substance of this message, as your Highness will doubtless remember. His Imperial Majesty deigned in reply to charge me with his thanks to the King, my Sovereign, and whilst regretting that His Majesty's Government should have detained the vessels, which seemed unnecessary in view of the large naval supremacy of Great Britain, His Imperial Majesty said that he was unalterably determined to maintain the historic friendship between the two countries and on no account to depart from the neutrality which had hitherto been observed by his Government. Referring to a passage in the King's message, expressing His Majesty's regret at certain events which had seemed to impair that neutrality, His Imperial Majesty authorized me to inform the King that the services of the German Admiral, officers and crews of the German warships had been temporarily retained in order to train the Turkish officers and crews, but that the task was on the point of accomplishment, and that they would return to Germany within a few days' time.

I replied that these assurances—which I had also received repeatedly from your Highness—would not fail to give great satisfaction to the King, coming as they did from the lips of His Imperial Majesty the Sultan himself.

I now address myself to your Highness to enquire whether the Ottoman Government have the intention of repatriating the German officers and crews in accordance with the oft-repeated assurances of your Highness, which have now been solemnly confirmed by His Imperial Majesty the Sultan.

If such is their intention, I should be grateful if I might be informed of the date on which their departure will take place.

Note verbale communicated to Sublime Porte.

His Britannic Majesty's Embassy has received instructions from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to make the following statement to the Imperial Ministry for Foreign Affairs:—

His Britannic Majesty's Government expressly confirm the protest against the suppression of the Capitulations which His Majesty's Ambassador addressed to the Imperial Minister for Foreign Affairs on the 10th ultimo.

The régime of the Capitulations being founded on synallagmatic instruments the Porte cannot abrogate them by a unilateral act. His Majesty's Government therefore reserve their full liberty of action as regards the measures which the Ottoman authorities may have taken or may take in violation of the Capitulations and will demand due reparation for any prejudice which their subjects may suffer in consequence of such measures.

His Majesty's Government, desirous of maintaining the friendly relations which have hitherto existed with the Ottoman Empire, feel constrained to call the serious attention of the Porte to the consequences which may follow upon the adoption of the new policy upon which the Imperial Government would seem to have embarked.

It is not in the interests of the Ottoman Government to alienate the sympathy of Great Britain, which constitutes a guarantee of present tranquillity and a pledge of future support.

ALTESSE,

AU cours de notre entretien d'hier matin, j'ai eu l'honneur de faire part à votre Altesse de l'inquiétude que m'inspiraient les nouvelles que je recevais de la Syrie au sujet des préparatifs militaires et des complots contre l'Egypte que l'on fait dans cette région. Aussi longtemps qu'il s'agissait de préparatifs semblables à ceux qui se sont faits partout dans l'Empire à la suite de la mobilisation générale je n'en ai rien dit à votre Altesse, bien que l'on pût attacher une importance toute particulière à tout ce qui se faisait dans ce genre dans le voisinage de la frontière égyptienne De même ai-je jusqu'à présent rejeté comme des racontars invraisemblables les bruits qui me sont parvenus de plus d'une source, et d'après lesquels on projetterait un coup subit contre le Canal de Suez dans le but d'en rendre impossible le passage, quoique je sache que les ennemis de la Grande-Bretagne aient mené des intrigues ayant pour leur but d'emmener le Gouvernement de votre Altesse dans des aventures aussi folles et même plus folles que cela Cependant je manquerais à mon devoir envers mon Gouvernement, et je puis ajouter envers votre Altesse, si je ne la mettais pas au courant des derniers rapports qui me sont parvenus. Il résulte de ces rapports que les esprits des Bédouins sont travaillés par des agents provocateurs qui, encouragés parle Gouvernement ottoman, voudraient les exciter contre l'Angleterre. Les préparatifs militairs, qui jusqu'à un certain moment ne différaient pas dans leur caractère de ceux faits dans les autres provinces de l'Empire, se sont transformés dernièrement dans un mouvement vers le sud. On fait venir des troupes d'un centre aussi lointain que Mosul. Une activité générale règne partout, de Damas jusqu'à Maan. Une accumulation d'indices fait croire à mon consul à Jérusalem que l'on projette, pour ces jours-ci même une expédition en règle contre l'Égypte.

J'aime à espérer que les rapports dont je viens de faire un résumé pour votre Altesse interprètent mal des faits qui en

Constantinople,

YOUR HIGHNESS,

IN the course of our interview of yesterday morning, I had the honour to inform your Highness of the anxiety that the news which reached me from Syria in regard to the military preparations and plots against Egypt now going on in that province, was causing me. So long as it was a question of preparation similar to those made in other parts of the Empire, as a consequence of the general mobilisation, I did not mention the matter to your Highness, although special importance might attach to all such doings in the neighbourhood of the Egyptian frontier. Similarly, I have been able up to the present to reject, as improbable tales, the rumours which have reached me from more than one source, according to which a sudden blow directed against the Suez Canal was being planned with the object of rendering it impassable, although I am aware that the enemies of Great Britain are intriguing with the object of leading your Highness's Government into adventures as insensate, and even more insensate, than this. I should, however, fail in my duty towards my Government, and I may add also towards the Government of your Highness, if I did not bring to your Highness's knowledge the latest reports which have reached me. It appears from these reports that the minds of the Bedouins are being excited by professional agitators, who, encouraged by the Ottoman Government, are desirous of inflaming them against England. The military preparations, which up to a certain moment bore a similar character to those in the other provinces of the Empire, have lately changed into a converging movement towards the south. Troops are being brought from such distant centres as Mosul. General activity reigns everywhere from Damascus to Maan, and cumulative evidence leads my Consul at Jerusalem to the belief that an organised expedition against Egypt is in project for the next few days.

I trust that the reports, the contents of which I have just summed up to your Highness, put a wrong intereux-mêmes sont indiscutables. Mais je répète que je manquerais à mon devoir si je ne faisais pas part à votre Altesse des graves préoccupations qu'ils m'occasionnent et l'impression qu'ils font sur le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté britannique et si je ne la mettais pas en garde contre les conséquences désastreuses qui résulteraient pour votre Gouvernement s'il suivait une voie si contraire à ses propres intérêts que celle de se faire le complice de l'Allemagne dans une attaque contre l'Égypte.

pretation on facts which, as such, cannot be discussed. But I repeat that I should fail in my duty if I did not bring to your Highness's knowledge the grave preoccupation which they cause me, and the impression which they make upon His Britannic Majesty's Government, and if I did not place you on your guard against the disastrous consequences, which would ensue for your Highness's Government, if they were to follow a course so contrary to their own interests as that of becoming the accomplice of Germany in an attack upon Egypt.

Votre Altesse se rappellera qu'au commencement de la guerre actuelle Sir E. Grey chargea Mr. Beaumont de lui déclarer que pourvu que la Turquie gardât une neutralité stricte et absolue pendant la guerre et tant que des circonstances imprévues ne surgissent pas, le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté britannique n'avait aucun désir ni intention d'annexer l'Égypte ni de modifier son régime d'une façon quelconque. J'eus l'honneur de confirmer cette assurance à votre Altesse peu de temps après ma rentrée à Constantinople. Depuis lors, désireux d'éviter toute possibilité de malentendu avec le Gouvernement Impérial, j'ai à plusieurs reprises appelé l'attention de votre Altesse sur le caractère conditionnel des assurances données par Sir E. Grey. Or je crois de mon devoir de déclarer encore une fois à votre Altesse que mon Gouvernement voit sous un jour des plus sérieux les violations de neutralité sans précédent commises déjà par le Gouvernement ottoman en gardant des officiers et des équipages allemands à bord des vaisseaux de guerre allemands et en prenant dans son service plus tard beaucoup d'autres Allemands ayant le même caractère militaire.

Your Highness will remember that at the beginning of the present war, Sir E. Grey instructed Mr. Beaumont to give you the assurance that, provided that Turkey maintained strict and absolute neutrality during the war, and so long as unforeseen circumstances did not arise, His Britannic Majesty's Government had no desire to, nor intention of, annexing Egypt, nor of modifying her régime in any way whatsoever. I had the honour to confirm this assurance to your Highness shortly after my return to Constantinople. Since then, being desirous of avoiding any possibility of misunderstanding with the Imperial Government, I have repeatedly called your Highness's attention to the conditional character of the assurances given by Sir E. Grey. Now, I hold it to be my duty to declare once more to your Highness that my Government take the most serious view of the unprecedented violations of neutrality already committed by the Turkish Government in retaining German officers and men on board the German warships, and by subsequently taking into their service numerous other Germans in a similar military capacity.

Je ne trouve pas nécessaire en ce moment de récapituler les détails d'encore autres écarts de la neutralité commis par la Turquie en faveur des ennemis de la Grande-Bretagne. Je n'ai pas besoin non plus d'insister sur des conséqueuces qui pourraient en suivre, si pour mettre le comble à une situation tellement grave, mon Gouvernement acquerrait la conviction que le Gouvernement Impérial envisageait sérieusement une attaque contre l'Égypte ou qu'il se prêtait à des menées déloyales contre la sûreté du Canal de Suez ou contre le régime actuel de l'Égypte. Votre Altesse peut elle-même apprécier toute l'importance et toute la portée possible de ces conséquences.

It does not seem to me necessary at this moment to recapitulate the details of still further departures from neutrality committed by Turkey in favour of the enemies of Great Britain. Nor need I insist on the consequences which might ensue if, to add the last touch to so grave a situation, my Government were to become convinced that the Imperial Government were seriously meditating an attack against Egypt, or that they were a party to disloyal intrigues against the security of the Suez Canal, or against the present régime in Egypt. Your Highness can judge of the whole importance and possible extent of these consequences.

peuvent être considérés comme le prélude d'une attaque contre l'Égypte.

(Translation.)

D'un rapport en date du 18 courant, il résulte que les autorités déployaient tous leurs efforts pour exciter les tribus bédouines contre l'Angleterre, en la représentant comme l'ennemi de l'islamisme, et que 30,000 hommes appartenant à ces tribus étaient prêts à se soulever. Un rapport complémentaire porte que les instigateurs de ce mouvement sont Muntaz Bey, officier à l'armée; Essad Choucair, député ou ancien député; et un certain Beheddine Bey, aidés de plusieurs autres personnes et appuyés par les autorités locales tant civiles que militaires. Le rapport ajoute sans réserves qu'après le bruit qui courait, des tribus devaient s'armer tout de suite pour marcher contre l'Egypte.

Il résulte d'un autre rapport du 18 courant qu'un mouvement militaire de Damas vers le sud était attendu pour environ le 20 septembre: que les troupes de Mosul étaient en route pour Damas; que l'on préparait de grandes provisions de vivres; que l'on avait assemblé 3,000 chameaux à Maan; et que deux officiers d'état-major étaient rentrés d'Akaba après avoir étudié la possibilité d'un mouvement à travers le désert. Ce rapport se complète par un autre de la même date portant que l'on projetait d'envoyer un grand nombre d'hommes de Homs à Damas par chemin de fer, entre le 20 et le 23 septembre, et que l'on s'attendait à une grande concentration vers le sud. D'un troisième rapport reçu postérieurement il résulte qu'environ 5,000 chameaux avaient été réquisitionnés à Maan; que tout le matériel roulant de la partie sud du Chemin de Fer du Hedjaz se trouvait concentré a Deraa; et que les troupes de Mosul étaient parvenues à Tel-Abiad près d'Alep.

Un rapport en date du 21 courant déclare qu'il y avait une accumulation d'indices établisant presque la certitude qu'une attaque contre l'Egypte sur une grande échelle aurait lieu dans un avenir très proche; que les troupes marcheraient des deux côtés, par Akaba et par El-Arich, et que l'on préparait une grande quantité de choses nécessaire pour leur transport à travers le désert. Un autre

From a report dated the 18th instant, it appears that the authorites were using all their efforts in order to excite the Bedouin tribes against England by representing her as the enemy of Islam, and that 30,000 men belonging to these tribes were ready to rise. A supplementary report states that the instigators of this movement are Muntaz Bey, an officer of the army, Essad Shoucair, deputy or former deputy, and a certain Beheddine Bey, aided by several other persons, and with the support of the local, civil, and military authorities. The report adds categorically that, according to current rumour, these tribes were to arm immediately in order to march on Egypt.

From a further report dated the 18th instant, it appears that a military movement from Damascus towards the south was expected about the 20th September; that the Mosul troops were on their way to Damascus; that large stores of foodstuffs were being prepared; that 3,000 camels had been collected at Maan; and that two staff officers had returned from Akaba after studying the possibility of a movement across the desert. This report was supplemented by another of the same date to the effect that it was intended to send a large number of men from Homs to Damascus by rail, between the 20th and 23rd of September and that a great concentration converging towards the south was expected. From a third report which was received subsequently, it appears that another 5,000 camels had been requisitioned at Maan; that all the rolling-stock of the southern section of the Hedjaz Railway was being concentrated at Deraa; and that the Mosul troops had reached Tel-Abiad, near Aleppo.

A report, dated the 21st instant, stated that there was cumulative evidence to show almost certainly that an attack against Egypt on a large scale would take place in the very near future; that the troops would advance on both sides by way of Akaba and by way of El Arish; and that a large provision of things necessary for their transport across the desert was being prepared, A further report of the same rapport de la même date porte que des chameaux et des hommes sont arrivés de Homs à Damas; que l'on s'attendait à l'arrivée de trente battalions au courant de la semaine; que le chef d'état-major de Damas s'était rendu à Maan; et que des chefs des tribus bédouines étaient partis pour le sud après avoir conféré avec le Vali.

Constantinople, le 23 septembre, 1914.

date stated that camels and men had arrived at Damascus from Homs; that thirty battalions were expected to arrive during the week; that the chief staff officer from Damascus had proceeded to Maan; and that the chiefs of the Bedouin tribes had left for the south after a conference with the Vali.

YOUR HIGHNESS, Constantinople, October 2, 1914.

IN my communication of the 23rd September and subsequent letters of the 25th and 26th, various military and other preparations in Syria, initiated by the Ottoman Government, were brought to the notice of your Highness, as likely to cause apprehension to His Majesty's Government.

To the representations made in these communications no written reply has yet been received, and it appears that not only has the verification of the details already given been confirmed, but further news of a disquieting nature has now arrived. For instance, the transport of food-stuffs, military stores, and material of war to Maan continues. As this place is in no wise a Turkish military centre in peace, and has no connection with a mobilization of the Syrian divisions in their ordinary stations, but is, on the other hand, in proximity to the Egyptian frontier, His Majesty's Government would desire to be informed why it is considered necessary to make the preparations in question, which are evidently for the maintenance of a considerable body of troops, or for their transit further in the direction of Akaba.

2. Similar preparations are also apparently being made on the road Jenim-Nablus-Jerusalem, and the collection of a camel corps at the latter place was announced yesterday. These measures tend to show a projected concentration of troops on the limits of Syria to the west, and again in proximity to the Egyptian frontier.

3. The above steps have latterly coincided with the sudden arrival of Colonel Kress von Kressenstein and six other German officers, with the result that it is openly rumoured in Syria that the Jerusalem division is preparing to move towards Rafa and that of Damascus towards Akaba.

4. From Beirout arrive reports that the inhabitants are retiring inland, and from Haiffa that the customs and railway staff have also been transferred from the coast. These measures are stated to be taken as precautionary steps against the hostile action of the British fleet which is expected to ensue on the movement of Turkish forces against Egypt.

5. In view of all these circumstances, it is undoubtedly the case that it is fully believed in Syria that an offensive movement against Egypt is contemplated by the Ottoman authorities, and, although His Majesty's Government do not necessarily share this view, they cannot but regard any continuance of the military movement in anything but the most serious light.

6. Apart from recognized military measures, the movements of a German engineer belonging to the Bagdad Railway with a large consignment of explosives, destined for an attempt on the Suez Canal, has already been brought to your Highness's notice in my letter of the 25th ultimo.

Not only have the movements of this individual been confirmed, but the departure of a German naval officer named Hilgendorff is now also announced with the same purpose. This individual has left Petra with a party of eight Germans, ostensibly on a shooting expedition, but with a large amount of stores, including explosives, and intending to meet another similar party journeying vid Haiffa-Amman.

As both these parties are acting from neutral territory with the avowed intention of committing acts hostile to Great Britain, it is incumbent on the Porte to secure their apprehension, coupled with an assurance that all necessary steps will be taken to put an end to any enterprises of this nature.

I have been repeatedly assured by your Highness and by other members of the Ottoman Government that Turkey is firmly determined to maintain an attitude of strict neutrality during the European war. To these assurances I have been unfortunately obliged to reply that the Ottoman Government have failed in several most essential particulars to maintain their neutrality, and I would now desire to point out, with all the emphasis at my command, that, if these preparations continue, only one conclusion can be deduced—namely, that the Ottoman Government are taking preliminary steps to send an expedition against Egypt and that they are conniving at the preparation of a plot against the Suez Canal on the part of German subjects who are either in the Ottoman service or are acting independently.

I cannot too earnestly impress upon your Highness the absolute necessity of putting an end to this situation of uncertainty at the earliest moment possible, in order that those relations of confidence and sincerity may be restored between the two Governments which it has constantly been my object to foster.

SIR, Constantinople, October 6, 1914.

I HAVE the honour to forward herewith copy of a note which I have addressed to the Grand Vizier referring to the circular note* enclosed in my immedialely succeeding despatch, recently received from the Sublime Porte, defining the rules which they propose to apply during the war in order to defend their neutrality, expressing my satisfaction that they should have adopted views in regard to the use of wireless in neutral waters, by belligerent merchantmen, identical with those of His Majesty's Government, and enquiring when they propose to dismantle the wireless apparatus on the "Corcovado."

YOUR HIGHNESS, Constantinople, October 2, 1914.

I HAVE received a note verbale from the Sublime Porte dated the 28th ultimo defining the rules which the Government of your Highness propose to apply during the present war in order to secure respect for their neutrality and to enable them to perform what they recognise to be their duty as neutrals.

I propose to reply to this circular in detail, but in the meantime I desire at once to express my satisfaction that the Imperial Government should have adopted views which, in so far as the installation of wireless stations on land and the use of wireless apparatus by belligerent merchantmen in neutral ports and waters are concerned, are indentical with those of His Majesty's Government.

I have had the honour to discuss this question on frequent occasions with your Highness during the last few weeks, in special reference to the notorious case of the German vessel "Corcovado," amongst others.

The "Corcovado" has since the beginning of the war lain at Beicos, almost opposite to the British Embassy, and has, in gross violation of the laws of neutrality, which should have been enforced by the Ottoman Government, regularly received and transmitted, and still, so far as I am aware, continues to receive and transmit, wireless messages in such a way as to serve as a base of radio-telegraphic communication for the general purposes of the German Government.

In deference to the wishes of your Highness, I have hitherto confined my remonstrances to verbal representations, but in view of the circular note now received from the Sublime Porte defining the attitude of the Government of your Highness in regard to the question, I feel at liberty to address to your Highness a formal note asking, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, that the Ottoman regulations may be applied without further delay to the "Corcovado" and other vessels which still fly the German flag, or which flew it at the beginning of the present war, and that their wireless installations may be at once dismantled.

I feel convinced that your Highness will see the justice and the propriety of this step.

Enclosure 1 in No. 145.

Note verbale communicated by Sublime Porte.

(Translation.)

LE Ministère des Affaires Étrangères, en vue d'observer ses devoirs de neutralité pendant toute la durée des hostilitiés, porte les dispositions qui suivent à la connaissance de l'Ambassade d'Angleterre :

1. L'entrée dans les ports, rades et eaux territoriales ottomans est interdite aux navires de guerre des Puissances belligérantes sauf pour cause d'avarie, ou à raison de l'état de mer. Dans ces cas, ils ne devront résider que le strict temps matériel nécessarie pour réparer lesdites avaries, ou pour attendre que l'état de la mer soit amélioré.

2. Tout navire belligérant qui demanderait à entrer dans un port ou dans une rade ottomans pour cause de ravitaillement, en combustible ou approvisionnement, pourra y être autorisé à la condition d'en obtenir l'autorisation de l'autorité Impériale locale, après avoir établi les motifs de son arrivée ; de ne résider plus de vingtquatre heures dans lesdits port ou rade et de n'être à la fois pas plus de trois unités du même pavillon dans le même port ou rade.

3. Les ports de Smyrne et de Beyrouth sont interdits auxdits navires, ainsi que les eaux intérieures dont l'accès est barré soit par des mines sous-marines, soit par d'autres moyens de défense.

THE Ministry for Foreign Affairs, with a view to the observance of their duties of neutrality throughout the hostilities, brings the following regulations to the notice of the British Embassy :—

1. Entry to Turkish ports, roadsteads, and territorial waters is forbidden to warships belonging to belligerent Powers, except in the case of damage, or by reason of the state of the sea. In these cases they may only remain strictly the length of time actually necessary for the repair of the said damage, or to wait until the state of the sea has improved.

2. Every belligerent vessel, which shall ask permission to enter a Turkish port or roadstead for purposes of refuelling or revictualling, may be authorised to do so on condition that the authorisation of the local Turkish authority is obtained after having declared the reasons for her arrival ; that she does not remain more than twenty-four hours in the said port or roadstead ; and that there be not more than three vessels under the same flag simultaneously in the same port or roadstead:

3. The ports of Smyrna and Beirout are prohibited to the said ships, as are the inland waters, access to which is barred either by submarine mines or by other defensive means.

4. Si le navire de guerre ne quitte pas les eaux ottomanes à l'expiration des délais prévus plus haut, le Gouvernement Impérial prendra les mesures qu'il jugera nécessaires pour rendre le navire incapable de prendre la mer pendant la durée de la guerre.

4. If the warship does not leave Turkish waters within the period provided for above, the Turkish Government will take such steps as they may deem necessary to render the vessel incapable of putting to sea during the war.

5. Les bâtiments de guerre sont tenus de respecter les droits souverains de l'Empire ottoman, de s'abstenir de tous actes contraires à sa neutralité, de ne point se livrer dans les eaux territoriales ottomanes à des actes d'hostilité, y compris la capture et le droit de visite

5. Warships are expected to respect the sovereign rights of the Turkish Empire, to refrain from all acts prejudicial to Turkish neutrality, and not to commit any hostile acts in Turkish territorial waters, including capture and the right of search.

6. Si des navires de guerre belligérants ennemis se trouvent simultanément dans le même port ou rade ottoman, il doit s'écouler au moins 24 heures entre le départ du navire d'un belligérant et celui du navire de l'autre belligérant ennemi, l'ordre de départ étant déterminé par celui des arrivées, à moins que le bâtiment arrivé le premier ne soit obligé de rester en raison des causes prévues plus haut sur No. 1 De même un bâtiment de guerre belligérant ne peut quitter un des ports ou rades ottomans que 24 heures après le départ d'un navire de commerce sous pavillon de son adversaire.

6 If enemy belligerent warships happen to be simultaneously in the same Turkish port or roadstead, at least twenty-four hours must elapse between the departure of one belligerent warship and that of the other enemy belligerent warship, the order of departure being decided by that of arrival, unless the vessel which arrived first be obliged to remain for reasons foreseen above in No. 1. Similarly a belligerent warship may only leave a Turkish port or roadstead twenty-four hours after the departure of a merchant vessel under an enemy flag.

7. Dans les ports et rades ottomans non interdits les bâtiments de guerre des belligérants ne pourront réparer leurs avaries que dans la mesure indispensable à la sécurité de la navigation et ne pourront accroître, d'une manière quelconque, leur force militaire. Les autorités Impériales ottomanes constateront la nature des réparations à faire; elles devront être exécutées le plus rapidement possible.

7. In non-prohibited Turkish ports and roadsteads belligerent warships may only repair their damages to such an extent as is consonant with the safety of navigation, and may not increase their military strength in any manner whatsoever. The Turkish authorities will verify the nature of the repairs to be made; these must be carried out as quickly as possible.

8. Lesdits bâtiments ne pourront s'y ravitailler que pour compléter leur approvisionnement normal du temps de paix. Toutefois, étant données les circonstances exceptionnelles de la guerre actuelle, les autorités Impériales pourront réduire cet approvisionnement, suivant les nécessités des lieux, au strict nécessaire pour suffire à se rendre dans un port étranger neutre le plus proche une première fois, et refuser tout approvisionnement en cas de retour une seconde fois de bâtiments d'une même nation belligérante.

8. The said vessels may only revictual up to their normal supply in peace time. Nevertheless, in the exceptional circumstances of the present war, the Turkish authorities may, in the first instance, reduce this supply, according to the requirements of the districts, to what is strictly necessary to reach the nearest neutral foreign port, and may refuse all supplies in the case of a second return by vessels of a like belligerent nation.

9. Ces navires ne peuvent prendre de combustible que pour gagner le port le plus proche de leur propre pays, ou de celui dont l'administration est confiée à leur Gouvernement, ou du pays, allié, au choix de l'autorité Impériale locale. Les restrictions précédentes concernant les approvisionnements seront applicables au combustible.

9. Such vessels may only take in sufficient fuel to reach the nearest harbour in their own country, or of a country the administration of which is entrusted to their Government or of an allied country, at the discretion of the local Turkish authority. The preceding restrictions concerning supplies will be applicable to fuel.

10. Les règlements sanitaires, de pilotage, de douane de port et des phares ottomans devront être observés et respectés par les bâtiments de guerre des belligérants.

Aucun tribunal des prises ne peut être constitué par un belligérant ni sur le sol de l'Empire ni sur un navire dans ses eaux territoriales.

12. Est interdit aux belligérants de faire des ports et eaux ottomans la base d'opérations navales contre leurs adversaires; d'installer sur le sol et dans les eaux torritoriales des stations radio-télégraphiques ou tout appareil destiné à servir comme moyen de communication avec les forces belligérantes sur terre ou sur mer; d'établir des dépôts de combustible soit sur le sol ottoman, soit sur des navires stationnés dans ses eaux territoriales.

13. Les dispositions qui précèdent ne dérogent en rien au régime des Détroits, qui reste le même, tel qu'il est établi par les traités internationaux.

14. Le droit international général est applicable dans toutes les questions non prévues par les dispositions qui précèdent.

Constantinople, le 28 septembre, 1914.

10. The Turkish sanitary, pilotage, customs, port and lighthouse regulations must be observed and respected by belligerent warships.

11. It is forbidden to bring prizes into any of the (non-prohibited) Turkish ports or roadsteads, save in the case of impossibility of navigation, of roughness of the sea, lack of fuel or provisions, in which case permission must be asked from the local Turkish authorities; the latter will grant it after verification of the aforesaid cause. The prize shall be required to leave as soon as the said cause shall have ceased to exist; the taking in of fuel and provisions shall be carried out in accordance with the conditions laid down for warships.

No Prize Court may be established by a belligerent either on Turkish territory or on a vessel in Turkish territorial waters.

12. Belligerents are forbidden to make Turkish harbours and roadsteads a base for naval operations against their adversaries; to erect on land or in territorial waters any wireless telegraphy station or installation destined to serve as a means of communication with belligerent forces by land or sea; to establish depôts of fuel either on Turkish territory or on ships stationed in Turkish territorial waters.

13. The above provisions in no way supersede the regulations governing the Straits, which remain as established by international treaty.

14. General international law is applicable in all questions not provided for in the above regulations.

Constantinpole, September 28, 1914.

Enclosure 2 in No. 145.

Note verbale communicated to Sublime Porte.

HIS BRITANNIC MAJESTY'S EMBASSY is in receipt of the note verbale of the Imperial Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the 28th September, in which are set forth at length the rules laid down by the Imperial Ottoman Government with a view to securing proper respect for their neutrality during the present hostilities in Europe.

In the preamble to this note verbale the Imperial Ministry states that the rules contained in it have been adopted in order to enable the Imperial Government to discharge their duties as neutrals. The rules themselves indicate a conception of those duties closely in accord with the general principles held by His Majesty's Government. It is all the more, therefore, a matter of surprise to His Majesty's Embassy that the practice of the Ottoman Government should have hitherto been so entirely at variance with these principles.

Rule 1 prohibits the entrance into Ottoman ports of belligerent warships, except in case of damage or on account of the state of the sea, and requires their departure as soon as circumstances permit.

Rule 2 prescribes that no belligerent warship, even though authorised for special reasons to enter an Ottoman harbour, shall remain more than twenty-four hours. These rules were not applied by the Imperial Ottoman Government when they allowed the German warships "Goeben" and "Breslau" to enter the Dardanelles and to remain in Turkish waters for an indefinite period, on the pretext that a sale, as to the genuineness of which no evidence exists, had taken place.

Neither did the Imperial Ottoman Government apply to these ships the provisions of rule 4, which requires that vessels which have exceeded a visit of twenty-four hours should be incapacitated from taking part in any hostilities during the war, as both these vessels, which remain under German control, are notoriously in a state of complete preparation to proceed to sea.

Rule 5, which prohibits the performance or acts prejudicial to Ottoman neutrality, including acts of capture and search, was violated in a flagrant manner by the "Breslau," when it visited and searched British ships in the Dardanelles shortly after its arrival in those waters. The Imperial Government have never demanded any public satisfaction from the Government whose ship committed this indefensible outrage on their neutrality. By thus condoning the act of the "Breslau," the Imperial Government failed signally in their own duties as a neutral.

The Imperial Ottoman Government have not applied the provisions of rule 7, prohibiting foreign war vessels from increasing their military value in an Ottoman port, where they are only permitted to make such repairs as their own security demands and within the shortest possible period of time, nor the provisions of rule 8, regarding the prohibition of all revictualling, etc., of belligerent warships returning a second time to the same Ottoman port. The "Goeben" and the "Breslau" remaining, as has been said above, under German control, have been repaired under the auspices of the official representatives of the German Government, have put to sea under German command, and have been revictualled at German expense on returning from the various cruises in the Black Sea. By tolerating these violations of their own rules, the Turkish Government have again failed in their duty as neutrals.

The Imperial Ottoman Government have further neglected the obligation to prevent foreign warships from making an Ottoman port a base of naval operations against their enemies; from installing wireless stations on land or in territorial waters, to serve as a means of communication with the belligerent forces on land or sea, obligations which are clearly recognised by the adoption of rule 12. The flagrant violation of this rule by ships like the "General," the "Lily Rickmers," and the "Corcovado," has not been checked by the Imperial Government. They have, indeed, departed from their duty as neutrals, not merely by tolerating the proceedings of those ships, but they have in some cases facilitated them by allowing German ships to fly the Ottoman flag, as a result of illegal and fictitious transfers. The special case of the "Corcovado" has formed the subject of a separate communication to which His Majesty's Embassy trusts that an early reply will be returned.

Finally, rule 13, which states that the status of the Straits is unaffected by the measures taken by the Imperial Government, has been violated by the Ottoman authorities themselves, who, in violation of a series of international acts, have interfered with the free passage of the Dardanelles by British merchant vessels.

In the presence of the facts set forth above, it is impossible for the Imperial Ottoman Government to maintain that they have hitherto observed that duty as neutrals, the performance of which the Imperial Minister for Foreign Affairs declares them to have had in view when drawing up the rules embodied in its circular note of the 28th September. If, after consecrating their recognition of these duties by an official communication, the Imperial Government should continue to tolerate the use of its territory by German ships and agents for purposes connected with the war, His Majesty's Embassy will feel itself constrained to protest with renewed vigour against what it cannot but consider a partial and unneutral attitude on the part of the Imperial Ottoman Government, and must reserve to His Majesty's Government complete liberty of action. If, on the other hand, the object of the communication is to prove that the Imperial Government are prepared to embark on a new line of action, His Britannic Majesty's Embassy will have the utmost satisfaction in taking act of an assurance in that sense and bringing it to the knowledge of His Britannic Majesty's Government.

YOUR HIGHNESS,

I HAVE just received a telegram from His Majesty's Consul at Basra stating that the Vali has written to him saying that the Porte have communicated to me the measures which they propose to take against a British man-of-war which is in the Shatt-el-Arab unless it leaves within twenty-four hours, and that the Shatt-el-Arab from Fao to Gurna is inland water, like the Dardanelles, and closed to foreign warships.

I am instructed by His Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to enquire on what grounds the Sublime Porte base their objection to His Majesty's ship remaining in Mohammerah, a Persian port?

In the meantime I would express the hope that your Highness will instruct the Vali without loss of time to avoid taking any measures against a British man-of-war which might have serious consequences at this critical period.

As a matter of fact, H.M.S. "Odin" left the Shatt-el-Arab some days ago, and I am not aware what British ship has taken her place.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to forward herewith copy of a note addressed by me to the Imperial Ottoman Government on the 5th instant with regard to the hostile attitude of the Ottoman press towards Great Britain and British interests.

I also enclose copy of a letter I addressed to Talaat Bay on the previous day on the same subject.

I have, &c.,
LOUIS MALLET.

Enclosure 1 in No. 147.

Sir L. Mallet to Grand Vizier.

YOUR HIGHNESS, Constantinople, October 5, 1914.

I HAVE on several occasions complained to your Highness of the hostile tone of the Ottoman press towards Great Britain and British interests, and I have frequently represented to your Highness and to the Minister of the Interior the unfavourable impression which His Majesty's Government will derive of the sentiments of the Ottoman Government from the deliberate misrepresentations and the malicious accusations of the organs of public opinion.

Your Highness has assured me from time to time of your regret that the press should display so hostile a spirit towards my country and to the cause for which we have taken up arms and owing to your Highness's intervention I most willingly admit that there have been short periods during which it has displayed a greater moderation in the volume and frequency of its abuse. Your Highness has also begged me not to attach too great an importance to the newspapers, which you have assured me do not influence public opinion to any appreciable extent, and are not therefore deserving of serious attention.

In ordinary circumstances I should have been in agreement with your Highness except in regard to the extent of the harm done by these irresponsible writers, a matter of which I am incompetent to judge, but it must be remmbered that the Ottoman Empire is now living under martial law, and that vigorous press censorship is enforced—apparently in the interests of Germany—which has rendered the publication of news from British sources difficult, and the public expression of opinion favourable to England impossible both at Constantinople and in the provinces. The press articles of which I complain are, therefore, authorised and approved by the press censor, or in other words by the Ottoman Government, whose views they must be held to represent.

This state of affairs is the more grave, as one of the main objects which certain newspapers have had in view has been to misinform public opinion in this country as to the true character of British rule in India and British control in Egypt, and as to the attitude of the populations of those countries towards Great Britain.

It is, however, difficult to reconcile these hostile utterances with those of your Highness, who has always assured me of the friendly sentiments of the Ottoman Government towards Great Britain, and of their desire and intention to maintain good relations with His Majesty's Government.

In these circumstances, I am at a loss to know what I should report to my Government, who will doubtless desire to know why the Ottoman Government permit the publication of inflammatory articles against Great Britain if their sentiments are well-intentioned. I would call your Highness's special attention to two articles which have appeared in the "Terdjuman-i-Hakkikat" of the 16th (29th) September and the 19th September (2nd October). The first of these articles gives an entirely untrue account of the action of the British fleet outside the Dardanelles; which it accuses of preventing merchandise from coming into the port. The object of these accusations is to mislead public opinion with regard to the intentions of Great Britain, and to hide the real reason for the presence of the British fleet, which, as is well known to your Highness, is the retention of the German officers and crews.

The second article which I enclose * not only misrepresents the motives which induced my Government to embark on the present war but characterises England as the enemy of small nations, declares that she wishes to drive the Moslem Powers into a holy war against Germany, and traduces the character of British control in Egypt. Both articles are only examples of the innumerable utterances of a similar kind in which the "Terdjuman-i-Hakkikat" and other papers indulge. I will not weary your Highness with other specimens in Turkish, but to prove how varied are the attacks made on my country and my Government with the express sanction of the authorities responsible for the press, I enclose a copy* of a paper called the "Défense nationale," a French organ which is specially distinguished for its virulent and calumnious attacks on Great Britain, and which, while purporting to represent authorised military opinion, is, in reality, as your Highness is doubtless aware, produced by a person of non-Ottoman and non-Moslem origin and of most disreputable antecedents.

I venture to beg your Highness, who has laboured unceasingly and devotedly in the interests of peace, to give instructions to the responsible authorities not to allow the publication in future of articles so totally at variance with what your Highness has repeatedly declared to be the policy of the Imperial Government. I would at the same time beg of your Highness to secure publicity for the enclosed statement which I have prepared, the object of which is, as your Highness will see, to correct one of the most specific calumnies recently published.

I avail, &c.,
LOUIS MALLET.

Enclosure 2 in No. 147.

Statement.

The statement made in the "Terdjuman-i-Hakkikat" of the 16th (29th) September that the British and French fleets outside the Dardanelles have prevented the importation of merchandise into the port of Constantinople is an entire misrepresentation. The allied fleet has never in a single instance interfered with the export or import trade of this country.

The retention of the allied fleets in the neighbourhood of the entrances to the straits is solely due to the continued presence of the German admiral, officers, and crews on the warships recently sold to Turkey, and to the officering of the rest of the Turkish fleet by Germans.

le 4 Octobre 1914.

Mon cher Ministre,

SAURIEZ-vous m'expliquer pourquoi la censure a supprime une partie importante du discours prononcé dernierement par l' Agha Khan?

Je vous transmets une copie du discours sur lequel est marque la partie supprimée. Voudriez-vous le faire imprimer dans les journaux ottomans? Il n'est que juste qu'on publie dans un pays neutre toutes les opinions.

Je vous signale aussi un article qui a paru dans le "Terdjuman-i-Hakkikat" du 2 Octobre, qui est mensonger et plein de malveillance pour la Grande-Bretagne.

Puisque la presse est censurée, je ne puis qu'en conclure que les sentiments d'Aga-olu Ahmed sont approuvés ou inspirés par le Gouvernement. Dans tous les cas, le Gouvernement est responsible tant que la censure existe Dans les circonstances, à qui dois-je croire? Car le Gouvernement parle avec deux voix différentes, mais toutes deux officielles.

Bien sincérement à vous,

LOUIS MALLET

Constantinople,

October 4, 1914.

My dear Minister,

Can you explain to me why the censor suppressed an important part of the speech recently made by the Agha Khan?

I enclose a copy* of the speech, showing the part that was suppressed. Would you please have it printed in the Turkish press? It is only right that every opinion should be published in a neutral country.

I would also draw your attention to an article which appeared in the "Terdjuman-i-Hakkikat" of the 2nd October, which is untrue and full of malevolence towards Great Britain.

As the press is censored, I can only conclude that the sentiments of Agha-olu-Ahmed are approved or inspired by the Government. In any case, so long as the censorship exists the Government are clearly responsible. In the circumstances, whom can we believe? For the Government speak with two conflicting voices, both of which are none the less official.

LOUIS MALLET.

IT is pretty clear that naval parties are on their way both to Akaba and the Persian Gulf, as well as smaller groups to Syrian cost ports. There are plenty of German reserve mercantile marine officers available, in addition to "Goeben" and "Breslau" officers and others who have subsequently arrived. Although there is at present no actual confirmation of arrival in Constantinople of Austrian officers and sailors this is regarded as also possible.

It is very likely now that consignment of mines has actually got as far as Maan.

At Akaba it is not impossible that floating mines may be let loose penetrating into the Red Sea; in Persian Gulf defence of waterway will no doubt be prepared.

Consul at Damascus reports that fifty Germans arrived at Akaba quite recently. These are believed to be wounded from East Africa.

I HAVE seen the Russian Ambassador again this morning. He is sure that unless Turks mean to betray Germans, the possibility of which he does not exclude, they will make war on Russia on receipt of first half of a sum of 4,000,000*l.* which Germany is providing.

It is concurrently reported about 1,000,000*l.* has already arrived.

Russian successes on Vistula will spur on Germans to further efforts here, but it is difficult to say whether it will increase or diminish chance of Turkish participation in the war.

Virulent attacks and propagapda against Great Britain seem to show Government are anxious to justify themselves in public estimation if war breaks out, and it may indicate that they mean to provoke war themselves, as they are aware that we shall not do so.

MINING of Shatt-el-Arab.

Your telegram of 17th October.*

The ancient right of free navigation of the river was solemnly affirmed as late as 29th July, 1913, in Article I of the Anglo-Turkish Agreement signed on that day. It is a right which His Majesty's Government cannot allow to be nullified by the mining of the channel. They will be forced to regard any attempt to lay mines in the river as an act of open hostility and provocation to this country, and they must reserve to themselves the right of taking their own measures, if necessary, to maintain the freedom of navigation.

You should make a representation in these terms to the Turkish Government and add a firm protest against the apparent intention of blocking the international waterway of the Shatt-el-Arab, which offers the only means of access to the port of Mohammerah and the neighbouring Persian littoral.

LAST night Minister of Marine sent me message to say that neutrality would be maintained by Turkish Government. He gave same assurances in categorical terms yesterday to French Ambassador, and said that Minister of Interior's views were the same. Ambassador said that it was reported that an agreement existed with Germany to go to war on certain terms being fulfilled. Minister of Marine denied this absolutely, and also declared that Turkey was not going to war. My French colleague then enquired what was meaning of preparations in Syria and of all the violent talk about Egypt. Minister of Marine replied that England was treating Egypt as if it belonged to her, whereas it formed part of Ottoman dominions. Turks were indifferent about India, Tripoli, and Tunis, &c., but Egypt was on their frontier, and they felt about it as French did about Alsace-Lorraine. They would do nothing officially, but would shut their eyes to any agitation which was directed against English occupation of Egypt. Continuing he referred to a proposal which he had made me a fortnight ago, to the effect that England and Turkey should now sign convention on lines of Drummond-Wolff Convention, providing for evacuation of Egypt by British troops at end of war. It is quite true he made this suggestion. I did not report it at the time because it was so entirely unpractical. This shows that Germans are turning all their attention to Egypt, and are inciting the Turks against us, so that we must expect to have a considerable amount of trouble on frontier.

Turkish newspapers are full of Egypt just now and of our high-handed proceedings. It is, e.g., announced to-day that we have closed El Azhar mosque. There is no doubt that Germans are at bottom of this, and are inciting religious fanaticism of Turks against us.

YOUR telegram of 23rd October* gives the impression that Turkey considers sending an armed force over the frontier of Egypt as being in some way different from acts of war against Russia. You should disabuse the Turkish Government of any such idea, and inform them that a military violation of frontier of Egypt will place them in a state of war with three allied powers.

I think you should enumerate to Grand Vizier the hostile acts of which we complain and warn him that, if German influences succeed in pushing Turkey to cross the frontiers of Egypt and threaten the international Suez Canal, which we are bound to preserve, it will not be we, but Turkey, that will have aggressively disturbed the status quo.

The following is a convenient summary of Turkish acts of which we complain, and which, combined, produce a most unfavourable impression. You might send it to Grand Vizier :—

"The Mosul and Damascus Army Corps have, since their mobilisation, been constantly sending troops south preparatory to an invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal from Akaba and Gaza. A large body of Bedouin Arabs has been called out and armed to assist in this venture. Transport has been collected and roads have been prepared up to the frontier of Egypt. Mines have been despatched to be laid in the Gulf of Akaba to protect the force from naval attack, and the notorious Sheikh Aziz Shawish, who has been so well known as a firebrand in raising Moslem feeling against Christians, has published and disseminated through Syria, and probably India, an inflammatory document urging Mahommedans to fight against Great Britain. Dr. Prüffer, who was so long engaged in intrigues in Cairo against the British occupation, and is now attached to the German Embassy in Constantinople, has been busily occupied in Syria trying to incite the people to take part in this conflict."

IT is now clear what, with exception of Minister of War, Turkish Government are seeking to temporise.

I have reliable information that on the 22nd October Austrian Ambassador urged immediate war on Minister of Interior and Halill. Both these officials maintained that it would be wiser to wait until the situation in Egypt and Caucasus cleared before moving, and suggested it would be time enough to move in the spring. They were not sure that, if they went to war, Italy might not join the allies. Austrian Ambassador resorted that spring would be too late, and that it was essential to Germany and Austria that Turkey should declare herself with them at once. His Excellency was clearly greatly dissatisfied at their attitude.

Enver Pasha, on the other hand, whom Austrian Ambassador saw subsequently, said that he was determined to have war, whatever his colleagues might desire. Turkish fleet would be sent into Black Sea, and he could easily arrange with Admiral Suchon to provoke hostilities.

Fleet has, in point of fact, to-day gone into Black Sea, so it is impossible to foretell what is in store.

If it were true, he would give immediate orders for recall of Bedouins, but he did not believe accuracy of the information.

I replied that it was necessary at such a crisis that I should speak quite frankly, that it was a matter for public notoriety that there were divisions of opinion in the Cabinet, that his Highness was not master of the situation, and that if Minister of War and extremists had decided upon an expedition against Egypt, His Highness could not prevent it. Grand Vizier replied that I was absolutely mistaken, and that, if it came to that, military party would not act without full assent of the Government. I said that in that case the time had come to put them to the test, and that unless expedition were immediately recalled, I could not answer for the consequences. As it was, I might at any moment receive instructions to ask for my passports, in which case Turkish Government would be at war with the Triple Entente at a time when German official communiqués admitted defeat on the Vistula.

IN view of hostile acts that have been committed, Russian Government have instructed Russian Ambassador to leave Constantinople with all his staff.

Should his Excellency leave, you should yourself send in a note to the Sublime Porte to say that His Majesty's Government have learnt with the utmost surprise of the wanton attacks made upon open and undefended towns of a friendly country without any warning and without the slightest provocation, and that these acts constitute an unprecedented violation of the most ordinary rules of international law, usage, and comity. Russia has shown the utmost patience and forbearance in face of repeated violations of the rules of neutrality by Turkey, and in face of most provocative acts, amounting in reality to acts of hostility, and in this attitude of restraint her allies, Great Britain and France, have co-operated. It is evident that there is no chance of a return to a proper observance of neutrality so long as the German naval and military missions remain at Constantinople, and such a situation cannot be prolonged.

Unless, therefore, the Turkish Government will divest themselves of all responsibility for these unprovoked acts of hostility by dimissing the German military and naval missions and fulfilling their often repeated promises about the German crews of the "Goeben" and "Breslau," and will give you a satisfactory reply to this effect within twelve hours from the date of the delivery of the note you should ask for your passports and leave Constantinople with the staff of the Embassy.

Further Interrogation of Lieutenant Mors.

MULAZIM AWAL ROBERT MORS, recalled and re-examined, states:—

"I arrived in Constantinople on the evening of the 4th September, 1914, and put up at the Hotel Germania. I met M. Curt Prufer there, and he introduced me to Omar Fauzi Bey, the Turkish staff officer, who asked me to call upon him at the War Office. I did so on the 6th September. He questioned me on the state of Egypt and on the chances of success of a native rising in this country. He mentioned that the German diplomatic and consular officials had been expelled, and that all German subjects had been arrested and were to be deported. He also asked me if I knew M. Dusreicher, who, he declared, had also been sent out of the country. He stated likewise that he had heard that the Egyptian army and police had been disarmed, and asked me if it were true, to which I replied that I thought it was very improbable. He then told me he had emissaries in Egypt fomenting trouble, to prepare the way for a Turkish invasion, and to compel the British to split up their forces. In reply to my enquiry, he explained that two bands of native marauders were to be organised in each Imdiria, to attack the railway, and commit outrages on the property of British subjects, &c. These bands were to be recruited from the malefactor class, and there would be a Turkish officer in every province to direct their operations. Each band would be composed of from ten to fifteen men, and when an important coup was contemplated in any Imdiria the two bands would unite, the idea being to oblige the British to scatter their forces all over the country. Fauzi Bey said he had a list of fifty Egyptian army and police officers, from whom he expected either active or passive assistance. Four strong bands of Bedouins were also being formed to operate in the Suez Canal zone, two east and two west. Each band was to be fifty strong. Fauzi Bey made a rough sketch of the Canal to explain to me the rôle of these Bedouins. He said the British had detached posts at intervals along the Canal. Two of the most isolated of these would be attacked simultaneously and, if possible, annihilated. The intermediate posts would then go to their assistance, whereupon the third and fourth troops of Bedouins would raid the weakened points and fire on the steamers in the Canal. The instructions given to the bands were to retire into the desert if the post attacked was strongly reinforced, and then to return and attack another post, &c.

"Fauzi Bey asked me if I would help to carry out these plans, and suggested that I should assist a Turkish officer who was already in Alexandria to carry out these komitajis operations in that district. If not, I could take part in some way in the military operations to be undertaken in Egypt. I replied that, as an officer, I could have nothing to do with the komitajis part of his programme, which, from a German point of view, was beneath the dignity of an officer, but that I was quite disposed to participate in military operations against Egypt on condition (1) I was granted the rank of officer in the Turkish army, (2) that the German Ambassador approved of my decision and (3) that I was not required to start before my family arrived from Egypt. At this stage of our conversation a Bedawi sheikh arrived, and I rose to take my leave, but Fauzi Bey begged me to remain. The sheikh talked to Fauzi Bey on the Canal part of the programme, and I gathered from their remarks that it had already been discussed between them. I should mention that the sheikh on arriving asked the Bey if he could speak in my presence, to which Fauzi assented. They then discussed plans for destroying the embankment between the fresh-water canal and the Suez Canal, in order to cut off the drinking water-supply of Ismailia and Suez. I asked the sheikh how he proposed to divert the fresh-water Canal into Suez Canal. He replied that with 200 men and sufficient dynamite he could do it in thirty-four hours. Fauzi Bey interposed that he could easily have 1,000 kilog. of dynamite if he required it. I asked the sheikh sarcastically if he meant to employ Bedouin or fellaheen on the job, to which he replied, somewhat nettled, that it did not matter which. The sheikh left us and Fauzi Bey and I continued our conversation. I asked him how he was going to organise a revolution in Egypt without arms, and mentioned that the Arms Law had been vigorously applied since two years ago. He replied that he had a sufficient quantity of arms in the country, and in any case arms could be smuggled through with ease. I reverted to the subject of the fresh-water canal, remarking that I thought it an absurd project, to which he replied that he believed it quite practical and that the sheikh was a man of intelligence and sense. He went on to say that it was not the only means which he had with which to deal with the Canal problem. A wealthy Turk had presented the Government with a steamship which sailed under the Italian flag and was commanded by an ex-officer of the Turkish navy. This ship was to take a full cargo of cement from an Italian port and her manifests were to be made out for Massowa. The captain was to submit to any search by British warships without demur, and on reaching Port Säid to steam at full speed down the Canal. He was then to sink her by one of three methods, viz., (1) to collide with a British ship; (2) to provoke a British warship to sink her by ignoring signals; (3) to sink her himself. Fauzi Bey told me he had a trustworthy Egyptian officer who was leaving for Egypt by the first Khedivial mail steamer to take part in the operations there and to bear instructions to his agents. I afterwards spoke to Dr. Prüfer about Fauzi's Canal project. He did not seem to approve, but gave me the map of the Suez Canal. I met Fauzi again at the passport office as I was about to embark on the steamship "Saidia." He only greeted me, and said he hoped to see me back soon. He is the officer whom I mentioned in my former evidence as having seen me at the quays and who may have overheard my cabin number.'

Q. Who are the police officers in league with Fauzi Bey?—A. He did not give me their names. I mentioned the names of several officers of my acquaintance, but after scrutinising the list he gave me a negative answer.

Q. Do you know the names of any of the army officers who figured on the list?—A. No.

Q. Who were the officers despatched to Egypt in connection with the organisation of the komitaji bands?—A. I do not know; they left for Egypt before me.

Q. Who was the Bedawi Sheikh who discussed the fresh-water canal project?—A. I do not know his name. He was a man of about 50 years of age, with a full grey beard. He was about my height, but broad-shouldered and stout. He spoke educated Arabic without a Bedawi or Maghrabi accent.

Q. Who was the officer in Alexandria with whom you were to co-operate?—A. He gave me no inkling as to who he was.

Q. Did Enver Pasha speak to you on the subject of military operations in Egypt, the destruction of the Canal, etc.?—A. Yes, on the day before I sailed when I called upon him with Dr. Prüfer and the officer of the "Lorelei". He questioned me on public opinion here, whether the natives would revolt against the English if the Turks marched against Egypt, and suggested that I should see Fauzi Bey on the subject. I replied that I had already seen him, and I recapitulated what he had told me. Enver Pasha replied that there would be certainly something for me to do in Egypt when the time came for action there if I was then still disposed to accept. He also asked me if I spoke Arabic.

Q. Did Fauzi Bey mention the name of the Egyptain officer who was leaving for Egypt by the first Khedivial mail steamer?—A. No; but in the light of subsequent events I believe it was Hamuda Effendi.

Q. When you told Fauzi Bey that you were disposed to participate in military operations against this country, did he accept your offer?—A. Yes· but it was agreed between us that this should take effect after I returned from Alexandria with my family.

Q. Then why were you given the detonators to take to Egypt?—A. I do not know. I am convinced that Hamuda Effendi was the person designed for the enterprise connected with the detonators. I do not think that this mission was connected with the subject which Omar Fauzi Bey discussed with me. I think it must have been a secret between Sheikh Abd-el-Aziz Shawish, Drs. Ahmad Fuad and Prüfer, and Hamuda Effendi.

Q. Have you no idea what Hamuda was to do with the detonators?—A. I knew they were for use with bombs to be manufactured in this country.

Q. How do you know that?—A. Because once I found Sheikh Shawish sitting with Dr. Prüfer in the latter's room at the Hotel Germania. They were copying in Arabic a receipt for making bombs. The paper from which Sheikh Shawish was copying contained directions, a list of the component chemicals, and a sketch of a bomb in the right-hand bottom corner. I heard them mention that it was to be given to the Egyptian officer, and Sheikh Shawish said to me in Arabic "Hua zabit aryak."

Q. To what use were the bombs to be put?—A. I have no idea,

M. SAZONOF télégraphie en date du 1er novembre, 1914:

"Le Chargé d'Affaires ottoman vient de me lire le télégramme suivant du Grand Vizir: 'Vous prie de dire au Ministre des Affaires Etrangères que nous regrettons infiniment qu'un acte d'hostilité provoqué par la flotte russe ait compromis relations amicales des deux pays. Vous pouvez assurer Gouvernement Impérial de Russie que la Sublime Porte ne manquera pas de donner à la question la solution qu'elle comporte et qu'elle adoptera des mesures propres à prévenir un renouvellement de faits analogues. Vous pouvez déclarer dés à présent au Ministre que sommes décides à ne plus permettre à la flotte Impériale de passer dans la mer Noire et que nous espérons que la flotte russe, à son tour, ne viendra plus croiser dans nos parages. J'ai le ferme espoir que le Gouvernement Impérial de Russie voudra bien faire preuve en l'occurrence du même esprit de conciliation au nom des intérêts communs des deux pays.'

"J'ai répondu au Chargé d'Affaires de Turquie que je donne le démenti le plus catégorique à ce qu'il venait de me dire au sujet d'une initiative d'hostilités à la charge de la flotte russe; je lui dis que je craignais qu'il était trop tard pour négocier; que pourtant si la Sublime Porte se décidait au renvoi immédiat de tout le personnel militaire et marin allemand, on y pourrait penser et que des pourparlers ne seraient pas impossibles pour une satisfaction que la Turquie aurait à donner pour l'agression illégitime de nos côtes et les dégâts commis.

"J'ai autorisé Fahr-Eddin à expédier un télégramme chiffré en ce sens, lui faisant pourtant observer que sa démarche ne changeait rien à la situation créée. Fahr-Eddin recevra demain ses passeports, et la réponse du Gouvernement ottoman pourra être transmise par l'organe de l'Ambassade d'Italie."

M. SAZONOF tetegraphs on the 1st November, 1914, as follows:

"The Turkish Chargé d'Affaires has just read me the following telegram from the Grand Vizier: 'I request you to inform the Minister for Foreign Affairs that we infinitely regret that an act of hostility, provoked by the Russian fleet, should have compromised the friendly relations of the two countries. You can assure the Imperial Russian Government that the Sublime Porte will not fail to give the question such solution as it entails, and that they will adopt fitting measures to prevent a recurrence of similar acts. You can declare forthwith to the Minister that we have resolved no more to allow the Imperial fleet to enter the Black Sea, and that we trust that the Russian fleet, on their side, will no longer cruise in our waters. I have the firm hope that the Imperial Russian Government will give proof, on this occurrence, of the same spirit of conciliation in the common interests of both countries.'

"I replied to the Turkish Chargé d'Affaires that I most categorically denied what he had just said respecting the initiation of hostilities by the Russian fleet; I told him that I feared it was too late to negotiate; that nevertheless, if the Sublime Porte decided upon the immediate dismissal of all the German military and naval officers and men, it might be possible to consider the question, and that discussion might not be impossible to reach some basis of satisfaction to be given by Turkey for the illegal act of aggression against our coasts and for the damage thereby inflicted.

"I authorised Fahr-Eddin to send a cypher telegram in this sense, but pointed out to him at the same time that the representation he had made in no way altered the situation. Fahr-Eddin will receive his passports to-morrow, and the reply from the Turkish Government can be sent through the Italian Embassy."

Sir E. Grey to Sir F. Bertie, Sir G. Buchanan, and Sir C. Green.

Foreign Office, November 3, 1914.

SIR,

THE Turkish Ambassador called on the 31st ultimo and enquired whether this Department could give his Highness any information regarding the telegrams which had appeared in the press on the subject of a Turkish attack on certain Russian ports.

Sir A. Nicolson informed His Highness of what had actually occurred in the Black Sea. Tewfik Pasha expressed surprise and enquired what he should do in the extremely difficult position in which he now found himself. Sir A. Nicolson assured His Highness that His Majesty's Government would treat him personally with all respect and consideration and that he would be given notice if it became necessary for diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Turkey to cease.

On the 2nd instant Tewfik Pasha again called and communicated to Sir A. Nicolson the text of a telegram which he had just received from the Grand Vizier, a copy of which is enclosed herein.

Sir A. Nicolson replied, and he was sure that I would agree with him, thathe strongly demurred to the statement in the last paragraph of the Grand Vizier's telegram, to the effect that " His Majesty's Government had provoked a rupture of diplomatic relations." It was absurd to state that we had done so in view of the indisputable fact that Turkish ships had bombarded the ports of one of our allies, and had burnt and sunk a British steamer lying peaceably in a friendly port. Furthermore, there were active, not to say feverish, military and other preparations directed against the Suez Canal and Egypt. If the Ottoman Government were as desirous as they asserted of maintaining friendly relations with Great Britain they should at once dismiss the German naval and military missions.

I, am, &c.,

JE suis très peiné de voir que, par suite de l'incident déplorable survenu dans la mer Noire, le Gouvernement britannique a décidé de rappeler son of Ambassadeur à Constantinople.

Ainsi que je l'ai déclaré à maintes reprises a Sir Louis Mallet, je tiens fermement au maintien des relations d'amitié existant entre nos deux pays et je travaille tonjours à ce qu'elles ne soit compromises en aucune façon.

Je regrettratis donc beaucoup, si un incident, dû à des circonstances imprévues, était considéré par le Gouvernemont de Sa Majesté britannique comme une cause de conflt entre les deux pays.

Par conséquent, j'aime à espérer que le Gouvernement Royal voudra bien, en témoignage de son désir réciproque de garden intact les relations amicales des deux pays, mettre fin un moment plus tôt à la rupture des relations diplomatiques bu'il vient de provoquer.

Constantinople, le 1er (14) novembre, 1914.

I AM much grieved that, in consequence of the deplorable incident that has occurred in the Black Sea, the British Government have decided to recall their Ambassador from Constantinople.

As I have many times declared to Sir Louis Mallet, I am deeply desirous to maintain the relations of friendship existing between our two countries, and I am working without cease in order that they may not be compromised in any way.

I should therefore much regret if an incident, due to unforeseen circumstances, were to be considered by His Britannic Majesty's Government as a cause of conflict between the two countries.

Consequently, I hope that His Majesty's Government will be willing, in witness of their reciprocal desire to maintain intact the friendly relations of the two countries, to put an end at the earliest possible moment, to the rupture of diplomatic relations which they have just provoked.

SIR.

TEWFIK PASHA called upon me this afternoon, and informed me that he had received instructions to ask for his passports, as His Majesty's Ambassador had already left Constantinople.

I expressed to Tewfik Pasha my personal regret at our official relations being terminated, as he had always acted in a loyal, straightforward, and friendly manner, and I had much appreciated the intercourse which we had had together during the past few years. I informed Tewfik Pasha that if his Government wished that hostilities between the two countries should cease, the only chance was to dismiss the German naval and military missions, and especially the officers and crews of the "Goeben" and "Breslau." So long as German officers remained in complete naval and military control at Constantinople, it was clear that they would continue to make war against us.

VEUILLEZ transmettre au Ministre des Affaires Étrangéres d'Autriche-Hongrie ce qui suit:

"La communication du Gouvernement austro-hongrois aux Puissances le lendemain de la presentation de l'ultimatum à Belgrade ne laisse aux Puissances qu'un délai tout à fait insuffisant pour entreprendre quoi qu'il soit d'utile pour l'aplanissement des complications surgies.

"Pour prévenir les conséquences incalculables et également néfastes pour toutes les Puissances qui peuvent suivre le mode d'action du Gouvernement austro-hongrois, il nous paraît indispensable qu'avant tout le délai donné à la Serbie pour répondre soit prolongé. L'Autriche-Hongrie, se déclarant disposée à informer les Puissances des données de l'enquête sur lesquelles le Gouvernement Impérial et Royal base ses accusations, devrait leur donner également le temps de s'en rendre compte.

"En ce cas, si les Puissances se convainquaient du bien-fondé de certaines des exigences autrichiennes, elles se trouveraient en mesure de faire parvenir au Gouvernement serbe des conseils en conséquence.

"Un refus de prolonger le terme de l'ultimatum priverait de toute portée la démarche du Gouvernement austro-hongrois auprès des Puissances et se trouverait en contradiction avec les bases mêmes des relations internationales."

PLEASE convey the following message to the Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs:—

"The communication made by the Austro-Hungarian Government to the Powers the day after the presentation of the ultimatum at Belgrade affords to the Powers a period which is quite insufficient to enable them to take any steps which might help to smooth away the difficulties that have arisen.

"In order to prevent the consequences, incalculable and equally fatal to all the Powers, which may result from the course of action followed by the Austro-Hungarian Government, it seems to us to be above all essential that the period allowed for the Servian reply should be extended. Austria-Hungary, having declared herself to be disposed to inform the Powers of the facts elicited by the enquiry upon which the Imperial and Royal Government base their accusations, should equally allow them sufficient time to study those facts.

"In this case, if the Powers were convinced that certain of the Austrian demands were well-founded, they would be in a position to offer corresponding advice to the Servian Government.

"A refusal to prolong the term of the ultimatum would render nugatory the representations made by the Austro-Hungarian Government to the Powers, and would be in contradiction to the very bases of international comity.

Telegram from His Royal Highness the Prince Regent of Servia to His Majesty the Emperor of Russia.

Le Gouvernment austro-hongrois a remis hier soir au Gouvernment serbe une note concernant l'attentat de Sarajevo. Consciente de ses devoirs internationnaux, la Serbie dès les premiers jours de l'horrible crime a declaré qu'elle le condamnait et qu'elle était prête à ouvrir une enquête sur son territoire si la complicite de certains de ses sujets était prouvée au cours du procès instruit par les autorités austro-hongroises. Cependant, les demandes contenues dans la note austro-hongroise sont inutilement humiliantes pour la Serbie et incompatibles avec sa dignité comme Etat indépendant Ainsi on nous demande sur un ton péremptoire une déclaration du Gouvernement dans l' "Officiel," et un ordre du Souverain à l'armée, où nous réprimerions l'esprit hostile contre l'Autriche en nous faisant à nous-mêmes des reproches d'une faiblesse criminelle envers nos menées perfides. On nous impose ensuite l'admission des fonctionnaires austro-hongrois en Serbie pour participer avec les nôtres à l'instruction et pour surveiller l'exécution des autres conditions indiquées dans la note. Nous avons reçu un délai dequarante-huit heures pour accepter le tout, faute de quoi la Légation d'Autriche-Hongrie quittera Belgrade. Nous sommes prêts à accepter les conditions austro-hongroises qui sont compatibles avec la situation d'un État indépendant, ainsi

THE Austro-Hungarian Government yesterday evening presented to the Servian Government a note respecting the outrage at Serajevo. Servia aware of her international obligations, has declared, ever since the horrible crime was committed, that she condemned it, and that she was ready to open an enquiry in Servia if the complicity of certain of her subjects were proved at the trial instituted by the Austro-Hungarian authorities. The demands contained in the Austro-Hungarian note are however, unnecessarily humiliating for Servia, and incompatible with her dignity as an independent State. For instance, we are peremptorily called upon to insert a declaration by the Government in the "Official Journal" and for an order from the Sovereign to the army, in which we are to check the spirit of hostility towards Austria and to blame ourselves for criminal weakness as regards our treacherous intrigues We are further required to admit Austro-Hungarian officials into Servia to take part with our officials at the trial and to superintend the carrying out of the other conditions laid down in the note. We are required to accept these demands in their entirety within forty-eight hours, failing which the Austro-Hungarian Legation will leave Belgrade. We are prepared to accept those of the Austro-Hungarian conditions which are com-que celles dont l'acceptation nous sera conseillée par votre Majesté ; toutes les personnes dont la participation à l'attentat sera démontrée seront sévèrement punis par nous. Certaines parmi ces demandes ne pourraient être exécutées sans des changements de notre législation, ce qui exige due tempts. On nous a donné un delai trop court. Nous pouvons être attaquéapres l'expiration du delai par l'armée austro-hongoroise qui se concentre sur notre frontieró. Il nous est impossible de nous defendre et nous supplions votre Majesté de nous donnere son aide le plus tôt possible. La bienveillance précieuse de votre Majesté qui s'est manifestée tant de fois à notre egard nous fait espèrer fermemement que cette fois encore notre appel sera entendu par son généreux cœur slave.

patible with the position of an independent State, as well as those to which your Majesty may advise us to agree, and all those persons whose complicity in the crime may be proved will be severely punished by us. Certain of the demands could not be carried out without changes in our legislation, which would need time. We have been allowed too short a time limit. We may be attacked at the expiration of the time limit by the Austro-Hungarian Army which is concentrating upon our frontier. We are unable to defend ourselves and we beg your Majesty to come to our aid as soon as possible. The much appreciated good will which your Majesty has so often shown towards us inspires us with the firm belief that once again our appeal to your noble Slav heart will not pass unheeded.

At this critical moment I echo the feelings of the Servian pepole in praying your Majesty to be pleased to interest yourself in the fate of the Kingdom of Servia.

TOUS les journaux du matin, même ceux, rares, qui reconaissent l'impossibilité pour la Serbie d'accepter les conditions posées, accueillent avec une grande sympathie le ton energique adopte par l'Autriche. L'officieux "Local-Anzeiger" est particuliérement agressif ; il qualifie de superflus les recours éventuels de la Serbie à Saint-Pétersbourg, à Paris, à Athènes et à Bucarest, et termine en disant que le peuple allemand respirera librement quand il aura appris que la situation dans la peninsule balkanique va enfin s' eclaircir.

ALL the morning papers, even those few which recognise the impossibility of Servia's accepting the prescribed conditions, warmly welcome the strong line adopted by Austria. The semi-official "Lokal-Anzeiger" is particularly violent ; it describes as fruitless any possible appeals that Servia may make to St Petersburg, Paris, Athens, or Bucharest, and concludes by saying that the German people will breathe freely when they learn that the situation in the Balkan peninsula is to be cleared up at last.

A COPY of the note officially presented at Belgrade has been communicated to l'Ambassadeur d'Autriche au Gouvernement français. Plus tard l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne a visité le Ministre et lui a lu une communication reproduisant les arguments autrichiens et indiquant qu'en cas de refus de la part de la Serbie, l'Autriche serait obligée de recourir à une pression et, en cas de besoin, à des mesures militaires; la communication se terminait par la remarque qu'a l'avis de l'Allemagne cette question devrait être résolue directement entre l'Autriche et la Serbie et qu'il était de l'intérêt des Puissances de circonscrire l'affaire en l'abandonnant aux parties intéressées. Le gérant du Département politique, qui assistait à l'entretien, demanda à l'Ambassadeur s'il fallait considérer l'action autrichienne comme un ultimatum--en d'autres termes, si, dans le cas où la Serbie ne se soumettrait pas entièrement aux demandes autrichiennes, les hostilitiés étaient inévitables L'Ambassadeur évita une réponse directe en alléguant l'absence d'instructions.

the French Government by the Austrian Ambassador. The German Ambassador later visited the Minister and read to him a communication containing the Austrian arguments, and indicating that in the event of a refusal on the part of Servia Austria would be obliged to resort to pressure and, in case of need, to military measures. The communication ended with the observation, that in the opinion of Germany, this question ought to be settled between Austria and Servia direct, and that it was to the interest of the Powers to localise the affair by leaving it to the interested parties. The Acting Head of the Political Department, who was present at the interview, asked the Ambassador whether the Austrian action should be considered as an ultimatum—in other words, whether, in the event of Servia not submitting entirely to the Austrian demands, hostilities were inevitable. The Ambassador avoided a direct reply, alleging that he had no instructions.

Il me dit que le Gouvernement anglais l'a également prié de conseiller à Vienne la prolongatiou du délaï de l'ultimatum; il a communiqué cette démarche télégraphiquement à Vienne, il va en faire autant pour notre démarche, mais il craint qu'à la suite de l'absence de Berchtold, parti pour Ischl, et vu le manque de temps, ses télégrammes ne restent sans résultats; il a, en outre, des doutes sur l'opportunité pour l'Autriche de céder au dernier moment, et il se demande si cela ne pouvait pas augmenter l'assurance de la Serbie. J'ai répondu qu'une grande Puissance comme l'Autriche pourrait céder sans porter atteinte à son prestige et ai fait valoir tous les argument conformes, cependant je n'ai pu obtenir des promesses plus précises. Même lorsque je laissais entendre qu'il fallait agir à Vienne pour éviter la possibilité de conséquences redoubtables, le Ministre des Affaires Etrangères répondait chaque fois negativement.

I HAVE received your telegram of the 11th (24th) July and have communicated its contents to the Minister for Foreign Affairs. He tells me that the British Government have likewise urged him to advise Vienna to extend the time limit of the ultimatum. He has informed Vienna telegraphically of this step, and he will do the same as regards Russia's action, but he fears that in the absence of Berchtold, who has left for Ischl, and in view of the lack of time, his telegrams may have no result. Moreover, he has doubts as to the wisdom of Austria yielding at the last moment, and he is inclined to think that such a step on her part might increase the assurance of Servia. I replied that a great Power such as Austria could give way without impairing her prestige, and I adduced every other similar argument, but failed, nevertheless, to obtain any more definite promise. Even when I gave him to understand that action must be taken at Vienna if the possibility of terrible consequences was to be avoided, the Minister for Foreign Affairs answered each time in the negative.

REÇU télégramme du 11 juillet. Grey a prescrit à l'Ambassadeur d'Angleterre à Vienne d'appuyer notre démarche concernant la prolongation du délai de l'ultimatum. Il m'a dit en même temps que l'Ambassadeur d'Autriche était venu le voir et avait explique qu'on ne devrait pas attribuer à la note autrichienne le caractère d'un ultimatum; il faudrait la considérer comme une démarche qui, en cas d'absence de réponse, ou en cas de réponse insuffisante au terme fixé, aurait comme suite la rupture des relations diplomatiques et le départ immédiat de Belgrade du Ministre d'Autriche-Hongrie, sans entrainer cependant le commencement immédiat des hostilités. Grey a ajoute qu'à la suite de cette explication il a indiqué à l'Ambassadeur d'Angleterre à Vienne que dans le cas ou il serait trop tard pour soulever la question de la prolongation du délai de l'ultimatum, celle de l'arrêt des hostilités pourrait peutêtre servir de base à la discussion.

(Telegram.)

I HAVE received your telegram of the 11th July. Grey has instructed the British Ambassador at Vienna to support our action for the extension of the time limit of the ultimatum. At the same he explained to me that the Austrian Ambassador had come to see him, and had explained that the Austrian note should not be regarded as an ultimatum. It should be regarded as a step, which, in the event of no reply, or in the event of an unsatisfactory reply within the time fixed, would be followed by a rupture of diplomatic relations and the immediate departure of the Austro-Hungarian Minister from Belgrade; without, however, entailing the immediate opening of hostilities. Grey added that as a result of this explanation he had told the British Ambassador at Vienna that, should it be too late to raise the question of extending the time limit of the ultimatum, the question of preventing hostilities might perhaps serve as a basis for discussion.

IN the event of any change for the worse in the situation which might lead to joint action by the Great Powers, we count upon it that England will at once side definitely with Russia and France, in order to maintain the European balance of power, for which she has constantly intervened in the past, and which would certainly be compromised in the event of the triumph of Austria.

Note verbale handed to Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs by the Germ n Ambassador at St. Petersburg, July, 12 (25), 1914.

IL nous revient de source authoritative que la nouvelle répandue par quelques journaux d'après laquelle la démarche du Gouvernement d'Autriche-Hongrie à Belgrade aurait été faite à l'instigation de l'Allemagne est absolument fausse. Le Gouvernement allemand n'a pas eu connaissance du texte de la note autrichienne avant qu'elle ait été remise, et n'a exercé aucune influence sur son contenu. C'est à tort qu'on attribue à l'Allemagne une attitude comminatoire.

L'Allemagne appuie naturellement comme allié de l'Autriche les revendications à son avis légitimes du Cabinet de Vienne contre la Serbie.

Avant tout elle désire, comme elle l'a déjà déclaré dès le commencement du différend austro-serbe, que ce conflit reste localisé.

WE learn from an authoritative source that the news spread by certain newspapers, to the effect that the action of the Austro-Hungarian Government at Belgrade was instigated by Germany, is absolutely false. The German Government had no knowledge of the text of the Austrian note before it was presented, and exercised no influence upon its contents. A threatening attitude is wrongly attributed to Germany.

Germany, as the ally of Austria, naturally supports the claims made by the Vienna Cabinet against Servia, which she considers justified.

Above all Germany wishes, as she has already declared from the very beginning of the Austro-Servian dispute, that this conflict should be localised.

Aujourd'hui un journal du matin a publié sous une forme pas entiérement exacte, les déclarations d'hier de l'Ambassadeur, d'Allemagne, en les faisant suivre de commentaires qui attribuent à cette démarche le caractére d'une menace. L'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne, trés impressionné par ces divulgations, a visité aujourd'hui le Gérant du Département politique pour lui dire que ses paroles n'avaient nullement en le caractére de menace qu'on leur attribue. Il a déclaré que l'Autriche avait presente sa note à la Serbie sens entente précisé avec Berlin, mais que cependant l'Allemagne approuvait le point de vue de l'Autriche, et que certainment "la flèche une fois partie" (ce sont la ses propres paroles), l'Allemagne ne pouvait se laisser guider que par ses devoirs d'allés.

PLEASE refer to my telegram of the 11th (24th) July.

A morning paper has to-day published, in a not altogether correct form, the declarations made yesterday by the German Ambassador, and has added comments in which it characterises these utterances as being in the nature of threats The German Ambassador, who is much upset by these disclosures, today visited the Acting Head of the Political Department, and explained to him that his words in no wise bore the threatening character attributed to them. He stated that Austria had presented her note to Servia without any definite understanding with Berlin, but that Germany nevertheless approved of the Austrian point of view and that undoubtedly "the bolt once fired" (these were his own words), Germany could only be guided by her duties as an ally.

Grey a repondu qué cela était complétement imposisible. Le Ministre a ajouté que tant que les complications n existaient qu'antre l'autriche et la Serbie, les intérêts anglais n'étient engagés qu'indirectement, mais qu'il devait prévoir que la mobilisation autrichienne aurait comme suite la mobilisation le la Russie et que dès ce moment on se trouverait en présence d'une situation à laquelle serient intéresces toutes les Pussances L'Angleterre se réservait pour ce cas une complète liberté d'action.

GREY has told me that the German Ambassador has declared to him that the German Government were not informed of the text of the Austrian note, but that they entirely supported Austria's action. The Ambassador at the same time asked if Great Britain could see her way to bring conciliatory pressure to bear at St. Petersburg. Grey replied that this was quite impossible. He added that, as long as complications existed between Austria and Servia alone, British interests were only indirectly affected; but he had to look ahead to the fact that Austrian mobilisation would lead to Russian mobilisation, and that from that moment a situation would exist in which the interests of all the Powers would be involved. In that event Great Britain reserved to herself full liberty of action.

GREY a dit à l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne qu'à son avis la mobilisation autrichienne devait entraîner la mobilisation de la Russie, qu'alors surgirait le danger aigu d'une guerre générale et qu'il ne voyait qu'un seul moyen pour une solution pacifique: qu'en présence des mobilisations autrichienne et russe, l'Allemagne, la France, l'Italie et l'Angleterre s'abstiennent d'une mobilisation immédiate et proposent tout d'abord leurs bons offices. Grey m'a dit que ce plan nécessitait avant tout l'agrément de l'Allemagne et l'engagement de cette Puissance de ne pas mobiliser. En conséquence il a adressé tout d'abord à Berlin une question à ce sujet.

GREY has told the German Ambassador that in his opinion Austrian mobilisation must lead to Russian mobilisation, that grave danger of a general war will thereupon arise, and that he sees only one means of reaching a peaceful settlement, namely, that, in view of the Austrain and Russian mobilisations, Germany, France, Italy and Great Britain should abstain from immediate mobilisation and should at once offer their good offices. Grey told me that the first essential of this plan was the consent of Germany and her promise not to mobilise. He has therefore, as a first step, made an enquiry on this point at Berlin.

J'AI eu aujourd'hui un long entretien sur un ton amical avec l'Ambassadeur d'Autriche-Hongrie. Après avoir examiné avec lui les dix demandes adressées à la Serbie, j'ai fait observer qu'à part la forme peu habile sous laquelle elles sont présentées, quelques-unes parmi elles sont absolument inexécutables, même dans le cas où le Gouvernement serbe déclarerait les vouloir accepter. Ainsi, par exemple, les points 1 et 2 ne pourraient être exécutés sans un remaniement des lois Serbes sur la presse et sur les associations, pour lequel le consentement de la Skoupchtina pourrait être difficilement obtenu; quant à l'execution des points 4 et 5, elle pourrait produire des conséquences fort dangereuses et même faire naître le danger d'actes de terrorisme dirigés contre les membres de la Maison Royale et contre Pachitch, ce qui ne saurait entrer dans less vues de l'Autriche. En ce qui regarde les autres points, il me semble qu'avec certains changements dans les détails, il ne serait pas difficile de trouver un terrain d'entente si les accusations y contenues étaient confirmées par des preuves suffisantes.

Dans l'intérêt de la conservation de la paix, qui, aux dires de Szapary, est précieuse à l'Autriche au même degré qu'à toutes les Puissances il serait nécessaire de mettre au plus tôt possible une fin à la situation tendus du moment. Dans ce but il me semblerait très désirable que l'Ambassadeur d'Autriche-Hongrie fût auterisé d'entrer avec moi dans un échange de vues privé aux fins d'un remaniement en commun de quelques articles de la note autrichienne du 10 (23) juillet. Ce procédé permettrait peut-être de trouvar une formule qui fût acceptable pour la Serbie, tout en donnant satisfaction à l'Autriche quant au fond de ses demandes. Veuillez avoir une explication prudente et amicale dans le sens de ce télégramme avec le Ministre des Affaires Étrangères.

I HAD a long and friendly conversation to-day with the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador. After discussing the ten demands addressed to Servia, I drew his attention to the fact that, quite apart from the clumsy form in which they were presented, some of them were quite impracticable, even if the Servian Government agreed to accept them. Thus, for example, points 1 and 2 could not be carried out without recasting the Servian press law and associations law, and to that it might be difficult to obtain the consent of the Skupchtina. As for enforcing points 4 and 5, this might lead to most dangerous consequences, and even to the risk of acts of terrorism directed against the Royal Family and against Pashitch, which clearly could not be the intention of Austria. With regard to the other points it seemed to me that, with certain changes of detail, it would not be difficult to find a basis of mutual agreement, if the accusations contained in them were confirmed by sufficient proof.

In the interest of the maintenance of peace, which, according to the statements of Szapary, is as much desired by Austria as by all the Powers, it was necessary to end the tension of the present moment as soon as possible. With this object in view it seemed to me most desirable that the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador should be authorised to enter into a private exchange of views in order to redraft certain articles of the Austrian note of the 10th (23rd) July in consultation with me. This method of procedure would perhaps enable us to find a formula which would prove acceptable to Servia, while giving satisfaction to Austria in respect of the chief of her demands. Please convey the substance of this telegram to the Minister for Foreign Affairs in a judicious and friendly manner.

Le Ministre fit observer que l'Allemagne pourrait de son côté entreprendre des démarches analogues à Vienne surtout en présence de l'esprit de conciliation dont a fait preuve la Serbie. L'Ambassadeur répondit que cela n'était pas possible, vu la résolution prise de ne pas s'immiscer dans le conflit austro-serbe. Alors de Ministre demanda, si les quatre Puissances—l'Angleterre, l'Allemagne l'Italie et la France—ne pouvaient pas entreprendre des démarches à Saint-Pétersbourg et à Vienne, puisque l'affaire se réduisait en somme à un conflit entre la Russie et l'Autriche. Germany is at one with France in her ardent desire to preserve peace, and she sincerely hopes that France will exercise a moderating influence at St. Petersburg.

The Minister pointed out that Germany on her part might well act on similar lines at Vienna, especially in view of the conciliatory spirit displayed by Servia. The Ambassador replied that such a course was not possible, owing to the decision not to intervene in the Austro-Servian dispute. The Minister then asked whether the four Powers—Great Britain, Germany, Italy, and France—could not make representations at St. Petersburg and Vienna, for that the matter amounted, in effect, to a dispute between Autria and Russia. The Ambassador alleged that he had no instructions. Finally, the Minister refused to agree to the German proposal.

I DISCUSSED the situation with the Acting Minister for Foreign Affairs, in the Berthelot, immédiatement après mon retour à Paris. Tous lex deux m'ont confirmé les détails concernant les démarches de l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne que Sevastopoulo vous a communiqués dans ses télégrammes. Ce matin le Baron de Schoen a confirmé par écrit sa déclaration d'hier, savoir:

1. L'Autriche a déclaré à la Russie qu'elle ne recherche pas d'acquisitions et n'attente pas a l'intégrité de la Serbie. Son unique but est d'assurer sa propre tranquilité.

2. Par conséquent il dépend de la Russie d'éviter la guerre.

3. L'Allemagne et la France, complétement solidaires dans l'ardent désir de ne pas rompre la paix, doivent agir sur la Russie dans un sens modérateur.

Le Baron de Schoen a spécialement souligne l'expression de la solidarité entre l'Allemagne et la France. D'après la conviction du Ministre de la Justice, les démarches susdites de l'Allemagne ont pour but évident de désunir la Russie et la France, d'entraîner le Gouvernement français dans la voie des représentations à Saint-Pétersbourg et de compromettre ainsi notre allié à nos yeux; enfin, en cas de guerre, d'en rejeter la responsabilité non sur l'Allemagne, qui emploie soi-disant tous ses efforts pour le maintien de la paix, mais sur la Russie et la France.

presence of Berthelot, directly after my return to Paris. They both confirmed the information respecting the action taken by the German Ambassador, which Sevastopoulo has already telegraphed to you. This morning Baron von Schoen confirmed his declaration of yesterday in writing, i.e.:

1. That Austria has declared to Russia that she seeks no territorial acquisitions and that she harbours no designs against the integrity of Servia. Her sole object is to secure her own peace and quiet.

2. That consequently it rests with Russia to avoid war.

3. That Germany and France, entirely at one in their ardent desire to preserve peace, should exercise their moderating influence upon Russia.

Baron von Schoen laid special emphasis on the expression of solidarity of Germany and France. The Minister of Justice is convinced that these steps on the part of Germany are taken with the evident object of alienating Russia and France, of inducing the French Government to make representations at St. Petersburg, and of thus compromising our ally in our eyes; and finally, in the event of war, of throwing the responsibility not on Germany, who is ostensibly making every effort to maintain peace, but on Russia and France.

avait reçu celle de l'Ambassadeur de France, qui avait tenté de lui faire accepter la proposition anglaise relative à une action en faveur de la paix, action qui serait exercée simultanément à Saint-Pétersbourg et à Vienne par l'Angleterre, l'Allemagne, l'Italie et la France. Cambon a proposé que ces Puissances donnent à Vienne un conseil dans les termes suivants : " S'abstenir de tout acte qui pourrait aggraver la situation de l'heure actuelle." En adoptant cette formule voilée on éviterait de mentionner la nécessité de s'abstenir d'une invasion de la Serbie. Jagow a opposé à cette proposition un refus catégorique, et cela malgré les instances de l'Ambassadeur, qui a fait valoir, comme un bon côté de la proposition, le groupement mixte des Puissances grâce auquel on évitait l'opposition de l'Alliance à l'Entente, ce dont s'était si souvent plaint Jagow lui-même.

had received the French Ambassador, who endeavoured to induce him to accept the British proposal for action in favour of peace, such action to be taken simultaneously at St. Petersburg and at Vienna by Great Britian, Germany, Italy, and France. Cambon suggested that these Powers should give their advice to Vienna in the following terms : " To abstain from all action which might aggravate the existing situation.". By adopting this vague formula all mention of the necessity of refraining from invading Servia might be avoided. Jagow refused point blank to accept this suggestion in spite of the entreaties of the Ambassador, who emphasised, as a good feature of the suggestion, the mixed grouping of the Powers, thanks to which the opposition between the Alliance and the Entente—a matter of which Jagow himself had often complained—was avoided.

VOTRE Altesse Royale en s'adressant moi dans un moment particuliérement difficile ne s'est pas trompée sur les sentiments qui m'animent à son égard et súr ma sympathie cordiale pour le peuple serbe.

Ma plus sérieuse atténtion est attirée par la situation actuelle et mon Gouvernement s'applique de toutes ses forces à aplanir les présentes difficultés Je ne doute point que votre Altesse et le Gouvernment Royal ne veuillent faciliter cette tâche en ne négligeant rien pour arriver à une solution qui permette deprévenir les horreurs d'une nouvelle guerre tout en sauvegardant la dignité de la Sérbie.

Tant qu'il y a le moindre espoir dóviter une effusion de sang, tous nos efforts doivent tendre vers ce but. Si, malgré plus sincère desir, nous ne réussions pas votre Altesse peut être assurée qu'en aucun cas la Russie ne se désintéressera du sort de la Serbie.

WHEN your Royal Highness applied to me at a time of special stress, you were not mistaken in the sentiments which I entertain for you, or in my cordial sympathy with the Servian people.

The existing situation is engaging my most serious attention, and my Government are using their utmost endeavour to smooth away the present difficulties. I have no doubt that Your Highness and the Royal Servian Government wish to render that task easy by neglecting no step which might lead to a settlement, and thus both prevent the horror of a new war and safeguard the the dignity of Servia.

So long as the slightest hope exists of avoiding bloodshed, all our efforts must be directed to that end ; but if in spite of our earnest wish we are not successful, Your Highness may rest assured that Russia will in no case disinterest herself in the fate of Servia.

LE Ministre des Affaires Entrangéres est absent. Pendant ua entretien prolongé que j'ai eu aujourd'hui avec Macchio, j'ai, en termes tout à fait amicaux, attiré son attention sur l'impression défavourable qu'a produite en Russie la présentation par l'Autriche à la Serbie de demandes absolument inacceptables pour chaque État indepeudant, bien que petit. J'ai ajouté que ce procede, qui pourrait amener de complications les moins désirables, a provoqué en Russie une profonde surprise et une réprobation générale. Il faut supposer que l'Autriche, sous l'influence des assurances du Représentant allemand à Vienne, lequel, pendant toute cette crise a joué un rôle d'inistigateur, a compté sur la probabilité de la localisation de son conflit avec la Serbie et sur la possibilitié de porter à cette derniére impunément un coup grave. La déclaration du Gouvernement Impérial concernant l'impossibilité pour la Russie de rester indifférente en présence d'un tel procédé aprovoqué ici une grande impression.

THE Minister for Foreign Affairs is away. During a long conversation which I had with Macchio to-day I drew his attention, in a perfectly friendly way, to tne unfavourable impression produced in Russia by the presentation of demands by Austria to Servia, which it was quite impossible for any independent State, however small, to accept. I added that this method of procedure might lead to the most undesirable complications, and that it had aroused profound surprise and general condemnation in Russia. We can only suppose that Austria, influenced by the assurances given by the Gernan Representative at Vienna, who has egged her on throughout this crisis, has counted on the probable localisation of the dispute with Servia, and the possibility of inflicting with impunity a serious blow upon that country. The declaration by the Russian Government that Russia could not possibly remain indifferent in the face of such conduct has caused a great sensation here.

GREY vient de rèpondre a l' Ambassadeur d' Allemagne, qui était venu le questionner sur la possiblité d'une action à Saint-Pétersbourg, que cette action devrait se produire à Vienne et que le Cabinet de Berlin serait le mieux qualifié pour l'exercer. Grey à fait observer en même temps que la réponse serbe à la note autrichienne dépassait par sa modération et son esprit de conciliation tout ce à quoi on pouvait s'attendre. Grey a ajouté qu'il en concluait que la Russie avait conseillé à Belgrade de donner une réponse modérée et qu'il pensait que la réponse serbe pouvait servir de base à une solution pacifique et acceptable de la question,

(Telegram.)

GREY has just informed the German Ambassador, who came to question him as the possibility of taking action at St. Petersburg, that such action ought rather to be taken at Vienna, and that the Berlin Cabinet were the best qualified to do so. Grey also pointed out that the Servian reply to the Austrian note had exceeded anything that could have been expected in moderation and in its spirit of concilation Grey added that he had therefore come to the conclusion that Russia must have advised Belgrade to return a moderate reply, and that He thought the Servian reply could form the basis of a peacefnl and acceptable solution of the question.

Dans ces conditions, a continué Grey, si l'Autriche malgré cette réponse commençait les hostilités, elle prouverait son intention d'anéantir la Serbie. La question placée sur ce terrain produirait une situation qui pourrait amener une guerre dans laquelle seraient impliquées toutes les Puissances.

Grey a enfin déclaré que le Gouvernement anglais était bien sincèrement disposé à collaborer avec le Gouvernement allemand tant qu'il s'agirait de la conservation de la paix ; mais que pour le cas contraire l'Angleterre se réservait une pleine liberté d'action.

(Signé) BENCKENDORFF.

In the circumstances, continued Grey, if Austria were to begin hostilities in spite of that reply, she would prove her intention of crushing Servia. Looked at in this light, the question might give rise to a situation which might lead to a war in which all the Powers would be involved.

Grey finally declared that the British Government were sincerely anxious to act with the German Government as long as the preservation of peace was in question ; but, in the contrary event, Great Britain reserved to herself full liberty of action.

MES entretiens avec l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne confirment mon impression que l'Allemagne est plutôt favorable à l'intransigeance de l'Autriche.

Le Cabinet de Berlin, qui aurait pu arrêter tout le développement de la crise paraît n'exercer aucune action sur son alliée.

L'Ambassadeur trouve insuffisante la réponse de la Serbie.

Cette attitude allemande est tout particulièrement alarmante.

Il me semble que mieux que toute autre Puissance l'Angleterre serait en mesure de tenter encore d'agir à Berlin pour engager le Gouvernement allemand à l'action nécessaire C'est à Berlin qu'indubitablement se trouve la clef de la situation

MY interviews with the German Ambassador confirm my impression that Germany is, if anything, in favour of the uncompromising attitude adopted by Austria.

The Berlin Cabinet, who could have prevented the whole of this crisis developing, appear to be exerting no influence on their ally.

The Ambassador considers that the Servian reply is insufficient.

This attitude on the part of the German Government is most alarming.

It seems to me that Great Britain is in a better position than any other Power to make another attempt at Berlin to induce the German Government to take the necessary action. There is no doubt that the key of the situation is to be found at Berlin.

J'AI entretenu aujourd'hui le Comte Berchtold dans le sens des instructions de votre Excellence Je lui fis observer, en termes les plus amicaux, combien il était désirable de trouver une solution qui, en consolidant les bons rapports entre l' Autriche-Hongrie et la Russie donnerait à la Monarchie austro-hongroise des garanties sérieuses pour ses rapports futurs avec la Serbie.

J'attirais l'attention due Comte Berchtold sur tous les dangers pour la paix de l'Europe qu'entraînerait un conflit armé entre l'Autriche-Hongrie et la Serbie.

Le Comte Berchtold me répondit qu'il se rendait parfaitement compte du sérieux de la situation et des advantages d'une franche explication avec le Cabinet de Saint-Pétersbourg. Il me dit que d'un autre côté le Gouvernement austro-hongrois, qui ne s'était décidé que très mal volontiers aux measres énergiques qu'il avait prises contre la Serbie, ne pouvait plus ni reculer, ni entrer en discussion aucune des termes de la note austro-hongroise

Le Comte Berchtold ajouta que la crise était devenue si aiguë, et que l'excitation de l'opinion publique avait atteint tel degré, que le Gouvernement, le voulait-il, ne pouvait plus y consentir, d'autant moins, me dit-il, que la réponse même de la Serbie donne la preuve du manque de sincérité de ses promesses pour l'avenir.

I SPOKE to Count Berchtold to-day in the sense of your Excellency's instructions. I pointed out to him in the most friendly manner, how desirable it was to find a solution which, while consolidating good relations between Austria-Hungary and Russia, would give to the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy genuine guarantees for its future relations with Servia.

I drew Count Berchtold's attentions to all the dangers to the peace of Europe which an armed conflict between Austria-Hungary and Servia would involve.

Count Berchtold replied that he was well aware of the gravity of the situation and of the advantages of a frank explanation with the St. Petersburg Cabinet. He told me that, on the other hand, the Austro-Hungarian Government, who had only decided, much against their will on the energetic measures which they had taken against Servia, could no longer recede, nor enter into any discussion of the terms of the Austro-Hungarian note.

Count Berchtold added that the crisis had become so acute, and that public opinion had been incited to such a pitch, that the Government, even if they wished it, could no longer consent to such a course. This was all the more impossible, he said, inasmuch as the Servian reply itself furnished proof of the insincerity of Servia's promises for the future.

déclaration de guerre. Jusqu'à ce matin il n'y avait aucune nouvelle que les armées autrichiennes aient franchi la frontière serbe. J'ai prié l' Ambassadeur de transmettre au Chancelier mes remerciments pour la teneur amicale de cette communication. Je l'ai informé des mesures militaires prises par la Russie, dont aucune, lui disje, n'était dirigée contre l'Allemagne; j'ajoutais qu'elles ne prejugaient pas non plus des mesures agressives contre l,Autriche-Hongrie, ces mesures s'expliquant par la mobilisation de la plus grande partie de l'armée austro-hongroise.

L'Ambassadeur se prononçant en faveur d'explications directes entre le Cabinet de Vienne et nous, je répondis que j'y étais tout disposé, pour peu que les conseils du Cabinet de Berlin dont il parlait trouvent écho à Vienne.

En même temps je signalais que nous étions tout disposés à accepter le projet d'une conférence des quatre Puissances, un projet auquel, paraissait-il, l'Allemagne ne sympathisait pas entièrement.

Je dis que, dans mon opinion, le meilleur moyen pour mettré à profit tous les moyens propres à produire une solution pacifique consisterait en une action parallèle des pourparlers d'une conférence à quatre de l'Allemagne, de la France, de l'Angleterre et de l'Italie et d'un contact direct entre l'Autriche-Hongrie et la Russie, à l'instar á peu prés de ce qui avait eu lieu aux moments les plus critiques de la crise de l'an dernier.

Je dis à l'Ambassadeur qu'après les concessions faites par la Serbie, un terrain de compromis pour les questions restées ouvertes ne serait pas trés difficile à trouver, à condition toutefois de quelque bonne volonté de la part de l'Autriche et à condition que toutes les Puissances usent de toute leur influence dans un sens de conciliation.

the declaration of war. Up to this morning there had been no news that the Austrian army had crossed the Servian frontier. I begged the Ambassador to express my thanks to the Chancellor for the friendly tenor of this communication. I informed him of the military measures taken by Russia, none of which, I told him, were directed against Germany; I added that neither should they be taken as aggressive measures against Austria-Hungary, their explanation being the mobilisation of the greater part of the Austro-Hungarian army.

The Ambassador said that he was in favour of direct explanations between the Austrian Government and Russia, and I replied that I, too, was quite willing, provided that the advice of the German Government, to which he had referred, found an echo at Vienna.

I pointed out at the same time that we were quite ready to accept the proposal for a conference of the four Powers, a proposal with which apparently Germany was not in entire sympathy.

I told him that, in my opinion, the best manner of turning to account all methods suitable for finding a peaceful solution would be to arrange for parallel discussions to be carried on as to a conference of the four Powers—Germany, France, Great Britain, and Italy—and by a direct exchange of views between Austria-Hungary and Russia on much the same lines as occurred during the most critical moments of last year's crisis.

I told the Ambassador that, after the concessions which had been made by Servia, it should not be very difficult to find a compromise to settle the other questions which remained outstanding, provided that Austria showed some good will and that all the powers used their entire influence in the direction of conciliation.

The Secretary of State tells me that he received a telegram to-day from Pourtalès, stating that you seemed more inclined than you previously were to find a compromise acceptable to all parties. I replied that presumably you had been in favour of a compromise from the outset, provided always that it were acceptable, not only to Austria, but equally to Russia. He then said that it appeared that Russia had begun to mobilise on the Austrian frontier, and that he feared that this would make it more difficult for Austria to come to an understanding with us, all the more so as Austria was mobilising against Servia alone, and was making no preparations upon our frontier. I replied that, according to the information in my possession, Austria was mobilising upon the Russian frontier also, and that consequently we had to take similar steps. A LOCCASION de l'arrivée du Président de la République francaise, le Ministre des Affaires Etrangères avait préparé un court expose de la situation politique actuelle, à peu près dans les termes suivants: L'Autriche, craignant la décomposition intérieure, s'est emparée du prétexte de l'assassinat de l'Archiduc pour essayer d'obtenir des garanties qui pourront revêtir la forme de l'occupation des communications militaries serbes ou même du territoire serbe. L'Allemagne soutient l'Autriche. Le maintien de la paix dépend de la seule Russie, parce qu'il s'agit d'une affaire qui doit être "localisée" entre l'Autriche et la Serbie, c'est-à-dire de la punition de la politique précédente de la Serbie et des garanties pour l'avenir. De ceci l'Allemagne conclut qu'il faut exercer une action modératrice à Pétersbourg. Ce sophisme a été réfuté à Paris comme à Londres. A Paris, le Baron de Schoen a, en vain tâche d'entraîner la France à une action solidaire avec l' Allemagne sur la Russie en faveur du maintien de la paix. Les mêmes tentatives ont été faites à Londres. Dans les deux capitales il a été répondu que l'action devrait être exercée à Vienne, car les demandes excessives de l'Autriche, son refus de discute les rares réserves de la Serbie, et la déclaration de guerre menacent de provoquer la

(Telegram.)

For the information of the President of the French Republic on his return, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs had prepared a short summary of the present political situation, approximately in the following terms: Austria fearing internal disintegration, seized upon the assassination of the Archduke as an excuse for an attempt to obtain guarantees, which may assume the form of an occupation of Servian military lines or even Servian territory. Germany is supporting Austria. The preservation of peace depends upon Russia alone, for the question at issue must be "localised" between Austria and Servia; that question is the punishment of Servia for her previous policy and the obtaining of guarantees for the future. Germany concludes from this that a moderating influence should be exerted at St. Petersburg. This sophism has been refuted both in Paris and in London. In Paris, Baron von Schoen vainly endeavoured to induce France to adopt joint action with Germany towards Russia for the preservation of peace. The same attempts were made in London. In both capitals the answer was given that any action taken should be at Vienna, as it was Austria's inordinate demands, her refusal to discuss Servia's few reservations, and her declaration of war, that guerre générale. La France et l'Angleterre ne peuvent exercer une action modératrice sur la Russie, laquelle jusqu'ici a fait preuve de la plus grande modération, surtout en conseillant à la Serbie d'accepter ce qui était possible de la note autrichienne. Aujourd'hui l'Allemagne paraît renoncer à l'idée d'une action sur la Russie seule et incline vers une action médiatrice à Pétersbourg et à Vienne, mais en même temps l'Allemagne comme l'Autriche tâchent de faire traîner l'affaire. L'Allemagne s'oppose à la conférence sans indiquer aucune autre manière d'agir pratique. L'Autriche mène des pourparlers manifestement dilatoires à Pétersbourg. En même temps elle prend des mesures actives, et si ces mesures sont tolérées, ses prétentions augmenteront proportionnellement. Il est très désirable que la Russie prête tout son appui au projet de médiation que présentera Sir E. Grey. Dans le cas contraire, l' Autriche, sous prétexte de "garantie," pourra, en fait, changer le statut territorial de l'Europe orientale.

that threatened to provoke a general war. France and England are unable to bring any moderating pressure to bear upon Russia, as, so far that Power has shown the greatest moderation, more particularly in her advice to Servia to accept as much as was possible of the Austrian note. Apparently Germany has now given up the idea of pressure upon Russia only, and inclines towards mediatory action both at St. Petersburg and at Vienna, but at the same time both Germany and Austria are endeavouring to cause the question to drag on. Germany is opposing the conference without suggesting any other practical course of action. Austria is continuing discussions at St. Petersburg, which are manifestly of a procrastinating nature. At the same time she is taking active steps, and if these steps are tolerated, her claims will increase proportionately. It is highly desirable that Russia should lend all her support to the proposal for mediation which will be made by Sir E. Grey. In the contrary event, Austria, on the plea of "guarantees," will be able, in effect, to alter the territorial status of Eastern Europe.

He informed the German Ambassador to-day that the direct discussions between Russia and Austria had been fruitless, and that press correspondents were reporting from St. Pètersburg that Russia was mobilising against Austria in consequence of the latter's mobilisation. Grey said that, in principle, the German Government had declared themselves in favour of mediation, but that he was experiencing difficulties with regard to the form it should take. Grey has urged that the German Government should indicate the form which, in their opinion, would enable the four Powers to have recourse to mediation to prevent war; France, Italy and Great Britain having consented, mediation could only come into play if Germany consented to range herself on the side of peace.

Cette résolution est soutenue par les cercles les plus étendus et par les partis y compris les radicauxsocialistes, qui viennent de lui présenter une déclaration exprimant la confiance absolue et les dispositions patriotiques du groupe. Dès son arrivée à Paris Viviani a télégraphié d'urgence à Londres que, vu la cessation des pourparlers directs entre Pétersbourg et Vienne, il était nécessaire que le Cabinet de Londres renouvelât le plus tôt possible, sous telle ou autre forme, sa proposition concernant la médiation des Puissances. Avant moi Viviani a reçu aujourd'hui l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne, qui lui a renouvelé l'assurance des tendances pacifiques de l'Allemagne. Viviani ayant fait observer que si l'Allemagne désirait la paix elle devrait se hâter d'adhérer à la proposition de médiation anglaise, le Baron Schoen a répondu que les mots " conference " ou " arbitrage " effrayaient l'Autriche. Viviani a répliqué qu'il ne s'agissait pas de mots, et qu'il serait facile de trouver une autre forme de médiation. D'après l'avis du Baron de Schoen, pour le succès des négociations entre les Puissances il serait nécessaire de savoir ce que l'Autriche compterait demander à la Serbie. Viviani a répondu que le Cabinet de Berlin pourrait bien facilement s'en enquérir auprés de l'Autriche, mais qu'en attendant la note responsive serbe pourrait servir de base à la discussion; il a ajouté que la France désirait sincèrement la paix, mais qu'elle était en même temps résolue d'agir en pleine harmonie avec ses alliés et amis, et que lui, le Baron de Schoen, avit pu se convaincre que cette résolution rencontrait la plus vive approbation du pays.

VIVIANI has just confirmed to me the French Government's firm determination to act in concert with Russia. This determination is upheld by all classes of society and by the political parties, including the Radical Socialists who have just addressed a resolution to the Government expressing the absolute confidence and the patriotic sentiments of their party. Since his return to Paris, Viviani has telegraphed an urgent message to London that, direct discussions between St. Petersburg and Vienna having ended the London Cabinet should again put forward their proposal for mediation by the Powers as soon as possible under one form or another. Before seeing me to-day Viviani saw the German Ambassador, and the latter again assured him of the peaceful intentions of Germany. Viviani having pointed out that if Germany wished for peace she should hasten to give her support to the British proposal for mediation, Baron von Schoen replied that the words " conference " or " arbitration " alarmed Austria. Viviani retorted that it was not a question of words, and that it would be easy to find some other form for mediation. In the opinion of Baron von Schoen, it was necessary for the success of the negotiations between the Powers to know what Austria intended to demand from Servia. Viviani answered that the Berlin Cabinet could quite easily make this enquiry of Austria, but that, meanwhile, the Servian reply might well form the basis of discussion; he added that France sincerely desired peace; but that she was determined at the same time to act in complete harmony with her allies and friends, and that he, Baron von Schoen, might have convinced himself that this determination met with the warmest approval of the country.

AUJOURD'HUI l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne m'a communiqué la résolution prise par son Gouvernement de mobiliser, si la Russie ne cessait pas ses préparatifs militaires. Or, nous n'avons commencé ces derniers qu'à la suite de la mobilisation à laquelle avait déjà procédé l'Autriche et vu l'absence évidente chez cette dernière du désir d'accepter un mode quelconque d'une solution pacifique de son conflit avec la Serbie.

Puisque nous ne pouvons pas accéder au désir de l'Allemagne, il ne nous reste que d'accélerer nos propres armements et de compter avec l'inévitabilité probable

THE German Ambassador to-day informed me of the decision of his Government to mobilise, if Russia did not stop her military preparations. Now, in point of fact, we only began these preparations in consequence of the mobilisation already undertaken by Austria, and owing to her evident unwillingness to accept any means of arriving at a peaceful settlement of her dispute with Servia.

As we cannot comply with the wishes of Germany, we have no alternative but to hasten on our own military preparations and to assume that war is probably

LE Prince-Régent a publié hier un manifeste signé par tous les Ministres à l'occasion de la déclaration de la guerre par l'Autriche à la Serbie. Le manifeste se termine par les paroles suivantes: "Defendéz de toutes vos forces vos foyers et la Serbie." Lors de l'ouverture solennelle de la Skoupchtina, le Régent lut en son nom le discours du trône, au début duquel il indiqua que le lieu de la convocation démontrait l'importance des événements actuels. Suit l'exposé des faits des derniers jours—l'ultimatum autrichieu, la réponse serbe, les efforts du Gouvernement Royal de faire tout ce qui était compatible avec la dignité de l'État pour évitér la guerre et enfin l'agression armée du voisin plus puissant contre la Serbie, aux côtés de laquelle se tiant le Monténégro. En passant à l'examen de l'attitude des Puissances en présence du conflit, le Prince insista tout d'abord sur les sentiments dont est animée la Russie et sur la toute gracieuse communication de Sa Majesté l'Empereur disant que la Russie en aucun cas n'abandonnera la Serbie. A chaque mention du nom de Sa Majesté Impériale et de la Russie un "jivio" formidable et fébrile secouait la salle des séances. Les marques de sympathie de la part de la France et de l'Angleterre furent aussi relevées séparément et provoquèrent des "jivio" d'approbation de la part des députés. Le discours du trône se termine par la déclaration d'ouverture de la Skoupchtina et par l'expression due vœr que toutes les mesures soient prises pour faciliter la tâche du Gouvernment.

THE Prince Regent yesterday published a manifesto, signed by all the Servian Ministers, on the declaration of war by Austria against Servia. The manifesto ends with the following words: "Defend your homes and Servia with all your might." At the solemn opening of the Skupchtina the Regent read the speech from the Throne, in his own name. At the beginning of his speech he pointed out that the place of their convocation showed the importance of present events. He followed this with a summary of recent events—the Austrian ultimatum, the Servian reply. the efforts of the Servian Government to do their utmost to avoid war that was compatible with the dignity of the State, and, finally, the armed aggression of their most powerful neighbour against Servia, at whose side stood Montenegro. Passing in review the attitude of the Powers towards the dispute, the Prince emphasised in the first place the sentiments which animated Russia, and the gracious communication from His Majesty the Emperor that Russia would in no case abandon Servia. At each mention of His Majesty the Czar and of Russia the hall resounded with loud bursts of wild cheering. The sympathy shown by France and England was also touched upon in turn, and called forth approving plaudits from the members. The speech from the throne ended by declaring the Skupchtina open, and by expressing the hope that every thing possible would be done to lighten the task before the Government.

The German Ambassador, who has just left me, has asked whether Russia would not be satisfied with the promise which Austria might give—that she would not violate the integrity of the Kingdom of Servia—and whether we could not indicate upon what conditions we would agree to suspend our military preparations. I dictated to him the following declaration to be forwrded to Berlin for immediate action: "If Austria, recognising that the Austro-Servian question has become a question of European interest declares herself ready to eliminate from her ultimatum, such points as violate the sovereign rights of Servia, Russia undertakes to stop her military preparations."

Please inform me at once by telegraph what attitude the German Government will adopt in face of this fresh proof of our desire to do the utmost possible for a peaceful settlement of the question, for we cannot allow such discussions to continue solely in order that Germany and Austria may gain time for their military preparations.

I pointed out to Grey that—since you agreed with him to accept whatever proposal he might make in order to preserve peace, provided that Austria did not profit by any ensuing delays to crush Servia—the situation in which you were placed had apparently been modified. At that time our relations with Germany had not been compromised. THE Minister for Foreign Affairs has just told me that our discussions, which were already difficult enough on account of the mobilisation against Austria, were becoming even more so in view of the serious military measures that we were taking against Germany. He said that information on this subject was reaching Berlin from all sides, and this must inevitably provoke similar measures on the part of Germany. To this I replied that, according to sure information in my possession, which was confirmed by all our compatriots arriving from Berlin, Germany also was very actively engaged in taking military measures against Russia. In spite of this, the Minister for Foreign Affairs asserts that the only step taken in Germany has been the recall of officers from leave and of the troops from manœuvres.

THE Imperial German Government have used every effort since the beginning of the crisis to bring about a peaceful settlement in compliance with a wish expressed to him by His Majesty the Emperor of Russia, the German Emperor had undertaken, in concert with Great Britain, the part of mediator between the Cabinets of Vienna and St. Petersburg; but Russia, without waiting for any result, proceeded to a general mobilisation of

A la suite de cette mesure menaçante ne motivée par aucun présage militaire de la part de l'Allemagne, l'Empire allemand s'est trouvé vis-à-vis d'un danger grave et imminent Si le Gouvernement Impérial eût manqué de parer à ce péril, il aurait compromis la sécurité et l existence même de l'Allemagne. Announcement by the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs respecting Recent Events.

UN exposé défigurant les événements les derniers jours ayant paru dans la presse étrangère, le Ministère des Affaires Étrangères croit de son devoir de publier l'aperçu suivant des pourparlers diplomatiques pendant le temps susvisé :

Le 10 (23) juillet, année courante, eMinistre d'Autriche-Hongrie à Belgrade présenta au Ministre Président serbe une note où le Gouvernement serbe était accusé d'avoir favorisé le mouvement pan-serbe qui avait abouti à l'assassinat de l'heritier du trône austro-hongrois. En conséquence l'Autriche-Hongrie demandait au Gouvernement serbe non seulement de condamner sous une forme solennelle la susdite propagande, mais aussi de prendre, sous le contrôle de l'Autriche-Hongrie, une série de mesures tendant à la découverte du complot, à la punition des sujets serbes y ayant participé et à la prévention

A GARBLED version of the events of the last few days having appeared in the foreign press, the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs considers it his duty to publish the following brief account of the diplomatic discussions during the period under review :—

On the 10th (23rd) July, 1914, the Austro-Hungarian Minister at Belgrade presented a note to the Prime Minister of Servia, in which the Servian Government were accused of having fostered the pan-Serb movement, which had led to the assassination of the heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne. Austria-Hungary, therefore, demanded of the Servian Government, not only the condemnation in the most formal manner of the abovementioned propaganda, but also the adoption under Austrian supervision, of a series of measures for the discovery of the plot, for the punishment of any Servian subjects who had taken part in it and for dans l'avenir de tout attentat sur le sol du Royaume. Un délai de quarante-huit heures fut fixé au Gouvernement serbe pour la réponse à la susdite note.

Le Gouvernement Impérial, auquel l'Ambassadeur d'Autriche-Hongrie à Saint-Pétersbourg avait communiqué le texte de la note dix-sept heures après sa remise à Belgrade, ayant pris connaissance des demandes y contenues, dut s'apercevoir que quelques-unes parmi elles étaient inexécutables quant au fond, tandis que d'autres étaient présentées sous une forme incompatible avec la dignité d'un État indépendant. Trouvant inadmissibles la diminution de la dignité de la Serbie contenue dans ces demandes, ainsi que la tendance de l'Autriche-Hongrie d'assurer sa prépondérance dans les Balkans démontrée par ces mêmes exigences, le Gouvernement russe fit observer dans la forme la plus amicale à l'Autriche-Hongrie qu'il serait désirable de soumettre à un nouvel examen les points contenus dans la note austro-hongroise. Le Gouvernement austro-hongrois ne crut possible de consentir à une discussion de la note. L'action modératrice des autres Puissances à Vienne ne fut non plus couronnée de succès.

Malgré que la Serbie eût reprouvé le crime et se fût montrée prête à donner satisfaction à l'Autriche dans une mesure qui dépassa les prévisions non seulement de la Russie, mais aussi des autres Puissances, le Ministre d'Autriche-Hongrie à Belgrade jugea la réponse serbe insuffisante et quitta cette ville.

Reconnaissant le caractère exagéré des demandes présentées par l'Autriche, la Russie avait déclaré encore auparavant qu'il lui serait impossible de rester indifférente, sans se refuser toutefois à employer tous ses efforts pour trouver une issue pacifique qui fût acceptable pour l'Autriche et ménageât son amour-propre de Grande Puissance. En même temps la Russie établit fermement qu'elle admettait une solution pacifique de la question seulement dans une mesure qui n'impliquerait pas la diminution de la dignité de la Serbie comme État indépendant. Malheureusement tous les efforts déployés par le Gouvernement Impérial dans cette direction restèrent sans effet. Le Gouvernement austro-hongrois, après s'être dérobé à toute intervention conciliatrice des Puissances dans son conflit avec la Serbie, procéda à la mobilisation, déclara officiellement la guerre à la Serbie, et le jour suivant Belgrade fut bombardée. Le manifeste qui a accompagné la déclaration de guerre accuse ouvertement la Serbie d'avoir préparé et subjects who had taken part in it and for the prevention of any future attempts at assassination upon Austrian soil. A time limit of forty-eight hours was given to the Servian Government within which to reply to this note.

The Russian Government, to whom the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at St. Petersburg had communicated the text of the note seventeen hours after its presentation at Belgrade, having taken note of the demands contained therein, could not but perceive that some of these demands were impossible of execution as regards their substance, whilst others were presented in a form which was incompatible with the dignity of an independent State. Russia considered that the humiliation of Servia, involved in these demands, and equally the evident intention of Austria-Hungary to secure her own hegemony in the Balkans, which underlay her conditions, were inadmissible. The Russian Government, therefore, pointed out to Austria-Hungary in the most friendly manner that it would be desirable to re-examine the points contained in the Austro-Hungarian note. The Austro-Hungarian Government did not see their way to agree to a discussion of the note. The moderating influence of the four Powers at Vienna was equally unsuccessful.

Despite the fact that Servia had reprobated the crime, and had shown herself ready to give Austria satisfaction to an extent beyond the expectations, not only of Russia, but also of the other Powers—despite these facts, the Austro-Hungarian Minister at Belgrade considered the Servian reply insufficient and left the town.

Recognising the exaggerated nature of the demands made by Austria, Russia had previously declared that she could not remain indifferent, while not desisting from doing her utmost to find a peaceful issue which might prove acceptable to Austria, and spare the latter's self-respect as a Great Power. At the same time Russia let it be clearly understood that she could accept a peaceful settlement of the question only so far as it involved no humiliation of Servia as an independent State. Unhappily all the efforts of the Russian Government to this end were fruitless. The Austro-Hungarian Government, which had shunned any attempt at conciliatory intervention by the Powers in the Austrian dispute with Servia, proceeded to mobilise and declared war officially against Servia, and, the following day Belgrade was bombarded. The manifesto which accompanied the declaration of war openly accuses Servia of having prepared and carried out the crime of Serajevo. Such an accusation of a crime at common law, launched exécuté le crime de Seraïewo. Une pareille accusation d'un crime de droit commun lancée contre tout un peuple et tout un État attira à la Serbie par son inanité évidente les larges sympathies des cercles de la société européenne.

A la suite de cette manière d'agir du Gouvernement austro-hongrois, malgré la déclaration de la Russie qu'elle ne pourrait rester indifférente au sort de la Serbie, le Gouvernement Impérial jugea nécessaire d'ordonner la mobilisation des circonscriptions militaires de Kiew, d'Odessa, de Moscou et de Kazan. Une telle décision s'imposait parce que depuis la date de la remise de la note austro-hongroise au Gouvernement serbe et les premières démarches de la Russie cinq jours s'étaient écoulés, et cependant le Cabinet de Vienne n'avait fait aucun pas pour aller au-devant de nos efforts pacifiques; au contraire, la mobilisation de la moitié de l'armée austro-hongroise avait été décrétée.

Le Gouvernement allemand fut mis au courant des mesures prises par la Russie; il lui fut en même temps expliqué qu'elles n'étaient que la conséquence des armements autrichiens et nullement dirigées contre l'Allemagne. En même temps, le Gouvernement Impériel déclara que la Russie était prête à continuer les pourparlers en vue d'une solution pacifique du conflit, soit par la voie de négotiations directes avec le Cabinet de Vienne, soit, en suivant la proposition de la Grande-Bretagne, par la voie d'une conférence des quatre Grandes Puissances non intéressées directement, voire l'Angleterre, la France, l'Allemagne et l'Italie.

Cependant cette tentative de la Russie échoua également. L'Autriche-Hongrie déclina un échange de vues ultérieur avec nous, et le Cabinet de Vienne se déroba à la participation à la conférence des Puissances projetée.

Néanmoins, la Russie ne discontinua pas ses efforts en faveur de la paix. Répondant à la question de l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne, à quelles conditions nous consentirions encore à suspendre nos armements, le Ministre des Affaires Étrangères déclara que ces conditions seraient la reconnaissance par l'Autriche-Hongrie que la question austro-serbe avait revêtu le caractère d'une question européenne, et la déclaration de cette même Puissance qu'elle consentait à ne pas insister sur des demandes incompatibles avec les droits souverains de la Serbie.

La proposition de la Russie fut jugée par l'Allemagne inacceptable pour l'Autriche-Hongrie. Simultanément on reçut à Saint-Pétersbourg la nouvelle de la proclamation de la mobilisation générale par l'Autriche-Hongrie.

against a whole people and a whole State, aroused, by its evident inanity, widespread sympathy for Servia throughout all classes of European Society.

In consequence of this behaviour of the Austro-Hungarian Government, in spite of Russia's declaration that she could not remain indifferent to the fate of Servia, the Russian Government considered it necessary to order mobilisation in the military districts of Kieff, Odessa, Moscow, and Kazan. This decision was rendered necessary by the fact that since the date when the Austro-Hungarian note was communicated to the Servian Government, and since the first steps taken by Russia, five days had elapsed, and yet the Vienna Cabinet had not taken one step to meet Russia half-way in her efforts towards peace. Indeed, quite the contrary; for the mobilisation of half of the Austro-Hungarian army had been ordered.

The German Government were kept informed of the steps taken by Russia. At the same time it was explained to them that these steps were only the result of the Austrian preparations, and that they were not in any way aimed at Germany. Simultaneously, the Russian Government declared that Russia was ready to continue discussions with a view to a peaceful settlement of the dispute, either in the form of direct negotiations with Vienna or, as suggested by Great Britain, in the form of a conference of the four Great Powers not directly interested, that is to say, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

This attempt on the part of Russia was, however, equally unsuccessful. Austria-Hungary declined a further exchange of views with Russia, and the Vienna Cabinet was unwilling to join the proposed conference of the Powers.

Nevertheless Russia did not abandon her efforts for peace. When questioned by the German Ambassador as to the condition on which we would still agree to suspend our preparations, the Minister for Foreign Affairs declared that these conditions were Austria's recognition that the Austro-Serbian question had assumed a European character, and a declaration by her that she agreed not to insist upon such of her demands as were incompatible with the sovereign rights of Servia.

Germany considered this Russian proposal unacceptable to Austria-Hungary. At that very moment news of the proclamation of general mobilisation by Austria-Hungary reached St. Petersburg.

En même temps les hostilités continuaient sur le territoire serbe et Belgrade fut bombardée derechef.

L'insuccés de nos propositions pacifiques nous obligea d'élargir les mesures de précaution militaires

Le Cabinet de Berlin nous ayant adressé une question à ce sujet, il lui fut répondu que la Russie était forcée de commencer ses armements pour se prémunir contre toutes éventualites.

Tout en prenant cette mesure de précautions la Russie n'en discontinuait pas moins de rechercher de toutes ses forces une issue de cette situation et déclara être prête à accepter tout moyen de solution du conflit qui comporterait l' observation des conditions posées par nous.

Malgré cette communication conciliante, le Gouvernement allemand, le 18 (31) juillet, adressa au Gouvernement russe la demande d'avoir à suspendre ses mesures militaires à midi du 19 juillet (1er août), en menaçant, dans le cas contraire, de procéder à une mobilisation générale.

Le lendemain, 19 juillet (1er août), l'Ambassadeur d'Allemagne transmit au Ministre des Affaires Etrangères au nom de son Gouvernement, la déclaration de guerre.

All this time hostilities were continuing on Servian territory. and Belgrade was bombarded afresh.

The failure of our proposals for peace compelled us to extend the scope of our precautionary mil tary measures.

The Berlin Cabinet questioned us on this, and we replied that Russia was compelled to begin preparations so as to be ready for every emergency.

But while taking this precautionary step, Russia did not on that account abandon her strenuous efforts to find some solution of the situation, and she announced that she was ready to accept any proposed settlement of the problem that might be put forward, provided it complied with the conditions laid down by her.

In spite of this conciliatory communication, the German Government on the 18th (31st) July demanded of the Russian Government that they should suspend their military measures by midday on the 19th July (1st August), and threatened, should they fail to comply, to proceed to general mobilisation.

On the following day, the 19th July (1st August), the German Ambassador, on behalf of his Government, forwarded a declaration of war to the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

IL est absolument clair que l'Allemagne s'efforce dès à présent de rejeter sur nous la responsabilité de la rupture. Notre mobilisation a été provoquée par l'énorme responsibilité que nous aurions assumée, si nous n'avions pas pris toutes les mesures de précaution à un moment où l'Autriche, se bornant à des pourparlers d'un caractére dilatoire. bombardait Belgrade et procédait à une mobilisation générale.

Sa Majesté l'Empereur s'était engagé vis-à-vis de l'Empereur d'Allemagne par sa parole à n'entreprendre aucun acte agressif tant que dureraient les pourparles avec l'Autriche. Après une telle garantie et après toutes les preuves de l'amour de la Russie pour la paix, l' Allemagne ne pouvait ni avait le droit de douter de notre déclaration que nous

(Telegram.)

IT is quite evident that Germany is now doing her utmost to foist upon us the responsibility for the repture. We were forced to mobilise by the immense responsibility which would have fallen upon our shoulders if we had not taken all possible precautionary measures at a time when Austria, while confining herself to discussions of a dilatory nature was bombarding Belgrade and was undertaking general mobilisation.

The Emperor of Russia had promised the German Emperor that he would take no aggressive action as long as the discussions with Austria continued. With such a guarantee, and after so many proofs of Russia's desire for peace, Germany neither could, nor had the right to, doubt our declaration that we would joyfully accept any peaceful settlement accepterions avec joie toute issue pacifique compatible avec la dignite et l'indépendance de la Serbie Une autre issue, tout en étant complètement incompatible avec notre propre dignité, aurait certainement ébranlé l'equilibre européen, en assurant l'hégémonie de l'Allemagne. Ce caractère européen, voire mondial, du conflit est infiniment plus important que le prétexte qui l'a creé. Par sa dècision de nous déclarer la guerre à un moment où se poursuivaient les négociations entre les Puissances, l'Allemagne a assumé une lourde responsabilité.

compatible with the dignity and independence of Servia. Any other solution, besides being entirely incompatible with our own dignity, would assuredly have upset the European balance of power by securing the hegemony of German. The European—nay, the world-wide—character of this dispute is infinitely more important than the pretext from which it springs. By her decision to declare war upon us, at a moment when negotiations were in progress between the Powers, Germany has assumed a heavy responsibility.

Note presented by the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at St. Petersburg to the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs on July 24 (August 6) 1914, at 6 P.M.

D'ORDRE de son Gouvernement, le soussigné Ambassadeur d'Autriche-Hongrie a l'honneur de notifier à son Excellence M. le Ministre des Affaires Etrangéres de Russie ce qui suit:

"Vu l'attitude menaçante prise par la Russie dans le conflit entre la Monarchie austro-hongroise et la Serbie et en présence du fait qu'en suite de ce conflit la Russie d'après une communication du Cabinet de Berlin a cru devoir ouvrir les hostilités contre l'Allemagne et que celle-ci se trouve par conséquent en état de guerre avec ladite Puissance, l'Autriche-Hongrie se considère également en état de guerre avec la Russie à partir du présent moment."

On the instructions of his Government the undersigned, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, has the honour to inform his Excellency the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs as follows:—

"In view of the threatening attitude adopted by Russia in the conflict between the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy and Servia; and of the fact that, according to a communication from the Berlin Cabinet Russia has seen fit, as a result of that conflict, to open hostilities against Germany; and whereas Germany is consequently at war with Russia; Austria-Hungary therefore considers herself also at war with Russia from the present moment."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

POLITICAL.

Delhi, the 18th December 1914.

INSTRUCTIONS WITH REGARD TO CERTIFICATES OF IDENTITY.

RESOLUTION.

IN supersession of the orders contained in the Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 2831-2842, dated the 8th December 1899, the Governor General in Council is pleased to issue the following instructions with regard to certificates of identity.

2. Every native of India who contemplates proceeding out of India to foreign countries is strongly urged before leaving to furnish himself with an authoritative certificate of identity, in the form apended to this Resolution, signed by the head of the district (in a Presidency Town, the Commissioner of Police) in the case of residents of British India, and by the Political Officer in that of residents of Native States. In the case of a student the certificate should be signed by the head of his last school or college and countersigned by the District Officer (in a Presidency Town, the Commissioner of Police) or Political Officer, as the case may be.

Appeals for assistance by destitute Indians who desire repatriation and by students who, owing to embarrassed circumstances, are unable to complete their course of education cannot be dealt with satisfactorily unless the parties are in a position to produce evidence of identity. The possession of a certificate of identity will be specially useful to young men of good family, as it may enable the Secretary of State to obtain for them social and other attentions,

Those who are desirous, however, of travelling in countries where a passport will be necessary are advised to furnish themselves with such a document also before leaving India, in lieu of, or in addition to, a certificate of identity. It should be remembered that no person is entitled to a passport, as of right, on the ground that he is a British subject, and the production before authorities outside India of a certificate of identity, unless supplemented by documentary evidence of respectability is not sufficient to ensure that a passport will be granted.

3. The District or Political Officer or head of the school or college should not refuse an applicant a certificate of identity even if his means do not appear to be sufficient to enable him to effect his object, but should endeavour to dissuade him from undertaking the journey, pointing out the difficulties in which the applicant would be placed were he to find himself in a foreign country without sufficient means.

4. The District or Political Officer will endorse on the certificate of identity his opinion whether the person is a British subject "by birth" or "by naturalization" (or a subject of a Native State) or not, and will, at the same time, send a copy of the certificate to the Under-Secretary of State for India direct.

5. Local Governments and Administrations are requested to take steps to secure that all reasonable facilities are given for obtaining certificates of identity, and that wide publicity is given to these orders.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy be sent to the Foreign and Political Department for information and communication to Political Officers.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

NOTE.—Holders of certificates of identity intending to apply subsequently in England or elsewhere for a passport to visit a foreign country are warned that no person is entitled to a passport as of right on the sole ground that he is a British subject. The production of a certificate of identity, therefore, will not ordinarily be sufficient to secure the grant of a passport unless it is supplemented by documentary evidence of respectability, endorsed by a Local Government or other authority competent to issue passports in India, certifying that the holder is a fit and proper person to receive a passport.

THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1914.

A

to amend the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911. Ben. Act V of 1911.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911;

And whereas the sanction of the Governor General has been obtained, under section 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, to section 8 of this Act which affects an *Act passed by the Governor General of India in Council; 55 & 56 Vict. c. 14.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title

1. This Act may be called the Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Act, 1914.

Amendment of section 2.

2. In section 2 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911 (hereinafter called the said Act), Ben. Act V of 1911.—

(a) at the end of clause (f), the words and figures "but does not include a projected public street referred to in section 63" shall be added; and

(b) in clause (n), the expression "building line" and the figure and brackets "(3)" shall be repealed.

New section substituted for section 63.

3. For section 63 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"63. (1) The Board may from time to time in regard to any area—

Projected public streets

(a) within the Calcutta Municipality, or

(b) in the neighbourhood of the said Municipality, make plans of proposed public streets showing the direction of such streets, the street alignment on each side of them, their intended width and such other details as may appear desirable.

(2) When a plan of a proposed public street has been made under sub-section (1), the Board shall prepare a notice stating— [Cf. Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 43.]

(a) the fact that such plan has been made,

(b) particulars of the land through which the proposed public street will pass, and

(c) the place at which the said plan and particulars may be seen at reasonable hours;

and the Board shall thereupon—

(i) cause the said notice to be published weekly for two consecutive weeks in the Calcutta Gazette and in local newspapers,

* i.e., the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894, as modified by the Schedule to the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911 (Ben. Act V of 1911).

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

(Clause 3.)

(iii) cause copies of the said notice and plan to be delivered to any applicant on payment of such fee as may be prescribed by rule made under section 138.

(3) On or after a date to be appointed by the Board in this behalf, the Board shall consider— [Cf. Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 47 (1).]

(a) all objections in writing received from any person affected by the proposed public street contemplated by such plan, and

(b) any representation in regard to such street made to the Board by the Corporation or the aforesaid local authority; and the Board may thereupon either withdraw the plan or apply to the Local Government for sanction thereto with such modifications (if any) as the Board may consider necessary.

(4) When a plan of a proposed public street has been submitted to the Local Government under sub-section (3), the Board shall cause notice of the fact to be published for two consecutive weeks in the Calcutta Gazette and in local newspapers. [Cf. Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 47 (3).]

(5) The Local Government may sanction, either with or without modification, or may refuse to sanction, any plan of a proposed public street submitted to it under sub-section (3). [Cf. Ben Act V of 1911, s. 48.]

(6) Whenever the Local Government sanctions a plan of a proposed public street, it shall announce the fact by notification, and the Board may thereupon proceed to carry the plan into execution. [Cf. Ben Act V of 1911, s. 49 (1).]

(7) The publication of a notification under sub-section (6) in respect of any plan made under sub-section (1) shall be conclusive evidence that the plan has been duly made and sanctioned; and the street to which such notification refers shall be deemed to be a projected public street. [Cf. Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 49 (2).]

(8) If any person desires to erect, re-erect, add to or alter any building or wall falling within the street alignment of a projected public street shown in any plan sanctioned by the Local Government under this section, he shall submit an application in writing to the Chairman for permission so to do:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall relieve any person from the liability to obtain such sanction as it may be necessary to obtain under any law for the time being in force from any local authority.

(9) If the Chairman does not, within thirty days from the receipt of the said application, determine whether such permission should be given or not, such permission shall be deemed to have been given; and the applicant may proceed to erect, re-erect, add to or alter the said building or wall, as the case may be, but not so as to contravene the provisions of any law for the time being in force relating to such erection, re-erection, addition or alteration. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1899, s. 376 (2).]

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

(Clauses 4-8).

(10) If the Chairman refuses permission to any person to erect, re-erect, add to or alter any building or wall falling within the street alignment of a projected public street, the owner of the land on which it was sought to erect, re-erect, add to or alter such building or wall may, within one year from the date of such refusal, call upon the Board to acquire so much of his land as falls within such street alignment, and the Board shall thereupon forthwith take steps to acquire such land."

Amendment of section 64.

4. In clause (c) of section 64 of the said Act—

(a) the words and figures "or section 63" shall be repealed; and (b) after the figures "61" the word "or" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 138.

5. At the end of clause (e) of section 138 of the said Act, the words and figures "or clause (iii) of sub-section (2) of section 63" shall be added.

Amendment of section 171.

6. In section 171 of the said Act, for the words "so as to make the same fall within the street alignment or building line shown in any plan finally adopted by the Board", the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"falling within the street alignment of a projected public street shown in any plan sanctioned by the Local Government."

Repeal of section 172.

7. Section 172 of the said Act is hereby repealed.

Amendment of Article 9 of the Schedule.

8. After clause (b) in Article 9 of the Schedule to the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"(bb) if the market-value has been increased or decreased owing to the land falling within or near to the alignment of a projected public street, such increase or decrease shall be disregarded;

(bbb) if any person has erected, re-erected, added to or altered any building or wall within the alignment of a projected public street without the permission of the Board, then any increase in the market-value resulting from such erection, re-erection, addition or alteration shall be disregarded;

(bbbb) where the land forms part of any premises abutting on an existing public street and the Board undertake forthwith to include the said land in such street, the market-value of the land shall, notwithstanding anything contained in clause sixthly of section 24, be deemed to be the difference between the market-value of the whole of such premises at the date of the publication of the declaration relating thereto under section 6 and such amount as may reasonably be estimated to represent the market-value of the remainder of the premises upon the inclusion in the street of the land acquired."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 63 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911 (Ben. Act V of 1911), confers on the Board of Trustees constituted under that Act the power to prepare schemes and plans of proposed public streets in regard to any area in the neighbourhood of the Calcutta Municipality. When any such plan has been finally adopted by the Board, the erection, re-erection, addition to, or alteration of, buildings or walls by any person within the street alignment shown thereon requires the previous permission of the Board, who are thus enabled to prevent the erection of buildings and walls which would, in the course of the execution of such schemes, have to be demolished, to the detriment of the Trust and the landowners. Within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality similar power is vested by the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act in the General Committee of the Corporation of Calcutta. It is now deemed expedient, first, that the power at present exercised by the Board of Trustees under the Calcutta Improvement Act only in the neighbourhood of Calcutta should be exerciseable by them within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality also—without, however, interfering in any way with the power now exercised by the General Committee under the Calcutta Municipal Act; secondly, that these schemes of proposed public streets should receive the sanction of the Local Government; and, thirdly, that the existing procedure antecedent to the grant of such sanction should be substantially elaborated.

Under the existing law the owner of the land is entitled to reasonable compensation for such damage only as he may sustain by reason of the Board's refusing him permission to build or rebuild within the alignment of a proposed public street. It is, however, considered desirable that, instead of being merely entitled to such compensation, the owner of land falling within such street alignment should have the right to demand that the Board should take steps to acquire such land forthwith and, that, on such acquisition, h should be paid the full value of the land, together with the additional compensation of 15 per cent. which is not ordinarily payable within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality in connection with acquisitions for the Calcutta Improvement Trust.

Opportunity has further been taken to incorporate in the amending Bill a new equitable principle in connection with the acquisition of land for the purpose of widening existing streets. In many such cases, the land to be acquired is only a portion of premises abutting on a public street, and compensation has to be paid for it at a higher rate by reason of its forming the frontage of such premises. As soon, however, as this portion is acquired and added to the street, another road frontage of equal, if not higher, value is given to the unacquired portion of the premises, the value of which rises on this account. In accordance with the general principle underlying the Calcutta Improvement Act, such increase in value should accrue to the public; but it cannot, as the law now stands, be taken into consideration in determining the amount of compensation to be awarded. This impediment it is now sought to remove.

To give effect to the above intentions, it is proposed by this Bill to amend section 63 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, and the Schedule appended thereto, in the manner therein appearing.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

1. Clause 2.—The first amendment in this clause will serve to differentiate a "projected public street" from a "street scheme" and to insure the application of section 23 (2) of the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894) in the case of land acquired by the Board under sub-section (10) of the proposed new section 63. The second amendment is purely consequential.

2. Clause 3.—This clause has been substituted for the existing section 63 of the Act, and gives effect to the main object of the Bill The procedure to be followed in connection with the publication, consideration and sanction of plans of projected public streets has, so far as is consistent with the object in view, been assimilated to that prescribed by the Act in the case of improvement schemes, while in sub-clauses (8) and (9) care has been taken to insure that due regard is had to the building and other regulations of local authorities. Sub-sections (6) and (7) of the existing section 63 are not reproduced in the Bill as they have been found to be unnecessary. They are applicable to cases where building lines are prescribed, but in the cases dealt with by the Trust interference is only necessary when rebuilding is contemplated, and this case is fully provided for in the proposed sub-clauses (8) and (10). No reference to building lines is required in the section as the Trust has no power to enforce the observance of a building line, except in its capacity as landlord.

3. Clause 4.—This amendment is consequential upon the proposed excision of the existing sub-section (7) of section 63 from the Act.

4. Clauses 5, 6 and 7.—These amendments are purely consequential upon—

(i) the suggested amendment of section 63, and

(ii) the proposed omission of sub-section (6) from that section.

5. Clause 8.—The intention of the further modifications in the Land Acquisition Act (1 of 1894) proposed in the three new provisions contained in this clause is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons above.

STARRED QUESTIONS.

By the Hon'ble MAULVI MAZHARUL ANWAR CHAUDHURI :—

Floods in the Burdwan, Hooghly, Howrah and Midnapore districts.

*1. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state :—

(i) whether the investigations suggested by Mr. C. Addams-Williams, Officiating Superintending Engineer, South-Western Circle, in his note on the remedial measures to lessen the damages by floods in the Burdwan, Hooghly, Howrah and Midnapore districts, have been ordered to be made as recommended by the said Superintending Engineer, and

(ii) whether a special officer has been deputed to select the sites of the reservoirs, as recommended in paragraph 56 of the said note?

(b) If nothing has yet been done, will the Government be pleased to state whether it is intended to make the investigations, and to depute the special officer, early this cold weather or, if not, when?

The Hon'ble MR. GREEN replied :—

(a) (i) "The Superintending Engineer, Mr. Addams-Williams, has been requested to submit detailed estimates for the various proposals made in the note referred to. He has also reported that in his opinion it is necessary to remove certain embankments and to declare certain areas under section 6 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Ben. Act II of 1882), and the opinion of the Divisional Commissioner has been asked for on these proposals.

(ii) Yes. Mr. H. Terrell, Assistant Engineer, has been deputed as a special officer to report on the question of sites at which impounding reservoirs may be constructed with a view to controlling the floods in the Damodar.

(b) No reply is required."

The Mohsin Fund and the Educational Institutions in Hooghly.

*2. (a) With reference to my question No. 28, asked in this Council on the 1st of December, 1913, and the reply given thereto by the Hon'ble Mr. Sanman, will the Government be pleased to state whether the grants from the Mohsin Fund to the Hooghly College, Collegiate School and the Hooghly Branch School, for the payment of half the fees of Muhammadan students, have this year been diminished, or whether they have been increased, and whether the Muhammadan students of the Hooghly College are this year also being charged full fees from the month of September?

(b) Are the Government considering the claims of the College and Schools in Hooghly, the native town of the late Haji Muhammad Mohsin, and particularly of the Hooghly College and Collegiate School, for increased grants from the Mohsin Fund?

By the Hon'ble MAULVI MAZHARUL ANWAR CHAUDHURI :—concld.

(c) Are the Government considering the advisability of withdrawing the grant from the Mohsin Fund, made to the Province of Bihar and Orissa, and of applying the money thus set free for the benefit of the educational institutions at Hooghly, and, after them, for the benefit of schools and colleges in other parts of Bengal?

The Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN replied :—

(a) "The grants from the Mohsin Fund for short-fee payments for Muhammadan students in the Hooghly College, Collegiate School and amalgamated Branch and Model School during the year 1914-15 amount to Rs. 300, Rs. 500, and Rs. 200, respectively, as against Rs. 325, Rs. 600, and Rs. 250 during the year 1913-14. The budget allotment for short-fee payments during the year 1913-14 was Rs. 13,385; but a sum of Rs. 21,700 was actually distributed under this head in the anticipation that it would be found possible to meet the excess by reappropriation within the General Mohsin Fund Budget. This anticipation was not realised and it therefore became necessary in 1914-15 to keep the distribution of the short-fee payments within the limits of the budget provision of Rs. 14,138. The reply which was given to the Hon'ble Member's Question No. 28 (d) at the Council Meeting of the 1st December, 1913, was kept in mind when allotting the grants this year, but as the grants to all other schools and colleges were being reduced, it was impracticable to maintain unchanged the grants to the Hooghly institutions. The reduction in the case of the Hooghly College was, however, proportionately less than those made in the case of other institutions.

Muhammadan students of the Hooghly College have been paying the full college fees from the month of September, 1914.

(b) The claims of the college and schools at Hooghly to increased grants were carefully considered, but in view of shortness of funds it was found impossible to meet them.

(c) The answer is in the negative. The exact position of affairs was explained to the Hon'ble Member in reply to his Question No. 28 (e) at the Council Meeting of the 1st December, 1913."

By the Hon'ble MAHARAJA RANAJIT SINHA OF NASHIPUR :—

Dredging the entrance of the Bhagirathi river.

* 3. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the work of dredging the entrance of the Bhagirathi river has commenced?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state how much of the work has been estimated to be carried out this year?

The Hon'ble MR. GREEN replied :—

(a) "Dredging the entrance of the Bhagirathi commence on the 9th October, 1914.

(b) It is hoped that the shoals will be removed in the first three miles of the river before the dry weather renders further operations impracticable."

By the Hon'ble BABU UPENDRA LAL RAY :—

Separate cooking arrangements for Hindus and Muhammadans in jails.

* 4. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there are separate cooking arrangements in separate houses for Hindus and Muhammadans in all or any of the jails of this Presidency?

(b) If not, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of making such arrangements?

Questions and Answers.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied :—

(a) "In some jails wholly separate cooking arrangements are provided; in others the separation is not so complete.

(b) Government have recognised the desirability of providing separate kitchens, and provision is being made as kitchens are reconstructed and new kitchens built."

By the Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR :—

Grant of a pension to the widow of the late Babu Rukmini Kanta Mazumdar.

*5. (a) Have the Government received an application from the widow of the late Babu Rukmini Kanta Mazumdar for the grant of a pension to her and her son?

(b) Is it the fact that her husband was killed by a stray bullet fired during the recent Budge Budge incident?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what action (if any) they have taken on the said memorial?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied :—

(a) & (b) "The answer is in the affirmative.

(c) Immediately after the riot at Budge Budge, Government initiated inquiries with a view to make suitable provision for the families of those who met their death on that occasion. Government will give public intimation of the arrangements made as soon as possible."

By the Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR :—

The dyeing industry.

*6. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the action taken by the Imperial Government in England in connection with the dyeing industry?

(b) Is it true that His Majesty's Government have indicated their willingness to subscribe a portion of the share capital and guarantee the interest of a large debenture issue?

(c) Are the Government considering any action for the encouragement of Indian industries on lines similar to that proposed in England?

The Hon'ble MR. STEPHENSON replied :—

(a) & (b) "Government have no official information on the subject.

(c) Mr. Swan has been placed on special duty in this province to report regarding the encouragement that can be given to Indian industries. His report will be considered when it is received, but the general lines of policy to be adopted will be a matter of Imperial rather than Provincial consideration."

By the Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR :—

Amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 (Ben. Act III of 1899).

*7. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is fact that the Hon'ble Mr. Payne was appointed as a Special Officer to examine and report upon proposals connected with the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 (Ben. Act III of 1899)?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether that officer has submitted his report or proposals for the amendment of the said Act?

(c) If the report or the recommendations have been submitted, will the Government be pleased to lay them on the table?

By the Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR:—concld.

(d) Have the Government recorded any views or come to any decision for submission of proposals to the Government of India with regard to the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 (Ben. Act III of 1899)?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state whether their proposals involve the abolition of the General Committee and the transfer, in a large measure, of its powers to the head of the executive?

(f) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the proposals also involve a recommendation for a larger number of Commissioners with one of them as President of the Corporation?

(g) If so, are these proposals in the nature of an expansion of the powers and prerogatives of the Corporation?

The Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN replied :—

(a) "The Hon'ble Mr. Payne was placed on special duty in connection with the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899.

(b) Mr. Payne made certain suggestions to Government in this connection, but submitted no formal report.

(c) After considering Mr. Payne's suggestions Government issued a Resolution, No. 111½ T.—M., dated the 21st July, 1913, informing the public of the most important changes contemplated in the Act and inviting opinions upon them. Under these circumstances Government do not consider it necessary to lay on the table the recommendations made by Mr. Payne.

(d), (e), (f) & (g) Government are not prepared to give any further information at this stage regarding the proposal to amend the Calcutta Municipal Act."

By the Hon'ble MAHARAJA RANAJIT SINHA OF NASHIPUR :—

Malaria in the districts of Burdwan, Jessore Murshidabad and Nadia.

II.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement, covering the last three years, showing the number of deaths from malarial fever which have occurred in the districts of Murshidabad, Nadia, Jessore and Burdwan, respectively, during the period July to October?

(b) Is it a fact that the number of cases of, and deaths from, malarial fever in the Presidency of Bengal has been generally greater this year than in previous years, and that this is specially the case in regard to the districts of Murshidabad, Nadia, Jessore, Bankura and Burdwan?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are making any inquiries as to the cause of this increase and whether they are taking any steps to remedy the evil?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN was laid on the table :—

"(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to Appendix I, form No. IX, of the Annual Report on Sanitation in Bengal. No separate statistics are kept for malarial fever which is included under the general head 'Fever'.

(b) The number of deaths from fever in the Presidency of Bengal during the first nine months of 1914 showed an increase of 5 per cent. over the number of such deaths in the corresponding period of 1913. The deaths in Jessore show a decrease, while the percentage of increase in the cases of Burdwan, Bankura, Nadia and Murshidabad was 7, 9, 8, and 9, respectively. Seven districts returned higher percentages, ranging from 9 to 63.

(c) No special inquiry into the reason for the increase has been made. Sub-Assistant Surgeons have been deputed as in previous years, but over a wider area."

By the Hon'ble MAHARAJA RANAJIT SINHA OF NASHIPUR :—

Cholera in the Murshidabad Municipality.

III.—(a) Is it a fact that cholera broke out in the Murshidabad Municipality in a virulent form during the summer of 1913 and again in October in that year?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are taking any steps to inquire into the cause of these frequent outbreaks with a view to their diminution?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN was laid on the table :—

(a) "In the Murshidabad Municipality 27 deaths from cholera were registered during 1913. Of these, 1 occurred in March, 4 in August, 21 in September and 1 in October.

(b) The outbreak of cholera in September was, in the opinion of the Sanitary Commissioner, a result of the heavy floods. Apart from this there has been very little cholera in the town of Murshidabad and Government do not consider it necessary to take any special steps in the matter."

By the Hon'ble MAHARAJA RANAJIT SINHA OF NASHIPUR :—

Water-work scheme for the Krishnagar Municipality.

IV.—Will the Government be pleased to state whether the water-works scheme for the Krishnagar Municipality has been sanctioned, and, if so, when the work is likely to be taken in hand?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN was laid on the table :—

Village distribution of vernacular leaflets containing reliable war news.

V.—Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of distributing, in every village and town of the Presidency, vernacular leaflets containing reliable news from the various seats of war?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"Government, after considering the comparative advantages and disadvantages of establishing a Press Bureau as far as this province is concerned, came to a conclusion against the proposal."

By the Hon'ble MAHARAJA RANAJIT SINHA OF NASHIPUR :—

Payment of Government revenue for the January kist.

VI.—(a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the complaint that landlords are finding it very difficult, owing to the heavy fall in the price of jute, to meet the demands of Government revenue in full for the January kist?

(b) Are the Government proposing to make some concession in this respect?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

(a) "Government have not observed any complaints that the fall in the price of jute will make it difficult for Zamindars to pay the land revenue due at the January kist.

(b) Under the rules, sanctioned by the Secretary of State, applications for the suspension or remission of land revenue may be made to the Collector of the district in any permanently-settled area in which test works have been opened under the rules of the Bengal Famine Code. Government do not propose to take any action except in accordance with the rules."

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH BANERJI :—

Progress of work in connection with indigenous industries.

VII.—Will the Government be pleased to make a statement with regard to the progress of the work entrusted to Mr. Swan in connection with indigenous industries?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. STEPHENSON was laid on the table :—

"Mr. Swan is inquiring into the present position of such industries as the industrial surveys of 1890 and 1908 showed to be capable of expansion, and is considering on what line advance is possible; he has consulted representatives of the classes which might be expected to provide capital for indigenous industries and is trying to get into touch with those who might make good use of capital. Mr. Swan expects to submit a report by the end of December."

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH BANERJI :—

Encouragement of indigenous industries.

VIII.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are taking, or have taken, any action, for the encouragement of—

(i) dyeing and tanning in this Presidency, and

(ii) the manufacture of the following indigenous industries, namely :—

(1) glass,
(2) matches,
(3) silk and cotton goods,
(4) sugar,
(5) paper?

(b) If the Government have taken any action, will they be pleased to make a statement with regard to it?

Questions and Answers.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. STEPHENSON was laid on the table :—

"Government have taken no action to encourage the manufacture of either glass, matches, cotton goods or paper, but these industries are within the scope of Mr. Swan's inquiry.

Government have taken the following action to encourage dyeing and tanning in this Presidency. At Sibpur Civil Engineering College there is a Department of Tinctorial Chemistry in charge of Mr. R. N. Sen who was recruited in England three years ago for the post. There is a well-equipped laboratory, a dye-house and dye-works. There is room for 12 higher class students, and artisans have been recently admitted. But the classes are not full and the facilities for training appear to be ample to meet any possible demand arising from the future development of these industries.

In the case of silk and sugar, the action taken by Government has hitherto been directed rather to the agricultural aspect of the problem and the improvement of the raw material than to the encouragement of manufacture. A Committee which sat in 1906 found definitely that the main cause of the decline of the silk industry was the presence of pebrine in the cocoons, and the efforts of the Agricultural Department have since been devoted largely to the elimination of the disease. The operations are in charge of the Bengal Silk Committee on which the leading silk firms in the province are represented. The plan at first followed was to rear cocoons obtained from village rearers at small nurseries, but owing to the difficulty of eliminating diseased cocoons, the results were not satisfactory, and the present policy, which has been adopted on the advice of the Silk Committee, is to establish gradually throughout the silk districts a number of large central nurseries from which pure cocoons will be supplied under Government supervision to the village rearers. At the same time, the problem of improving the breed of cocoons by careful selection and the introduction of new types has not been overlooked. A French sericultural expert who was employed by the Department in 1912-13 made a number of experiments both with indigenous and with imported types, but had to leave India owing to ill health before he was able to establish any permanent results. His successor, who arrived in India last January, has carried on and extended his work, but has himself been called away for service with the French Army. Arrangements have, however, been made to carry on his work during his absence, and it is hoped that it will be possible during the coming year to arrive at some conclusion regarding the main difficulty of preserving imported and cross-bred varieties from deterioration owing to their inability to stand the climate of Bengal during the rains.

In the case of sugarcane, a survey of local and imported varieties is being carried out. The demand for good cane cuttings greatly exceeds the supply, and the area on the Government farms under sugarcane of the best varieties is being extended. The Director of Agriculture is also endeavouring to arrange for the production of cuttings on private seed farms. Demonstrations are being given of the use of the iron roller cane-crushing mill, which is reported to have supplanted the old wooden roller mill in many parts of the country. Attention has also been given to the important problem of producing sugar direct from the juice, and the Agricultural Chemist is importing apparatus from America which will be tried both for date palm and for cane juice. The improvement and extension of date palm sugar production are also being investigated, and the recent rise in the price of sugar appears already to have given a stimulus to this industry."

By the Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR :—

IX.—Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the regulations and orders in force under which the Calcutta Police regulate—

(i) the traffic, and

(ii) the processions, religious and social, which take place in the city of Calcutta and its suburbs ?

Regulation of traffic, etc., by the police in the city of Calcutta and its suburbs.

Questions and Answers.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"The regulations and orders in question will be found in the volume of 'Police Rules for the Regulation of traffic in Calcutta,' a copy of which is laid on the table. The volume is sold to the public at the price of eight annas per copy."

By the Hon'ble BABU UPENDRA LAL RAY :—

Amounts received as revenue, tax and fees and amounts expended on public works, education and sanitation.

X.—Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement showing, division by division,—

(i) the amounts received on account of Government revenue, income-tax, stamp and court-fees,

(ii) the amounts spent on public works, communication (land and river), education and sanitation, during the last five years?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. STEPHENSON was laid on the table :—

(i) "Information desired by the Hon'ble Member in clause (i) of his question is to be found—in the Land Revenue Reports, Appendix I;

" " Excise Report, Appendix A;
" " Income-tax Reports, Appendix IV; and
" " Stamps Reports, Statements II and III.

(ii) The amounts spent on Public Works, Communications, Education and Sanitation are not compiled divisionally except as regards the District Board expenditure, and the figures are not therefore available."

By the Hon'ble CHAUDHURI MUHAMMAD ISMAIL KHAN :—

Insanitary condition of the Civil Court house at Pirojpur

XI.—(a) Have the Government received a memorial from the public of Pirojpur, in the district of Bakarganj, complaining of the insanitary condition and the inconvenient situation of the Civil Court house at Pirojpur?

(b) If so, what action, if any, have Government taken on the memorial?

(c) Is it a fact that the Court-house is a low-roofed corrugated-iron shed with wooden posts and mat-walls?

(d) Are the Government considering the desirability of replacing the existing corrugated-iron shed by a pucca building?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

(a) "The answer is in the affirmative.

(c) The Court House is built on a pukka plinth with mat walls and a corrugated-iron roof with planked ceiling in the rooms. In March 1913 certain improvements including provision of a mat ceiling to the verandahs were made in the building at a cost of Rs. 2,450.

(b) and (d) The local engineers inspected the building in June last and instructions were issued to submit a plan and estimate of the alterations necessary to improve the building."

By the Hon'ble CHAUDHURI MUHAMMAD ISMAIL KHAN :—

Lists of voters for election of members to Local Boards of Bakarganj.

XII.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to get corrected lists of voters compiled for the election of members to the Local Boards of the district of Bakarganj?

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of giving the public time to scan these lists by printing and publishing them at once?

Questions and Answers.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN was laid on the table :—

(a) "In connection with a Local Board election in the Bakarganj district in 1912 test inquiries were made in certain villages to ascertain whether the voters' list was correct. The result of these inquiries showed that the list was deficient, and that if all persons qualified to vote according to the present franchise were registered, the election rules would require modification to allow of all their votes being recorded within a reasonable time. The matter was discussed at the Commissioners' Conference and further test inquiries in other districts were then made. The result of these inquiries has lately been received; it is substantially the same as that in Bakarganj. The whole question is now under the consideration of Government, and pending final orders upon it, no further steps have been taken to correct the lists of electors in the Bakarganj district.

(b) Rule 23 of the Local Board election rules provides for the publication of the electoral roll for each thana two months before the date of an election, and rules 24 to 26 prescribe a procedure for the scrutiny of claims to vote and the consideration of any objections lodged against such claims. Government are not considering the desirability of giving further publicity to the electoral rolls."

By the Hon'ble CHAUDHURI MUHAMMAD ISMAIL KHAN :—

XIII.—In connection with the election of members to Local Boards, will the Government be pleased to state whether the centres of election and the number of seats to be filled are increased as new thanas are created out of the old thanas?

Election of members to Local Boards of Bakarganj.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. SAMMAN was laid on the table :—

"The attention of the Hon'ble Member is invited to the distinction between a thana or revenue unit and a police-station or investigating centre. The unit of area for Local Board elections is the thana which is unaffected by the creation of additional police-stations within it.

No increase has accordingly been made in the number of seats or centres of election in consequence of the creation of new police-stations. The sufficiency of the existing number of polling stations for each election is, however, now being examined by Government in connection with the general question of revising the election rules."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZ-UL-HAQ :—

XIV.—Will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) the total number of candidates in each district for the Provincial Executive Service this year;

(ii) the number of qualified Muhammadan candidates in each district;

(iii) the number of Muhammadans nominated in each district by the respective District Officers?

Candidates for the Provincial Executive Service.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"The information for which the Hon'ble Member asks is privileged."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZ-UL-HAQ :—

XV.—(a) Is it a fact that no Muhammadan officer has been appointed to hold charge of the Baraset subdivision, since the creation of the subdivision?

(b) Are the Government considering the advisability of placing a Muhammadan officer in charge there?

Muhammadan officer to hold charge of Baraset subdivision.

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

(a) "The answer is in the affirmative.

Questions and Answers; The President's Address.

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZ-UL-HAQ :—

Appointment of Muhammadans to ministerial appointments.

XVI.—Will the Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, are being taken by the various heads of departments to ensure the observance of the recent Government circular about the appointment of Muhammadans to ministerial appointments?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"The circular in question was issued in the month of April last, and the submission of an annual statement was prescribed in which the action taken by officers to carry out the orders contained in the circular will be noted. The first of these annual statements will be due in the month of July next and Government do not consider it necessary to make inquiries on the subject in anticipation of the receipt of those statements."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZ-UL-HAQ :—

Sub-Inspectors of Police promoted to Inspectorship.

XVII.—Will the Government be pleased to state how many Sub-Inspectors of Police were promoted this year to be Inspectors, and how many of these were Muhammadans?

The following reply by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"Fifty Sub-Inspectors have been promoted this year to the rank of Inspectors to fill permanent as well as temporary vacancies (excluding leave and other acting vacancies), and of these seven are Muhammadans. Inspectors are usually selected from the first three grades of Sub-Inspectors: the number of Hindu and Muhammadan officers in these three grades is 548 and 80, respectively."

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT said :—

IN accordance with custom I must say a few words in opening this new session. The programme of business which Government are putting before you, and which the Secretary has circulated for your information, may not be very exciting—you may even think it somewhat modest—but I believe it is an useful one and that the measures which we shall ask you to pass will do good. At any rate I confidently look to you for help in making them what they ought to be. I doubt whether any of you expect Government to deal at present with many of the things which you would like it to deal with. Much which we all wish to see done must for the moment be left undone. For we know that whether we like it or not there must for some time be financial stress; Government, it is plain, must conserve their balances and must restrict their expenditure to their normal income; we cannot look for large grants—perhaps we cannot look for grants at all from the Government of India—to enable us to undertake new reforms or even to do work which we have already decided must be done as soon as we have money to do it. We must be prepared, too, to meet emergencies due to possible distress. We hope these may not arise; we believe that certain risks are past, but we must be prepared. Trade and commerce have suffered as they have suffered all over the Empire. Some trades have been completely disorganised: the hide trade for example and several smaller industries. Our great industry—our jute industry—has suffered much; it is recovering, and we trust will recover more; some of those connected with it will we hope prosper far more than at one time they were inclined to admit was possible; still it cannot be denied that many have suffered. Very little business has been done. The consequent drying up of the river of cash which ordinarily flows into the country districts at this time of year, and which is counted on by all, must have far-reaching effects, some of which we can hardly yet estimate. It is the duty of Government through their officers to keep a sympathetic watch over the situation, and that I promise you shall be done. The outlook is improving, but we must continue to be careful. Reports show us, too, that the winter rice crop will be none too plentiful. I mention these things not to alarm you—for there is no cause for alarm—but merely to show you that we have not forgotten them.

We are under the shadow of a great war, but even in that shadow there are bright spaces. We are no less confident now than we were last August of what the result will be. We are proud of what has been done by the forces of our King-Emperor and by our allies on land, on the sea, and in the air. But we realise more clearly than we did how victory is to be won and at how great a cost. In that cost every part of the Empire will bear its share—India and Bengal will suffer as Britain must suffer and as every British dominion must suffer; but in the final triumph which is assuredly coming and in the blessings which will flow from that triumph, India and Bengal will have their share.

The loyalty to Great Britain shown by India during these last few months, the eagerness of the Indian peoples to fight alongside of Britons against the foes of our Emperor, clearly testify to the conviction of all who think for India that the good of her peoples will best be attained if Indians of their own free will remain closely associated with the people of the British Islands, and with those who though they have left those islands continue to be Britons, in forming an United Empire which we believe is, and which, we hope, will long be, the greatest power on earth for human good.

This conviction is no new thing; it has not sprung up merely since the war began. It existed long before that in the hearts of many Indians and it was spreading from Indian to Indian; but it has shown itself now as never before and it will never be forgotten. It has made it easier for Indians and Britons to understand each other, and it will make it easier for Britons and Indians to work together. This cannot but be for the lasting good of both.

The people of Bengal have not been wanting. Circumstances are such that they cannot share in the actual fighting, but they have given proof of their willingness to make sacrifices. I admire the way in which the Europeans in Calcutta have come forward. When I cross the Maidan every morning and see the hard work which so many of them are putting in, I admire them, and I cannot help being sorry for them, that they cannot get the chance which they would like of proving what they are worth. But I admire no less the spirit which has been shown by many Bengali youths and I most sincerely hope that it may yet be possible for them to get the chance of showing of what they too are worth. The proposal for a Bengali Ambulance Corps is by no means dead yet. There have been difficulties in carrying it out, but I hope they will yet be surmounted.

Bengalis, however, have already done more than some of us have given them credit for—to help Government and through Government their country—in a way none the less valuable because it is not obtrusive. Nothing has given me greater satisfaction lately—not even the capture of the Emden, and that gave us all great satisfaction—than to learn how well the zamindars and the income-tax-payers of Bengal have been "playing up." I know how hard they have been hit over jute; I know how bad in many places are the prospects for the winter rice crop, how uncertain the outlook for next year. I was surprised therefore to find that more land revenue and more assessed taxes had been paid by the end of last month than were paid at the same date last year. That fact says a great deal for the loyalty of the zamindars and of the income-tax-payers, and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking them for their punctuality in discharging what I fear must have been to many of them a difficult duty.

There is one matter to which I must refer. We were all grieved when we read of the two fresh bomb outrages. I do not believe there is any one who really cares for Bengal who was not horror-struck when he heard of them. That crimes of this sort should happen is bad enough at any time; but that they should happen now is peculiarly grievous, when our whole outlook is what it is owing to the war, when there is so much suffering being borne patiently and bravely in the cause of our King-Emperor. It pains us to find that there are some persons here so dead to the feeling of loyalty which is actuating Indians of all classes in every province, in every Native State, in every part of Bengal that they can seize this moment to show their implacable hatred of the Government of their country—the Government of which this assembly forms a part—in which their own countrymen take every day an increasing share. Such acts, whatever be the professed motives of those who do them, can only delay progress: can only bring disgrace on the motherland which they profess to love. The miscreants who do them are surely doubly guilty when they do them now; and I feel confident that there is not one among you who will not be with Government if we find ourselves bound to take steps to protect Bengal from those who are bringing her people into disrepute—a disrepute which is most undeserved.

THE BENGAL EMBANKMENT (SUNDARBANS) BILL, 1914.

LIST OF BUSINESS.—ITEMS Nos. 3 and 4.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell moved for leave to introduce a Bill to extend to the Sundarbans certain enactments relating to embankments.

He said:—

"My Lord—The Bill is short, simple, and I hope practically non-contentious. I have really nothing to add to the "Statement of Objects and Reasons" which is already in the hands of Hon'ble Members. It cannot be denied that in any country which is liable to floods and is intersected by great rivers the erection of embankments is not a matter which can be left uncontrolled, nor, I may add, a matter on which the State should hesitate where necessary to spend public money. If a private individual be allowed, in such a country as Bengal, to erect embankments without control from, or aid by, the State, there is grave danger that he may (in spite of the best intentions) do enormous harm not only to himself, which is important; but also to his neighbours, which is more important; and to posterity, which is most important of all. Any one who has seen the Sundarbans must agree that the question of embankments is more vital there than in any other part of the province. For the rest of the province we have a good workable law—Bengal Act 2 of 1882. But strangely enough this Act does not apply to the Sundarbans. The embankments in the Sundarbans are still left to the working of older and more ineffective laws. Why this is so, we cannot say. There is absolutely nothing in the debates in Council of 1882 to show why the Sundarbans were omitted. All that we now propose to do is to assimilate the embankment law of the Sundarbans to the law in the rest of Bengal. I ask to introduce a Bill to this effect."

The motion was put and agreed to

Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell moved that the said Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr, the Hon'ble Mr. Cowley, the Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha, the Hon'ble Mr. Chakravarti, the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Faz-ul-Haq and the mover, with instructions to submit their report in time for its presentation in Council at the meeting to be held in January next.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1914.

LIST OF BUSINESS.—ITEMS Nos. 5 and 6.

The Hon'ble Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911.

He said :—

"My Lord—I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911. In doing so I would observe that while fully recognizing the objections to amending a controversial Act such as this so soon after its enactment, the Government are convinced that the amendments proposed in the Bill are urgently required in the interests of the Public and the Trust alike. The Calcutta Improvement Trust commenced work in January, 1912. Their proceedings have reached a stage at which the Trust have found it essential to prepare as accurate a forecast as possible of the whole of their future work. They have accordingly framed an estimate of the funds likely to be available for capital expenditure on road improvements in Calcutta, and on the basis of this estimate they have prepared a complete and interconnected series of schemes, including the construction of 6½ miles and the widening of 8½ miles of main roads in the heart of Calcutta. The execution of these projects will be a work of many years. Meanwhile, the city is rapidly developing, in spite of much pessimism that prevailed after the Delhi announcements, and costly buildings are springing up in all directions. The position is therefore one of extreme difficulty. The danger is twofold. It is essential that the operations of the Trust should not discourage private enterprise; it is equally essential that private enterprise should not cause undue interference with the future working of the Trust.

As the law now stands, the Improvement Trust have no control over prospective lines of roads within the Calcutta Municipality until a road scheme has been finally approved and the land acquired. The preparation of a programme for the future gives them no power of interference with building operations on the land concerned; nor does it give the public any assurance that the alignments proposed will not eventually be modified or that the execution of the project will not be long delayed. During the period of uncertainty many will be deterred from investing their money in buildings which may have to be pulled down in a few years' time. This will be an indirect interference with their rights of property. Others given to speculation may be induced to push forward unnecessary building operations to add to the cost of acquisition. The demolition of buildings recently erected will be unprofitable destruction of wealth and the erection of a costly building on the lines selected for a road may in many cases render the cost of acquisition prohibitive, and thereby necessitate a change in the alignment. The element of speculation thus introduced will be a bar to true progress. The situation is unsatisfactory for the owners of property as well as for the Trust. To meet these difficulties and to remove the present uncertainty it has become necessary to enact provisions such as those embodied in the Bill. We are introducing no new principles. Within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality, the General Committee of the Calcutta Corporation exercise similar powers and section 63 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, gives power to the Trust to prepare schemes and plans of proposed streets in the vicinity of the Calcutta Municipality, and when those plans have been duly sanctioned to regulate building operations on the land shown in them.

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

The difficulty of administering the law within the Calcutta Municipality has arisen from the fact that if the General Committee are asked by the Improvement Trust to align streets on their behalf under section 356 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, the Trust have not the power to incur expenditure on damages that may accrue from such operations, and the Calcutta Corporation cannot in fairness be called upon to pay. It appears therefore to be eminently desirable that control over the whole proceedings should be vested in a single authority. It is accordingly proposed, and this is the main provision of the Bill, to amend section 63 of the Improvement Trust Act so as to extend to Calcutta itself the power which the Trust now exercise only in the vicinity of Calcutta. Care has at the same time been taken to prevent interference by the Trust with any of the other powers to regulate building operations at present exercised by the General Committee of the Corporation. Provision has also been made to give the widest publicity in connection with the publication, consideration, and sanction of plans of projected public streets and the final decision in the matter has been left with the Local Government and not with the Trust. Further, by clause 2 of the Bill, a "projected public street" is clearly differentiated from an "improvement scheme" as defined in the Act, and thus the application of section 23(2) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, is insured in the case of land acquired by the Board under sub-section (10) of the proposed new section 63. The effect of this will be that the 15 per cent. additional compensation ordinarily payable under the Land Acquisition Act will have to be paid for land acquired for a "projected public street", notwithstanding the special provisions of article 9(1) of the Schedule to the Calcutta Improvement Act which dispenses with the payment of such additional compensation when land is acquired within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality in connection with improvement schemes under that Act. The provisions of section 352 of the Calcutta Municipal Act and of section 63 of the Improvement Act in so far as they only allow compensation for actual damage to the owner of land falling within the alignment of a projected street, have been replaced by providing for acquisition of such land as soon as permission to build on the land being refused the owner asks for such acquisition. This gives a decided advantage to the owners of land in Calcutta and its vicinity.

In order to give full effect to these proposals it has been found necessary to amend the Schedule to the Act by introducing certain further modifications in the Land Acquisition Act. They are detailed in clause 8 of the Bill.

Subordinate clauses (bb) and (bbb) which it is proposed to add to article 9 of the Schedule to the Calcutta Improvement Act call for no remarks but special attention of the Hon'ble Members is invited to clause (bbbb), as the principle underlying this amendment, which is explained below, is not in any way specially connected with the proposed amendment of section 63 of the Improvement Act.

In Calcutta and other large towns the value of land depends mainly on its distance from the nearest road or street. When land abutting on a street is to be acquired, it is ordinarily divided, for purposes of valuation, into zones running parallel to the street. The front zone is valued at by far the highest rate, and the zones behind are valued at rates which diminish as their distance from the street increases. If the front zone is acquired and is included in the street, the second zone immediately becomes a front zone, and its value rises accordingly. All the zones behind likewise increase in value on account of the decrease in their distance from the street. In accordance with the general principle underlying the Act, viz. that the enhancement of land values resulting from the operations of the Trust shall accrue to the benefit of the public, it appears equitable that the compensation payable for the land acquired in such cases shall be calculated at the difference between the orginal value of the whole premises before acquisition and the value which the remaining portion will have, after the land acquired has been included in the street. This proposal, though at variance with clause sixthly of section 24 of the Land Acquisition Act is in accordance with the principles underlying recent legislation in Great Britain, as, for instance, article 2(c) of the Schedule to the development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, and section 41(2) (b) of the Housing of the working Classes Act, 1890.

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

The remaining clauses of the Bill deal with other consequential amendments, which have been sufficiently explained in the Notes on Clauses appended to the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda moved that the said Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Samman, the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, the Hon'ble Mr. Payne, the Hon'ble Raja Dinendra Narayan Ray, the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. Grice, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and the mover, with instructions to submit their report in time for its presentation in Council at the meeting to be held in January next, and explained in doing so why it was desirable to move this motion at this meeting despite the fact that the Bill had only been in Members' hands for five days.

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord—I am grateful for the provision of payment of 15 per cent. compensation, in the Bill in respect of land falling within the projected street, which the Board of Trustees will be empowered to prescribe under the proposed law ; but, my Lord, there are other provisions in the Bill which require careful consideration. My Lord, I fail to see any special reason for the great hurry with which this Bill is proposed to be pushed through. The Bill is a very important measure affecting the people of Calcutta, especially those interested in land and buildings, and it cannot be denied even by the Chairman of the Calcutta Improvement Trust that the vast majority of them are poor, middle-class people living from hand to mouth—widows, orphans and poor men, who in their thousands, crowd round the table of the Committees, sitting to hear objections, clinging desperately to their ancestral holdings and shedding tears at the prospect of acquisition of their properties. In the peculiar circumstances of the country, almost every man of the "Bhadrolok" class, however poor, generally possesses a plot of land on which he lives from generation to generation.

The Calcutta Improvement Act, in my personal experience of the last three years of its operation, has chiefly affected them. Any amendment of the present Act, tending towards a further severity of its provisions, requires the widest publicity and ample time for public consideration. I can truly say that not even one per cent. of the population of Calcutta belonging to the middle class are aware of the proposed legislation, which will affect their interests very materially. The Bill was circulated about 5 or 6 days ago to the Members of the Council. I do not think that Hon'ble Members have had sufficient time to consider and discuss the important principles involved in the Bill. The Government have taken over a year to consider this measure and it is but meet and proper that the Bill should be published after its introduction, and public opinion invited thereon. My Lord, I crave that the Bill be not referred to the Select Committee so hurriedly and at once, without giving the public a fair opportunity for submitting their well-considered views before the Government. My Lord, it is true that the Corporation was consulted on the proposed amendment of Section 63, but there is a wider public who are directly affected by this measure. My Lord, the principle of the Bill, as I understand it, is to give power to the Board to declare projected public streets within the area of the Calcutta Municipality within which the erection or re-erection, addition to or alteration of a building or even the wall of a building is forbidden under a penalty, though the completion of a projected street may be indefinitely put off. Under the present law, a street scheme is framed, objections heard, and steps are forthwith taken for the acquisition of property and opening out of the road. But under the proposed law, the projected street may be declared to-day, but the proposed projected street scheme may be matured and considered 10, 15 and even 20 years hence and the poor owner whose house falls within the projected street will not be able to reconstruct a wall of his house or rebuild and improve a single room to make it more sanitary and habitable.

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

There are some very important changes proposed by this Bill in the Land Acquisition Act and which were not in the original proposal before the Corporation which will come as a surprise upon the public. The provision disregarding the decrease of the market value of the premises owing to its falling within or near to the alignment of the projected public street will operate very harshly upon the owner of the holding in two ways. First as regards the necessity for repairing or remodelling the remaining portion and second as to convenience. There must be numerous instances where, by the acquisition of a portion of a property, the value and convenient enjoyment of the remaining portion must be seriously crippled, and he will not have adequate compensation for such injury. Take for instance the best bedrooms of a house or the out-offices which fall within the projected street and there is no other space within the remaining portion of the property for reconstruction of the same. Is it not just and proper that the person suffering such injury should receive adequate compensation for the loss. There is, I venture to submit, my Lord, another innovation attempted to be introduced in the last sub-clause of clause 8. And this was not communicated to the Corporation for opinion. It is proposed to exclude the application of the sixth clause of section 24 of the Land Acquisition Act in connection with the acquisition of land having frontages on existing roads : under this clause, if a portion of a house or land is acquired, the market value of that piece of land is paid as compensation to the owner. It is however proposed in the Bill in supersession of the Land Acquisition Act that the market value of such land or building shall be deemed to be the difference between the market value of the whole of such premises at the date of the publication of the declaration and the estimated market value of the remainder of the premises upon the inclusion in the street of the land acquired, it is possible to establish the present market value by tangible evidence based on the present income of the property or neighbouring sales or other relevant evidence ; but the future increase in value is an illusive and intangible thing about which there cannot be any positive data. It will depend upon mere guess work and it cannot possibly be determined on the basis of actual transaction as such transaction can only come into existence after the entire length of the road is opened out and completed. The injustice of the proposed innovation will be further patent when we remember that in supersession of the Land Acquisition Act, future rise in value of land or the value according to the best disposition of land is to be disregarded by the Board and the market value has to be determined according to the present disposition of the land, whereas against the interest of the owner and in favour of the Board the future rise in value of the remaining land is to be deducted from the amount of the compensation to be paid to the owner of the land. My Lord, may I in this connection remind your Lordship that this amendment in effect seeks to introduce, in a different form, the levy of the recoupment fee by the Board which was disallowed by the Secretary of State at the time when the original Calcutta Improvement Bill was before him. My Lord, it is not clear whether in the case of a projected public street regular street-scheme will also be prepared and published for criticism and hearing of objections, if so it may be possible that in considering a particular street-scheme when it is fully matured the projected road-line may be shifted after hearing objections. If again it is contemplated that no separate scheme will be prepared for criticism and hearing of objections it will give rise to misunderstanding and dissatisfaction for in the consideration of the street-scheme the objectors are heard personally. Co-opted members from the locality are added to the Board. All these will be denied in connection with the preparation of projected public-street. Scarcely three years have elapsed since the Calcutta Improvement Act has come into execution. The work has begun and not a single scheme has yet been completed, yet within such a short time it is thought to amend the Act, not with a view to remedy any defect found in actual administration of the Act, but to invest the Board of Trustees with additional powers, to introduce a new principle of payment of compensation which does not even find a place in the Bombay Improvement Act. My Lord, I have enumerated some of the important points which the public will require time to consider and submit their representation to Your Excellency's Government. Nothing will be lost by acceding to our prayer to give adequate time for the consideration of the measure. On the contrary the people will be profoundly grateful for such deference to public opinion. Let the Bill be published, let it be circulated to the public bodies for expression of opinion and then let the Bill go to the Select Committee with all the materials at the disposal.

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

My Lord, the instruction to the Select Committee, as laid down in the Agenda, is to report before the next meeting of the Council in January next. This is, I respectfully submit, not at all giving a reasonable time even to the Members of the Committee. The X'mas holidays begin next week and not a few of the Hon'ble Members will be engrossed in various Congresses and Conferences in and out of town and may not have time to devote their attention to the Bill within so short a time. I appeal to Your Excellency to graciously accede to our prayer. Knowing well how reasonable and sympathetic the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill is, I venture to hope that he will support us in our modest request to Your Excellency. If the Bill is still referred to the Select Committee at this stage I would crave Your Excellency's permission to move that the Select Committee be instructed to report at the March meeting of the Council instead of in January. If I am deemed to be out of order in moving this amendment, I beg to submit to Your Lordship that the Bill was not in our hands until five or six days before to-day's sitting of the Council. We had to read the Bill and to consider the provisions and then only we came to know the importance of the measure and that is the reason, My Lord, that no formal notice of the amendment could be given.

Your Excellency has the supreme power. May I, a humble Member of Your Excellency's Council, pray that my request for time may be granted? But if, my Lord, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill be pleased to amend his motion and extend the time of reference to the Select Committee to March next, there would be no necessity of my moving an amendment. With these words, my Lord, I leave the matter in Your Excellency's hands.

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

Babu S. N. Banerji; Raja D. N. Ray; Mr. Bompas.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH BANERJI said :—

"I desire to associate myself fully with the appeal which has been made by the Hon'ble Member behind me. The Bill is a highly technical one, and it contains provisions which are, as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, of a somewhat drastic character. The public know little or nothing about the contents of this Bill. Undoubtedly the Bill has been published in the Gazette, but how many of the public read the Gazette. Unless there is discussion in the public press about the provisions of this Bill, the public cannot be expected to know much about it. Having regard to the drastic character of the Bill, the important interest involved therein, and the widespread dissatisfaction which the hurrying of the Bill through the Council will cause, I venture to associate myself with my hon'ble friend in the earnest appeal which he has made to Your Excellency that, if the reference to the Select Committee cannot be postponed, at any rate, the Bill may not be taken up till the Council meets in March next."

The Hon'ble RAJA DINENDRA NARAYAN RAY said :—

"My Lord—I desire to associate myself fully with what has fallen from the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur. I do not think that the Improvement Trust will be hampered in any way by the delay of two or three months, and I think that it is very desirable that we should have the opinion of the public and the corporate bodies."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"My Lord—I am sorry that the representatives of the Corporation of Calcutta in this Council should have such a poor opinion of the discussions in the Corporation as a means of bringing to the citizens of Calcutta matters which particularly affect their interest. I quite admit that if this Bill had been submitted to Government by the Calcutta Improvement Trust and had not otherwise been discussed, there would have been some reason for the citizens to ask for time for further consideration of the provisions of the Bill. But this is not the case. This Bill was submitted with the full consent of the Corporation of Calcutta, after it had been fully discussed in Committee and at a general meeting. All the proceedings of the Corporation are reported in the daily press, and the citizens of Calcutta through their representatives in the Corporation have had full opportunity for considering this Bill.

I may point out, my Lord, that this Bill was put forward not in the interests of the Improvement Trust but in the interests of the local public. Speaking as Chairman of the Improvement Trust, I can say that people are constantly coming to me and saying "I wish to build a house or a place of business. Can you tell me where I can put up a building which will not be pulled down in the course of the operations of the Trust in the next few years?" and I am unable to give them any guarantee. I can only tell them that certain things are in contemplation. If this Bill is passed, they will have the assurance that if they abstain from building in view of future operations of the trust, they will have full compensation.

The Bill contains no novel principles. It gives to the Trust a power which has for years been exercised by the General Committee of the

Mr. Charkravarti; Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda.

Corporation and which is exercised by the Trust in the suburbs of Calcutta. Even the detailed provisions of the Bill, which are liable to modification by the Select Committee, involve, as far as I know, nothing new. The particular clause which the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur has taken exception to is about the decrease in value not being taken into consideration if the land is hereafter acquired. But that is quite in favour of the owner. If the land has been decreased in value by the alignment of the Trust, then the owner is not to be mulcted for the decrease. The Trust will have to pay as if the value has not been decreased. That is surely fair and is in favour of the private owner and not in favour of the Trust.

The other provision to which the Hon'ble Member has referred and which may be said to be novel to Calcutta, that is to say, that the damage caused to a man by taking a part of his land shall be estimated to be the difference between the present and future land value is not a novelty in legislation. This provision has been in force in Bombay for the last 13 years."

The Hon'ble MR. CHAKRAVARTI said :—

"My Lord—I had very little desire to take part in the discussion, because I frankly confess that after the discomfiture in connection with the original Improvement Bill which was passed into law, I have taken a very very despondent view with regard to any opposition to a measure of that kind, because the idea which was then put forward and which has been repeatedly put forward is that so far as the landlord is concerned he is a bloated creature who ought to be bled and therefore he can hardly have any grievance, whether he has a large estate like my friend the Hon'ble Mahrajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan or a small holder or owner of a private house in Calcutta. But, it seems to me that, with regard to the postponement of the reference of this Bill to the Select Committee till March, it is an extremely reasonable proposal, and I do not see any reason whatever why this modest request which has been made by one of the members of the Municipal Corporation as to the necessity for public discussion should not be conceded by your Excellency's Government. It seems to me that if the matter is kept in abeyance till March nothing will happen to Calcutta. It will not disappear, and regard being had to the contraction of trade owing to war and the paucity of money, we have to think of a great many other things besides the beautifying of our city. In any case we might wait for three months. The delay would not injure the prospect of our having a nice city with nice improvements all round. For all these reasons, my Lord, I have great pleasure in supporting the request which has been made by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur."

The Hon'ble NAWAB SYED SHAMS-UL-HUDA said :—

"My Lord—A good deal has been said about the provisions of this Bill and my friend the Hon'ble Rai Radha Churn Pal Bahadur has drawn a picture of the miseries which this Bill if enacted would inflict upon the people of Calcutta. As I read the Bill, I do not think for a moment that any such consequences will follow. As I pointed out, in introducing the Bill, it may be divided into two parts; the first part is that which deals with matters that are practically dealt with in much the same way in section 63 of the existing Act and there is also section 356 of the Calcutta Municipal Act which deals with the very same thing. The only difference is that in the

The Calcutta Improvement (Amendment) Bill.

Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda.

Calcutta Municipal Act it is left to the General Committee to project streets and if necessary to interfere with buildings on street lines ; under the Improvement Trust that power is left in the Trust and one of the objects of this Bill is to give the same authority the power to deal with the same matters, whether arising within the limits of the Calcutta Municipality or outside these limits. So far, therefore, as this Bill is concerned, as I said in moving for its introduction. it introduces no new principle and it inflicts no new miseries on the people ; it makes only a difference as to the authority that would exercise the powers under the Act. So far as we have introduced any modifications, they are distinctly in favour of the land-owners of Calcutta. It removes the uncertainty which has hitherto existed. As soon as a street is projected and an alignment made everybody knows that there will be a street in a particular place, and everybody decides for himself whether he will erect any buildings on the land or not. Under the law as it stands, i.e., the Calcutta Improvement Act as well as the Calcutta Municipal Act, when a building was set back on account of a street alignment the only remedy which the land-owner could get—if he wanted to build and permission to do so was refused—was damages. Under the new Bill. as soon as permission to build is refused, the land-owner has a right to come forward and ask that the land shall forthwith be acquired and full value paid for it. It seems to me, therefore, that it is distinctly in favour of the land-owner and not against him. It is also no doubt to the benefit of the Trust, because if new buildings are raised and demolished, it means so much waste of money to the Trust. So far therefore as the first part of the Bill is concerned, I repeat that no new principle is involved in it, and if the existing provisions of the law have been as disastrous as my friend would depict them, all I can say is that the disaster has existed for several years.

Then, as regards the other provision about the valuation of land, that is no doubt a new principle. My hon'ble friend has said that it does not find a place in the Bombay Act. He is misinformed as to this, because so far as clause sixthly of the Land Acquisition Act to which reference has been made, is concerned, this has been repealed by section 47 of the Bombay Act. The principle is not one as to which it will be of any use to take the Calcutta public into confidence. It is no doubt a new principle so far as Bengal is concerned, and it seems to me to be obvious that in view of their personal interest, the opinion of Calcutta land-owners will be against it. The point is whether it is an equitable principle or not. After all the benefit ultimately accrues to the Calcutta public. It is not the Improvement Trust which gets all the benefit. Instead of an individual getting more than he ought to get, the money goes to the Trust. I do not think that any one who has carefully examined the provisions of the Bill with a fair mind will object to this provision in the Bill.

It has been admitted that the Bill is an improvement so far as the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. is given. Under the Calcutta Improvement Act, it is not now payable. On the whole, therefore, the Bill is in favour of the Calcutta owners, and they have no just grounds to object to any provisions of the Bill. I admit that the time allowed to Hon'ble Members to consider the Bill has so far been short, but we propose to make up for this by postponing the sitting of the Select Committee till the first week of January. That will give Hon'ble Members ample time to study the Bill and to form their opinions. My hon'ble friend, Mr. Bompas, has already pointed out that this Bill was fully debated in the Calcutta Corporation and the public know by this time what are its effect I, therefore, beg that Your Excellency will allow the Bill to go to the Select Committee without any further adjournment, as your Excellency may do under rule 32 (3) of our Rules.

RESOLUTION.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 7.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY moved that this Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a City Civil Court, separate from the Calcutta High Court, be established in Calcutta, for the trial of suits valued at Rs. 10,000 or under, or of such other valuation as the Government may think proper which may be instituted within the Original Civil jurisdiction of the said High Court, and that Government be pleased to take the necessary steps for the early establishment of such a City Court.

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

He said :—

"At present suits regarding landed property situated within the town of Calcutta however small its value may be and money suits above Rs. 2,000 in value have to be brought in the Original Side of the High Court. Suits regarding landed property situated outside Calcutta, i.e., on the other side of the Circular Road and money suits however large their value may be are brought in the Court of the Sub-Judge at Alipore. It is well known that costs incurred by suitors in the Original Side of the High Court are generally very large, sometimes they exceed the amount of the claim. In many instances poor people cannot get any redress as costs of the Original Side of the High Court are prohibitory whereas they are sometimes ruined in defending a suit. To prosecute or defend a suit in the Original Side of the High Court it is necessary to engage the services of a solicitor as well as at least one counsel and in many cases two counsel. In the Mufassal Courts such as the Court of the District Judge or Sub-Judge or a Munsiff at Alipore the same case can be conducted by a Pleader at a very small cost. The incidental costs are also much less. In my opinion the costly and elaborate machinery of the Original Side of the High Court which compels a suitor to engage both a Solicitor and a Barrister in every case is not necessary for the trial of a large number of cases which are now being tried there. The costs must necessarily be considerably over the costs of a suit in a Mufassal Court.

My proposal is for the establishment of a Civil Court for Calcutta separate from the High Court where suits regarding money or landed property of less than Rs. 10,000 in value or such valuation as the Government may think proper may be tried. It will be a Court subordinate to the High Court. In all cases tried by the said Court there will be an appeal to the High Court in its Appellate Side. It will be a Court in which Barristers, Vakils, Attorneys and Pleaders will have the equal right of appearing and conducting cases as in the Court of the District Judge or Sub-Judge. The procedure of the said Court will be that which governs all cases in the Mufassal Courts and not the complicated machinery of the Original Side of the High Court, nor the summary procedure of the Small Cause Court. The Court fee to be paid at the time of the institution of the suit will be that payable in the Mufassal Courts and not that payable in the Presidency Small Cause Court. It will be a Court of Record. It will be a Court which will be presided over by an experienced Barrister, Vakil or Sub-Judge. The system which compels a suitor to engage the services of both a Solicitor and a Barrister to conduct his case will have no place there. There will be no taxed Bills, no allocator to terrify an unfortunate litigant. The Court will have power to try all sorts of suits except those relating to wills, insolvency, admiralty and matrimony. But if the Court proves to be a success and the public demand, its powers may be extended to the trial of those suits as well.

In Madras, a City Civil Court was established so long ago as 1892 giving the said Court power to try cases regarding landed properties and money suits up to Rs. 5,000 in value which had hitherto been tried in the Original Side of the Madras High Court. The Bill for the establishment of a City Civil Court for Madras was introduced in the Supreme Council by Sir Philip Hutchins, then Home Member of the Government of India, who was a distinguished Judge of the Madras High Court before his elevation to the Supreme Council.

One of the principal reasons which has induced me to bring forward the Resolution in the Council for the establishment of a City Civil Court for Calcutta is that the people of Calcutta who have the misfortune of being litigants either as plaintiffs or defendants in an action may have a cheap and speedy machinery to enforce their rights or for the redress of their wrongs or to defend themselves in suits of comparatively small value. The elaborate machinery in force in the Original Side of the High Court is not in most cases suited to the requirements of this country or its people. To quote the words of Sir Philip Hutchins in introducing the Bill for a City Civil Court for Madras, "The first is to remove that practical denial of justice to a not insignificant portion of the inhabitants of the City.....inevitable under the present system of judicial administration in the Presidency town. And the second is to obviate the lamentable waste of judicial power involved in that system, which requires every petty dispute not technically a small cause to be fully investigated by so high an officer as a Judge or perhaps even a Chief Justice of the High Court." In a memorial submitted to Government by some of the land-owners of Calcutta for the establishment of a City Civil Court for Calcutta so far back as the year 1904, the memorialists submitted, "there were many widows entitled to maintenence and right of residence; there were several persons deprived and dispossessed of immovable properties and owning small estates in Calcutta, seeking to enforce partition; several traders desiring to have dissolution of partnership; many persons desiring to bring suits for account, specific performance of contract and declaratory decrees, and several other persons seeking the interference of the Civil Court in matters of comparatively small value which are cognisable by the Original Side of the High Court but who are really debarred from bringing suits in that Court simply by reason of expense and delay involved in the suits in the High Court." In a letter dated the 27th February 1885, embodying the proposals of the Madras High Court regarding a City Civil Court for Madras, Sir Charles Turner, one of the best Chief Justices of the Madras High Court said, "The exclusive jurisdiction of the Madras High Court in a certain class of cases entails on poor suitors expense altogether out of proportion to the benefit they derive from the presumed superiority of the forum. It not unfrequently happens that suits are instituted for the partition of immovable property where costs incurred exceed the value of the subject-matter."..... If the observations of Sir Charles Turner are applicable to Madras, they are applicable with greater force to Calcutta.

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

It was about the year 1773 that the Government in England thought of interfering with the method of administration of India by the East India Company. The Regulating Act (13 George III) was passed and by the Royal Charter which was granted on the 26th March in pursuance of the said Act the Supreme Court was established in Calcutta. The Court was constituted not only as a Court of Equity as the Court of Chancery in England but also a Court of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery for Calcutta and Fort William and the factories subordinate thereto. It was also enacted as an Ecclesiastical Court and a Court of Admiralty.

All readers of history know full well the result of the establishment of the Supreme Court in Calcutta at that period, this planting of an exotic upon a foreign and uncongenial soil—how it spread consternation throughout the length and breadth of the land and became a terror to the people owing to the oppressive and novel machinery employed by the Court for enforcing its orders.

The Act of 1773 however was doomed to failure as it was utterly unsuited to the wants of the country. The Act of 1781 (21 George III C. 70) was passed to amend the Act of 1773. It was enacted among others by the new Act that no person should be subject to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court by virtue of possessing any interest in, or authority over lands or rents within Bengal, Bihar or Orissa or by reason of his becoming security for the payment of such rents.

The Supreme Court however continued to exist though shorn of some of its powers. In the words of Mr. Cowell, himself an English Barrister with

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

Indian experience, "nothing, however, in its subsequent history serves to justify or excuse the policy of its founders. Their attempt to introduce an English superintendence of law and justice on the part of the Crown, and an administration of English rules of law and equity by the English Court, modelled according to English fashion, was made rashly and ignorantly, without any sufficient scheme or due proportion." The result of the passing of the two Acts was that in the Mufassal, throughout the Province, Civil, Revenue and Criminal Courts were established suited to the requirements of the country and the people, whereas in the Presidency towns, the Supreme courts administered English law with slight modifications and were governed by the English system of procedure.

A Bill was introduced in Parliament by Sir Charles Wood in 1853 with the object of abolishing the Supreme Courts and the Presidency Town and Mufassal systems and constitute in each Presidency town a High Court of Judicature which should be supreme over all the courts both in the Presidency towns and also in the Mufassal. The members of the Indian Law Commission approved of the proposed change but inasmuch as the codes of procedure had not been passed, the proposal could not be carried out but remained with a mere alteration in the name, viz., the Original Side of the High Court. Whatever justification there might have been to establish the Supreme Courts in 1778 or to keep them up in the form of the Original Side of the High Courts in 1862 when the High Courts were constituted, there cannot be any justification for retaining the Original Side after the passing of the Procedure Codes and the codification of most of the important laws. There cannot be any ground for keeping up the King's courts and the Company's courts, the Presidency town system and the Mufassal system, as two distinct institutions after the laws had been codified.

It is because the costs on the Original Side of the High Court are excessive in comparison with the costs in the Mofussil courts and that the proceedings there are dilatory, and also to bring justice within the means of every person wronged by his fellow man that I am moving this resolution. It is however said that in the Original Side of the High Court the expenses are cheap in the long run—the plaintiff has not to pay the heavy ad valorem court-fee which has to be paid in filing a suit in a Mufassal court or in the Calcutta Small Cause Court and that people prefer to have their cases tried in the High Court. I shall simply place certain facts and figures which will speak for themselves.

Under section 21 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act concurrent jurisdiction is given to the High Court and the Calcutta Small Cause Court in suits valued at Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 2,000, i.e., election is given to the plaintiff to choose his own forum. I find from enquiry that the number of suits Civil and miscellaneous valued at Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 2,000 instituted in the Calcutta Small Cause Court in the year 1911 was 971, in the High Court it was 106; in the year 1912 in the Small Cause Court, it was 954, in the High Court it was 86; in the year 1913, in the Small Cause Court it was 918, in the High Court it was 90. The above figures show that in nearly ninety per cent. of the cases where election is given to the plaintiff he prefers the Small Cause Court to the High Court, though not only heavy ad valorem court-fee, nearly double that of Mufassal Courts has to be paid by the plaintiff at the time of the institution of the suit, but that the procedure in the trial of cases is summary and there is no appeal against the judgment of the Small Cause Court. Again, under section 39 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, the defendant has the right to apply for transfer of a case from the Small Cause Court to the High Court in suits valued at Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 2,000. In the year 1911, only 17 cases were so transferred, in the year 1912 only 12 cases, and in the year 1913, only 16 cases were so transferred, not 10 per cent. of the cases as has been stated by some people but only a little above 1 per cent. of the cases. How on the face of the above facts any inference has been drawn by some people that the litigant public of Calcutta would much more prefer their suits to be tried on the Original Side of the High Court than in another glorified Small Cause Court as they think the proposed City Court will turn out to be, I for my part fail to see. I think the inference is the other way. People prefer even the Small Cause Court to the High Court on account of its prohibitive costs as also its dilatory proceedings.

I do not want to cite the well-known Bhukoilas Partition Case, cases arising out of the estate of Gopal Lal Seal, Salaji's Estate or the Sobhabazar Raj Estate in illustration of the heavy costs and dilatoriness of proceedings of the Original Side of the High Court. I shall give you a few instances showing the ordinary costs which a party has to pay to institute or defend a suit. I cite them not because in those particular cases the costs have been rather heavy but they are ordinary costs which a suitor has to incur. Some of them have casually come to my notice and I have personal experience of some of them.

In the case of Udit Narain Singh v. Brindaban Chobay (suit No. 577 of 1912), the valuation of the suit was only 1,375. Only written statement was filed by the defendant. The case was decided exparte. The costs which the defendant had to pay was Rs. 1,149. In the Mufassal Court, the costs would never have exceeded Rs. 150 including the costs of the defendant.

Karunamoye Devi v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, was a suit for maintenance brought in the Original Side of the High Court by the step-mother against a minor whose estate then happened to be under the Administrator-General of Bengal. The only question was what was the amount of maintenance to which the lady was entitled. The cost amounted to about forty thousand rupees. In the mufassal, in the Munsiff Court the costs would have been about Rs. 150 or Rs. 160 and in a Sub-Judge's Court about Rs. 500 all told including the costs for ad valorem court-fee, &c.

Suit No. 525 of 1912 Shambhu Chandra Das v. Manmatha Nath Das and others was a suit by a reversioner to recover possession of property worth about Rs. 5,000. No evidence was taken by the Judge but a decree was given on the construction of the conveyance. The defendant besides the costs of his own Attorney had to pay Rs. 500 as out of pocket expenses, viz., fees for counsel, &c. The bill of costs submitted by the plaintiff's attorney to the defendant's Attorney amounted to Rs. 1,486. In the Mufassal court, the defendant would never have been obliged to incur an expense of more than Rs. 650 including ad valorem court-fee payable by the defendant to the plaintiff.

Suit No. 296 of 1910 Lolit Mohun Ghose v. Promotho Nath Dey was a suit for partition of about 4 catas or about 2,880 sq. ft. of land worth about Rs. 5,000. There was no contest and no partition became necessary as the plaintiff purchased the share sought to be partitioned pending the suit. The plaintiff however had to pay Rs. 890 as costs. In the Court of the Sub-Judge the costs would never have exceeded Rs. 60 or Rs. 70.

Suit No. 400 of 1905 Jogemaya Dasi v. Akhoy Kumar Das was also one for partition of immovable properties. There was no dispute as to the share of the respective parties. The properties were worth above a lac of rupees. A commissioner was appointed to partition the properties. As a preliminary step, properties worth Rs. 22,000 were first sold to meet the fees of Solicitors and Commissioner for partition. The proceedings are still going on and we are in the end of the year 1914 and Rs. 10,000 have already been spent as costs. Besides the above sum Rs. 1,500 were paid by the plaintiffs to their solicitors up to the date of the decree for partition. In a Sub-Judge's Court in the Mufassal the whole thing could have been completed within two years and that for Rs. 500 or Rs. 600.

In Suit No. 311 of 1898 Nistarini Dasi v. Benode Behari Bose and others the Commission fee of one single witness was Rs. 22,899. The costs which the defendants had to pay to the plaintiff in the Original Court were Rs. 38,495. In the Appeal the expenses of one side was Rs. 51,133. I have not seen the bill of costs of Appeal which the defendant had to pay to the plaintiff.

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

I had to give instructions and had to pay the costs on behalf of a relation of mine to execute two rent decrees, the decrees having been transferred from the Mufassal Court to the High Court. There was no opposition by the judgment-debtor. All that was done was to apply for the settlement of the sale proclamation. The costs however came up to more than Rs. 600 as between Attorney and client and an equal amount had to be paid by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder's solicitor. I do not know how much the judgment-debtor had to pay to his own solicitor as costs. In the Mufassal the entire costs would never have exceeded Rs. 50. The name of the decree-holder is Saratmani Devi.

In the execution case of Brojo Gopal Mukerjee v. Kedar Nath Ghosh which was a Small Cause Court decree for only about Rs. 50. but transferred to the Original Side of the High Court for execution, the costs of execution came up to the modest sum of only Rs. 700.

It is said that in mortgage cases the costs are much cheaper in the Original Side of the High Court than in the Mufassal Courts. In looking into the question of costs we must look as much to the interests of the mortgagee as those of the mortgagor. In a recent case in the Original Side of the High Court the case of Radha Ramon Pal v. Gobardhan Ghosh which was a mortgage case, the amount of the mortgage money together with interest came up to about Rs. 4,650. The costs including costs of execution proceedings subsequent to the decree amounted to about Rs. 2,400. There was no contest by the judgment-debtor throughout the proceedings. The costs in a Sub-Judge's Court would never have exceeded Rs. 400, i.e., $\frac{1}{6}$ of the costs of the Original Side of the High Court. An argument has been advanced times without number that in the Original Side of the High Court, a plaintiff has not to pay the heavy court-fee at the time of the institution of the suit which he has to do in the Mufassal Court. But is it not a fact that in every application that one has to make in a suit, he has to pay court-fee of Rs. 15 or Rs. 16, whereas in a Mufassal Court all applications cost only 8 annas in court-fee? A suitor knows very well how many applications have to be made in a court during the pendency of a suit. Is it not a fact that during the hearing of a case a litigant has to pay Rs. 20 per diem in court-fee whereas in a Mufassal Court he has to pay nothing? But these form very small items of expenditure in a suit on the Original Side of the High Court.

We have heard a good deal of late about the reduction of costs in the Original Side of the High Court by the introduction of a new scale of fees. Why, only the other day, the taxed costs of one side alone in a Probate case were—a lac and twenty six thousand rupees!

Again, the very fact that one has not to pay an ad valorem court-fee in the Original Side of the High Court at the time of the institution of the suit tempts him to swell his claim and instances may be cited to verify the above fact.

There are some who say that the justice which is dispensed in the Original Side of the High Court is one which is worth all the money that is spent upon it, that though it is dear, still it is worth having. All I can say is that the operation performed in the Original Side of the High Court may be successful, but the patient generally succumbs after the operation. But I ask in all seriousness, is the justice which is now being administered in the Mufassal Courts by Indian judges of such inferior type that it is necessary to incur ruinous expenditure to get justice in the Original Side of the High Court! In the evidence taken before the Select Committee on Indian territories in the year 1853, the Right Hon'ble Sir Edward Ryan, Privy Councillor, said, "In the judicial system 98 per cent. of the cases for trial are tried before native judges, and the evidence is unanimous, I believe, that their decisions are logical, well composed, and in every way extremely good, though they have not had the advantages which might be supplied of a good early legal education." This was in the year 1853 before the universities were founded, before the spread of that English education, general, scientific and legal, throughout the length and breadth of the land which has brought about the intellectual revolution of this country.

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

That Civil justice as administered by the judiciary in the Mufassal specially by Sub-Judges is generally satisfactory and that their judgments and orders do not compare unfavourably with those of some of the judges sitting on the Original Side of the High Court will be clear if the result of appeals is compared.

It is said that in a Mufassal Court cases are not decided with due despatch and that the decree-holder is generally put to great harassment in executing his decree. As regards the charge of dilatoriness in proceedings before a Munsiff or a Sub-Judge all I can say is that a Sub-Judge besides the trial of ordinary suits has to try execution cases and dispose of miscellaneous matters and to hear appeals against the decisions of Munsiffs. This takes away a good portion of his time. Whereas the judge of the proposed Civil Court will not have any appeals to decide and steps may be taken for the disposal of execution cases by the appointment of a Registrar and empowering him to dispose of them as is done in the Calcutta Small Cause Court. But these are details. If Government have the mind to make the City Court an useful institution they can do so by the appointment of a good and experienced judge. It will then be as popular as the City Court of Madras.

I thought it my duty to inquire how the Madras City Civil Court was working, whether the people were sighing for the days when they had been under the Original Side of the Madras High Court or were content with what they had got. The reply which I have received from Sir Subramanya Iyer who was for a long time a Judge of the Madras High Court and also for some time its Chief Justice and who I need hardly say is the most prominent citizen of the Madras Presidency, is as follows :—

"I have no hesitation in saying that the City Civil Court in this city has been from the date of its establishment quite a popular institution. It has been both efficient and economical to litigants as well as expeditious. The litigants certainly will not prefer to have their rights determined as previous to the establishment of the City Court. Popular feeling is in favour of the jurisdiction of the City Court being raised. There can be no objection to that jurisdiction being raised to Rs. 10,000."

When there was a proposal in the Calcutta Corporation about two years ago to extend the jurisdiction of the Original Side of the High Court to places within the Corporation of Calcutta but outside the present jurisdiction of the Original Side of the High Court there was a strong protest from most of the Commissioners, Commissioners holding landed properties both within and outside its jurisdiction strongly opposing the proposal. They advocated however the establishment of a City Civil Court on the basis of the Madras City Civil Court.

I think it is to avoid the heavy costs of solicitors and counsel and delay in the trial of cases in the Original Side of the High Court that the Bengal Chamber of Commerce now get their disputes settled by arbitration. It is not only the rule which compels a suitor to engage the services of both a solicitor and a counsel to conduct a case, but it is the special machinery adopted by the High Court in its Original Side for the trial of suits which is at fault, because the machinery tends to excessive outlay of costs by litigants.

As a member of the British Indian Association I thought it proper to ask the opinion of the members of that association on the subject of my resolution and among the 24 opinions received only 3 are against my resolution, viz., opinions of two Marwari gentlemen having little or no property outside Calcutta and having no experience of costs of litigants in Mufassal Courts. The other members have all given opinion in support of the present resolution most of them having large landed properties both within and outside Calcutta and having experience of litigation both in the Original Side of the High Court and the Mufassal Courts.

Resolution.

Babu S. N. Ray.

My Lord, this is not the first time that the subject of a City Civil Court for Calcutta has been brought forward. Your Excellency will find in the records of your Secretariat that so far back as the year 1885 a petition was presented to Government for a City Court and the British Indian Association supported the proposal. The matter again came up before the Government in 1903 and 1904 on account of two separate and independent memorials which were submitted to Government, but we do not know what steps were taken by Government.

I am sorry that a totally unfounded alarm should have been raised in connection with my resolution. It is said that the proposed City Civil Court will have the effect of crippling the High Court which is considered as the bulwark of our freedom and liberty. I really cannot understand how this can be. It will take away sufficient work from one of the three Judges now sitting on the Original Side of the High Court. Knowing full well that the High Court in Bihar is almost an accomplished fact and that it will take away at least 7 of the Judges of the Calcutta High Court and that the disputes of the leading European mercantile firms are now settled by arbitration by a tribunal of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, I really cannot understand why the cry is being raised that the High Court will be emasculated, that is independence will be gone, simply because it will be less by one judge in its Original Side if a City Civil Court were established. As I have already said, the proposed Court will be a Court subordinate to the High Court with right of appeal in all cases to the High Court. This does not mean and cannot have the effect of crippling the High Court or of curtailing the liberty or freedom of the subject.

There had been in the High Court and that for a number of years only one Judge sitting on the Original Side. It is only for some time past that sometimes 2 and sometimes 3 Judges have been presiding on the Original Side. What difference will it make in the status of the High Court, if there be one Judge less sitting on the Original Side? The High Court as a whole will not be crippled by the establishment of a City Court nor will there be any disruption of the same if there be a judge less on the Original Side of the High Court. It may be necessary to have a Judge more on the Appellate Side to cope with the appeals which may be preferred against the judgment of the City Court Judge. The alarm which has been raised in some quarters has therefore no foundation in fact or reason.

The same cry was raised in Madras when there was the proposal for the establishment of a City Civil Court there and such cries will always be raised when propositions for improvement will be brought forward.

People have said that why instead of moving His Lordship the Chief Justice and the learned Judges of the High Court for lessening the costs of litigation in the High Court, I have brought forward this resolution before this Council. But it is difficult to see how costs of litigation can be lessened in the High Court when it employs a complicated machinery of solicitors, barristers, sheriff's officers and an expensive procedure for the trial of cases. My regard for His Lordship the Chief Justice of Bengal and other Judges of the High Court is as great as that of any member of the Bar. But as one belonging to the profession of law, I am simply following precedent. Sir Philip Hutchins, as I have already said, was a Judge of the High Court before his elevation to the Imperial Council. I think he knew what procedure was the best to adopt under similar circumstances. I am simply following his line of action and doing what can be done by a member of this Council, viz., moving a resolution for taking steps to establish a City Court for Calcutta as has been done in Madras. It has been hinted that I have taken up the subject of a City Civil Court for Calcutta in the interests of the profession to which I belong—I mean in the interests of the Vakils of the High Court. All I can say is that hard words break no bones. We are here for the discharge of our public duties. We must remember that the professions exist for the public and not the public for the professions. We are here not to represent the interests of any class or creed but to do all that we possibly can to further the interests of the public, to help your Lordship's Government to do the greatest good for the greatest number.

Resolution.

Babu [redacted]; Mr. S. P. Sinha.

The result of my resolution is watched with keen interest by a large number of residents of Calcutta specially the poor and the voiceless. The question before your Lordships' Government is whether poor people are to be denied justice simply because they are poor and are unable to pay for it, whether poor people are for ever to groan and are to be deprived of their rights because they have not the means either to prosecute their cases or to defend an action. The suffering is great, the suffering is real and the people do suffer though silently. The boast of the British Government is that it has given the blessings of peace to the people of this country, that it has thrown open the doors of justice to the rich and the poor alike. Why is it that here, the seat of your Lordships' Government, the doors of justice should be barred with gold and open but to golden keys. Why should it be said of a British Court of justice that instead of giving relief to the poor it relieves them of their properties?

My Lord, I am sorry that there should be any difference of opinion as regards the necessity or utility of my resolution. But still we cannot expect that in our public life there should always be unanimity of opinion. There will sometimes be honest difference of opinion. That cannot be helped. But happily that difference has its origin, I need hardly say, not to any partisan spirit.

We must keep pace with the times. The rising tide of public opinion is with us. I may not be successful in carrying through my resolution to-day. The opposition may be strong and powerful. But this I can assure your Lordships' Government that a City Civil Court for Calcutta will come "for a' that" and that sooner or later the vested interests of a few will have to give way to the public and popular demand for cheap and expeditious justice.

In introducing the Madras City Civil Court Bill in the Supreme Council, Sir Philip Hutchins said, so far back as 1891, "many good authorities are of opinion that some similar measure of reform is demanded for the other Presidency towns also, but Madras has advantages which enable her to take the lead. Whether her sisters will be inclined to follow when they see how easily the proposed transfer of jurisdiction can be effected and the good results which follow, is a question which we may well leave it to time to solve." I think the time has come for the solution of this question. Experience of well-nigh 20 years has shewn how beneficial the City Civil Court has proved in Madras. It is now for this council and for your Lordship's Government to confer that blessing which Sir Philip Hutchins anticipated by the acceptance of my resolution and the establishment of a City Civil Court in Calcutta."

The Hon'ble MR. SINHA said :—

"My Lord—I feel it my duty to oppose this resolution, and in doing so I hope I shall not be misunderstood. My learned friend, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray is apprehensive that it might be hinted, or that it has been hinted that his resolution is put forward in the interests of the profession to which he belongs. I fear my opposition may be ascribed to a similar reason. At the same time, just as my friend feels that in this matter interests of the public at large and particularly of the litigant public are the only interests to be considered, I feel the same, and it is from that point of view and that point of view alone that I propose to deal with it.

My Lord, we are both agreed that the administration of justice must fulfil certain requisites. It must be efficient, it must be expeditious and it must be, so far as possible, economical, and if the administration of justice on the Original Side of the High Court fails in any one of these particulars, undoubtedly it has failed as a system of administration of justice. Has it so failed is the question which my learned friend has mooted. If it had, I should have expected to find that after all these years the Original Side has existed as the direct descendant of the Supreme Court, the Chambers of Commerce of Calcutta would have been the first to raise their voice against the system of administration there ; I should have expected that the landed interests of Calcutta represented in the various associations, the British Indian Association, the Landholders' Association and similar other associations should have ere long raised their voice against the system of administration. I should have thought that the press of Calcutta, powerful, more powerful than in any other presidency town, should have, during all these years raised its voice against this pernicious system that my learned friend complains against. But what are the facts? My friend refers to a representation made by the British Indian Association about thirty years ago in which the question was mooted. The British Indian Association has not thought fit to pursue the matter any further. The Chambers of Commerce are not generally disinclined to moot such questions as they consider to be of public interest and we know that with regard to the various Courts, notably the Small Cause Court, the Chambers of Commerce have very often made their voice felt. But I have never yet heard that Calcutta merchants, either European or Indian, have complained of the system of the administration of justice on the Original Side My Lord, justice should be cheap, but it may be too cheap. In the mufassal, you have a system of appeals from Court to Court, and my friend himself refers in his speech to what is a common place in the profession, viz., that the plaintiff's miseries begin after he has obtained a decree, and it is very often years after he has obtained his decree that he realises, if he does at all, the fruits of his decree. My Lord, the same thing cannot be said of the Original Side of the High Court. A case is heard from beginning to end within six months—certainly the High Court itself sitting in appeal from the Original Side does all that it has to do in connection with such cases in the space of outside a year, and as regards appeals, I think it is common knowledge that not even 5 per cent. of the cases instituted form the subject of appeals from the Original Side of the High Court and so far as Privy Council appeals are concerned, I think it falls even much below one per cent. So that you have that element of finality which is so conspicuously lacking in the judgments and decrees of the mufassal Courts. I am not going to say that the administration of justice in the mufassal is not efficient. We all know that District and Subordinate Judges are as efficient as we can expect under the circumstances. but are we going to suggest that the High Court Judges are not more efficient? The whole reason of their existence as Judges of the supreme Court of the country is their greater efficiency and to suggest that because the administration is in the mufassal efficient, therefore we need not have a more efficient administration as we have undoubtedly in the High Court on the Original Side is, I venture to submit, contrary to public opinion.

My Lord, apart from the question of expedition, apart from the finality I have referred to, apart from the question of efficiency I have alluded to, there remains the question of the cost on which so much has been said and I fear that that is the only argument that my learned friend has got in support of the case he makes. The whole trouble of my learned friend is the elaborate machinery which compels the employment of solicitors and barristers and my learned friend thinks that the moment these offending persons are removed and vakils are introduced, the millenium will begin My Lord, my friend complains that it is necessary to employ solicitors in addition to barristers. Has not my friend heard that in many cases in the mufassal there is not only one pleader but several pleaders engaged in a case? Has he not heard that beyond the costs which are awarded in the Courts the client has to pay many mor rupees to his pleaders? The taxed costs—the allocatur may be unfamiliar terms to some of my friends here as being something like an animal of very much the same name. But, my Lord, people in Calcutta have been familiar both with taxation and with allocaturs and the people of Calcutta have managed to exist. And though my friend representing mufassal municipalities comes forward today and says that he, stands as a champion of the oppressed in Calcutta, we have not heard as I have hinted before, of any complaints either in the public press or from the public bodies and representative institutions which exist in Calcutta.

Resolution.

If there is any public which is able to make itself heard I should have thought it was the Calcutta public. But in this matter the Calcutta public has not expressed its opinion, and it remained for my learned friend representing mufassal municipalities to voice the grievances of poor litigants in Calcutta. Judged from these three points of view, efficiency, economy and expedition, I venture to submit to the Council that the Original Side has more than fulfilled the expectations of the people.

I may now take the few cases referred to by my learned friend in his speech. I have not had time to verify them. But at least one of them I remember from my own experience in which the taxed costs amounted to something like Rs. 1,26,000. I may refer to the circumstances under which the case came to the High Court. It was a case instituted in the mufassal, which if it had been proceeded with in the mufassal would not have lasted beyond a day or two. But the litigant himself came and got the case transferred from the mufassal to the Original Side of the High Court on the ground that he would not get justice in the mufassal. Innumerable witnesses had to be examined on commission it being a Bhagalpur case—legal practitioners had to be sent out from Calcutta to Bhagalpur, there were three or four purdanashin ladies of rank who had to be examined on commission—all these went to swell the costs. If a case of that dimension and under circumstances like these were to happen in the mufassal I have no doubt that the costs would probably have been even greater. Two persons were determined to fight each other, to ruin each other, and that was the reason why the costs were increased to such an extent. To say that that it is the normal scale of costs on the Original Side of the High Court, would, I venture to submit, be misrepresenting the real state of affairs altogether. We know that with regard to ordinary suits, the costs on the Original Side are, as a matter of fact, less than in the muffasal courts. There are instances not peculiar to this country or any other country when people's passions have been inflamed by the desire to litigate they will come to the expensive man—"the fashionable duffer" as Mr. Labouchere of "Truth" called him, merely because he is the most expensive Whether you have a City Court, a Police Court or a District Court, the people who are determined to litigate in this fashion will spend much money on very trivial quarrels. Do we not know that the Government of Bengal have felt themselves obliged according to the nature of cases to pay enormous sums of money as fees to counsel? Will the City Court make any difference in this respect? We know that in the Police Court, where you can get a pleader for a small sum people have been known to engage Barristers at enormous fees from day to day. Has the millenium come in the Police Court because Pleaders have the right of audience there in the same way as barristers and solicitors have? What reason is there to think that when you throw open the Original Side of the High Court to pleaders the cost of litigation will at once diminish? I venture to think, my lord, it will be exactly the same as it is now, and as long as there are people whom litigants desire to have as advocates on their side on large fees they will be engaged notwithstanding the fact that there is another class of legal practitioner available at one-eighth or one-tenth of the fees. I venture to think, my lord, that this resolution is not aimed so much at the constitution of the Original Side or the elaborate machinery in operation there as at the limited right of audience in that Court. The test as to whether this resolution is aimed at the Court or at a section of practitioners is this—would my friend press the resolution if the right of audience were extended to the particular class whom he has in view? In the City Court, if the right of audience is confined to barristers and solicitors, would my friend care to press his resolution? In the City Court as proposed by my Hon'ble friend, pleaders will have a look in. If they have the same privilege on the Original Side will the elaborateness of machinery disappear, will the scale of costs and allocaturs be done away with? Will it meet the views of my friend if that were done? It is curious that this resolution is synchronous practically with another movement which is going on at the same time and for which application has already been made to the Judges of the High Court, viz., for throwing open the Original Side to pleaders. If it is boldly put forward that we want the Original Side to be thrown open to pleaders, it is perfectly clear that the resolution will not be one within the competence of this Council; it will be a matter entirely for the Judges of the High Court to deal with, and as a matter of fact it is now being dealt with by the Judges. One cannot, I submit, my lord, bring forward a resolution of this kind in the interests of one section of the profession as against another, because to do that would be to reduce our Council to the level of a debating society."

Resolution.

Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan.

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said :—

"My Lord—I am neither a Vakil nor a Barrister, but I am very often at the mercy of both. I have got up to suggest a modus vivendi regarding the resolution of my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, who is not only a representative of the mufassal municipality, as my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha has said, but also possesses a considerable amount of landed property in Calcutta itself, and therefore, like many landholders realises the difficulties of cases in the Original Side of the High Court. I may also mention here casually that the Hon'ble mover of this resolution consulted individual members of the British Indian Association, to which association reference has already been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha, and that the majority of them have supported the idea of a City Court in Calcutta. I only mention this fact as I happen to be the President of that Association. But what I beg to propose with your Excellency's permission is that, in view of the divergence of non-official opinion on this resolution—although I may say that those in favour of this resolution including my friend the mover is quite willing to take up the challenge given to them that there is a considerable amount of opinion in favour of the establishment of a City Court in Calcutta, and although they know it, yet they are willing to accept my suggestion—I have consulted my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and he is agreeable to what I suggest, namely, that this resolution do stand adjourned until after the conclusion of the debate of the Budget, and that in the meantime Government be pleased to circulate this resolution to public bodies for an expression of their opinion, and I take it that other Hon'ble Members are agreeable to this course being followed."

Adjournment.

Babu S. N. Banerji; the President.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH BANERJI said :—

"My Lord—I desire to give my whole-hearted support to the resolution moved by my friend the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. His resolution has come to me as a sort of relief, and I am sure that this is the feeling of many of us here—"

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT said :—

"Order, order! What the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan has submitted to this Council is a mere suggestion and not a resolution, and whether it should be accepted or not, is a matter for the President only. Further, I must point out that if the Hon'ble Member speaks now, he will not be able, should the resolution be adjourned, to speak again when it comes up again for discussion."

His Excellency the President, having satisfied himself that the Council were generally in favour of the acceptance of the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, said :—

"I accept the proposal of the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan that, in view of the divergence of non-official opinion on this resolution, the resolution do stand adjourned until after the conclusion of the debate on the Budget in April, 1915, and that in the meantime the resolution should be circulated by Government to the public bodies of Calcutta for an expression of their opinion. I direct that the resolution, as also a copy of to-day's proceedings in Council in connection therewith, be so circulated and that the discussion on the resolution be resumed in this Council after the termination of the debate on the Budget."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray (who had given notice of his intention to do so) asked His Excellency the President to allow him to substitute the following Resolution for that orginally submitted by him in connection with the establishment of a Board of Education in Bengal :—

Modified Resolution.

"This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that an Advisory Board (to consist of official and non-official members) be formed for the purpose of advising Government in matters connected with primary and secondary education in this Presidency."

Original Resolution.

"This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a Board of Education (to consist of official and non-official members) be formed for the purpose of the adminstration of primary and secondary education in this Presidency."

The necessary permission having been given, the discussion of this Resolution was deferred until the January meeting of the Council as previously directed by His Excellency at the meeting held in September last.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday, the 19th January, 1915, at 11 A.M.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Forecast of the Winter Til (Sesamum) Crop of Bengal, 1914-15.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1911-12, the area under* Til in Bengal has represented some 5·6 per cent. of the total area under Til *in British India.)

Character of the season.—The rainfall at the beginning, although defective, was favourable to the sowings of the crop which commenced generally in normal time. Subsequently, however, the deficient rainfall in October followed by continued drought affected the growth of the crop. The conditions, therefore, were not wholly favourable.

Acreage.—The total area cultivated with the crop, as estimated by the District Officers, is 62,200 acres this year against 55,800 acres last year. The increase occurred chiefly in Mymensingh and the Chittagong Hill Tracts owing to extension of cultivation.

Outturn.—According to the estimates of the District Officers, the outturn of the crop for the Province works out to 80 per cent. of the normal against the same outturn last year. Taking the normal yield per acre to be 4½ maunds, the gross yield for the Province is estimated at 7,800 tons against 7,000 tons last year or an increase of about 11 per cent.

CALCUTTA,
The 19th December 1914.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

Bogra ...	1,600	1,000	1,000	85	80	End of September. Normal.	Middle of December. Normal.	The character of weather at sowing time was not unfavourable, but the subsequent long drought arrested the growth of the crop, and [illegible] outturn has therefore fallen below the normal.
Pabna ...	12,300	6,000	6,000	100	95	Middle of September. Normal.	Will begin by the end of January.	The weather condition was favourable at the time of sowing, but later on the crops suffered for want of rain. There was damage to the crop in Sadar Subdivision by drought.
Malda ...	6,500	1,200	1,200	90	75	Beginning of September. Normal.	End of November. Normal.	The weather was favourable at sowing time, but since the middle of October it has been unfavourable owing to want of rainfall. About one-fourth of the crop has been damaged by drought.
Dacca ...	10,100	10,500	11,000	90	79	First week of September. Normal.	2nd week of November. Normal.	The weather at sowing time was generally dry except occasional rainfall in September and the first week of October. The want of rainfall in September and October is the principal cause of the fall in the expected outturn.
Mymensingh ...	8,600	6,000	7,800	100	92	First week of October. Normal.	Will begin about the first week of January. Normal.	The increase of 2,000 and 1,300 acres in the estimated normal area and the area under the crop this year respectively was due to inclusion of figures for the Tangail subdivision for the first time. The weather has been favourable to the growth of the crop.
Chittagong ...	200	200	200	80	90	November. Normal ...	Will begin in February. Normal.	The distribution of rainfall has not been entirely favourable to the crop.
Tippera ...	8,000	1,600	1,800	85	85	Last part of August in Sadar and end of October in Brahmanbaria. Normal.	December to January ...	The increase in area was due to extended cultivation of the crop in the Sadar subdivision. Owing to insufficient rainfall the growth of the crop is unsatisfactory. The outturn is expected to be below the normal for insufficient rainfall.
Chittagong Hill Tracts.	13,000	7,500	11,000	65	70	1st May. Normal ...	15th November. Normal.	The increase in area was due to extension of jhum cultivation. The outturn is better than last year.

First Forecast of the Spring Oilseed Crops of Bengal, 1914-15.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1912-13, the acreage under linseed in Bengal has represented some 6·0 per cent., and that under rape and mustard, 21·4 per cent., of the total acreage under these crops in British India.)

Explanatory.—Three forecasts are issued for the spring oilseed crops. The first forecast deals only with the area sown and the general condition of the crops.

Area sown.—Oilseeds are chiefly grown in the Rajshahi, Dacca and Presidency Divisions. In the other two divisions the area under the crops is very small. The total area under the crops sown up to date this year (excepting til for which separate forecasts are issued) is reported to be 1,540,400 acres against 1,573,000 acres last year.

Character of the season.—The sowings were generally normal, being neither early nor late Rainfall was defective both in September and October which hampered the sowings in places to some extent. A dry November followed. The weather conditions have not been generally favourable throughout the Province. The prospects so far are reported to be fair.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

First forecast of the Wheat Crop of Bengal, 1914-15.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1912-13 the area under wheat in Bengal has represented some 0·5 per cent., of the total area under wheat in India.]
This ratio of irrigated wheat acreage to total wheat acreage in (a) British India and (b) in the territory now reported on has in the five years ending 1912-13 averaged (a) 37·7 per cent. and (b) 17·4 per cent., respectively.

Explanatory.—Three forecasts of the wheat crop are published. The first forecast deals only with the area sown and the general character of the crop.

Area sown.—The total area sown with the crop up to date this year according to district officers' estimates amounts to 133.200 acres against 144,100 acres last year.

Character of the season.—The sowings were generally normal although rainfall was defective both in September and October. Except in some of the districts of the Rajshahi Division the weather conditions have not been favourable. Want of sufficient moisture in the fields adversely affected the growth of the crop. The prospects are unsatisfactory unless there is some immediate rainfall.

NOTIFICATIONS.

No. 12182 For.—The 24th December 1914.—The following revised rules, relating to the recruitment of the Provincial Forest Service in Bengal and the selection of Bengal candidates for deputation to the Ranger Service course at the Imperial Forest College, Dehra-Dun, are published for general information in supersession of those published in Notification No. 1261 M R., dated the 20th March 1913 :—

I.—RULES FOR THE RECRUITMENT OF THE PROVINCIAL FOREST SERVICE IN BENGAL.

Extract from the Rules of the Forest Research Institute at Dehra-Dun relating to the Provincial Service course.

22. The maximum number of students that will be admitted in any one year will be decided by the President, subject to the orders of the Inspector-General of Forests. Within this number, nominations will be assigned to the various provinces by the President who, after satisfying their requirements, may also assign vacancies to British possessions, Native States, etc. The President is empowered to refuse an application for a nomination without assigning any reason.

All applications for nominations must be communicated to the President by the 1st July of the year preceding that in which the course will commence. All nominations will be allotted and communicated to Local Governments, etc., concerned by the 15th July. Should any nomination not be accepted, the President should be informed by as early a date as possible so as to permit of his transferring the nomination to some other Local Government, Native State, etc.

23. It is left to Local Governments to prescribe what educational qualifications they please, including any examination, competitive or otherwise, for candidates that it is proposed to depute to the Provincial Service course. The attention of Local Governments is, however, invited to the fact that candidates must possess a sound knowledge of English and Mathematics sufficient to enable them to follow the College course without difficulty. Experience has shown that even candidates who have graduated at some Indian University have often a wholly inadequate knowledge of both English and Mathematics. Unless therefore a candidate is thoroughly conversant with these subjects, as indicated in rule 25, it will be merely waste of time to send him to the Institute.

Local Governments will also no doubt bear in mind the importance of giving a preference to candidates who are in all respects qualified by previous examinations to follow and profit by the course of instruction, it having been found that without a preliminary training in Science probationers are not able to complete an advanced Forest course within a limited time.

24. Physical test.—It is left to Local Governments to prescribe any physical test they please. Should a candidate at any time during the course be found to be physically unfit, the President may remove him from the College.

25. Qualifying examination, English.—Local Governments should make their own arrangements, thoroughly to test the knowledge of candidates in English. After a student has been at the college two months the President may remove him if in his opinion the student does not possess a sufficient knowledge of English to enable him to follow the College course intelligently.

Mathematics.—A qualifying examination in Mathematics will be held at various centres to suit the convenience of Local Governments early in November each year on a date to be fixed by the President. The date fixed will be communicated by the President to Local Governments during the month of October. The examination will consist of two papers, one in Arithmetic and Algebra and the other in Geometry and Trigonometry to each of which three hours will be allowed. The papers will be sent under sealed cover to Local Governments who have received nominations. After the examination has been held on the date fixed, answers will be forwarded under sealed cover to the President, Forest Research Institute and College, direct.

The standard in Mathematics is a practical knowledge of Arithmetic, Algebra, up to and including quadratic equations and simple problems, Mensuration, Geometry (including the first three books of Euclid) and elementary Trigonometry including the solution of triangles and the use of logarithms. No candidate who fails to obtain half the full marks in each paper will be considered to have passed.

With the permission of the Local Governments concerned candidates from Native States and private students will be examined at provincial centres.

26. There are four categories of students—

(a) private students;
(b) Government probationary students, stipendiary or non-stipendiary;
(c) students deputed by Native States and British Colonies;
(d) students already in Government service.

(a) Private students can only be admitted if there are vacancies for such after satisfying the demands of (b), (c), (d) above. Their chief raison d'être is to meet a possible demand on the part of large landowners who may wish to place their forest areas under professional management.

(b) Government probationary students are those nominated by a Local Government for direct appointment to, or as probationers for, the Provincial Service.

(d) Students already in Government service may be deputed at the discretion of Local Governments, provided that they pass the examination prescribed in rule 23.

27. In the case of private students, application for nominations must be made to the President direct, supported by a certificate from a Conservator of Forests, District Officer or Political Agent, that the candidate possesses the necessary social qualities and a good general education and appears likely to make a good executive Forest officer.

In the case of Government probationary candidates applications must be submitted to the Local Government through a Conservator of Forests.

In the case of candidates from Native States and British Colonies applications must be made to and in the manner prescribed by the State Durbar, or the Governor of a Colony. As a rule, those who have already been through the Rangers' course at the Forest College will not be accepted.

28. Age.—Except for special reasons and under the special orders of the Local Government in each case, candidates must be between the ages of 18 and 25 on the 1st July in the year in which the course begins.

The Inspector-General of Forests has the power to relax the above rule.

29. Certificates.—With applications must be forwarded the following certificates:—

(a) A certificate that the candidate is a "Native of India" within the meaning[a] assigned to those words by section 6 of 33 Vict., Cap. 3.

N.B.—This certificate may be omitted in the case of private students and of students deputed by British Colonies.

(c) A health certificate in the form prescribed by article 49 of the Civil Service Regulations, 5th edition, signed by a Civil Surgeon or such other qualified Medical Officer as may be approved by the President, and testifying to the candidate's sound constitution, good vision and hearing, and general physical fitness for a rough, outdoor life in the Forest Department, and to the fact that he bears on his body marks of successful vaccination or of small-pox.

(d) A certificate showing that the candidate is of good social standing and good moral character.

[a] "Native of India" means any person born and domiciled within the dominions of His Majesty in India, or within the territories of Indian Princes tributary to, or in alliance with, His Majesty, of parents habitually resident in India, and not established there for temporary purposes only (article 37, Civil Service Regulations)

The certificates (c) and (d) must bear date not further back than the 1st April of the year previous to that in which the candidate desires admission to the Research Institute and College.

(e) A certificate that the candidate possesses a thorough knowledge of colloquial English, which will permit of his following a highly technical course, and is generally of good education.

Certificates (d) and (e) must be signed by a Conservator of Forests, District Officer, Political Agent, or a British Government gazetted officer of high standing.

The Inspector-General of Forests may, should he consider it desirable, relax any of the conditions imposed under this rule.

30. The above certificates in the case of candidates included in categories (a), (b) and (c), rule 26, should be forwarded to the President when the names of the candidates are communicated to him.

31. Preliminary training.—It is left to the discretion of Local Governments, etc., to test the suitability of their candidates for a forest career by a period of practical training in the forests before they enter the Institute. During such training candidates will receive such consolidated allowance as may be ordered by the Local Governments, etc.

32. Candidates already in Government service may be deputed at the discretion of Local Governments, provided that they pass the examination prescribed in rule 24. As a rule those who have already been through the Rangers' course at the Forest College will not be accepted.

33. Stipends or scholarships—

I.—Government probationary students.—It is left to Local Governments to award stipends or scholarships in such manner as they please, provided that the total for 21 months' course does not exceed Rs. 2,400, i.e., does not exceed an average rate of Rs. 100 per mensem. In the event of scholarship being awarded, the general method of assigning such will be—

(a) a stipend not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem for the duration of the course or a portion thereof;

(c) partly the one, partly the other of the above.

II.—Students already in Government service.—Such officers will, while at the Institute, draw the pay and travelling allowances of their grade in the service, or a stipend not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem in place thereof as the Local Government may decide.

49. Travelling allowance of Government probationary students.—Such students will not ordinarily be entitled to travelling allowance, being expected to defray their expenses when on tour; but it is left to Local Governments to sanction the payment of actual expenses for journeys by rail or steamer.

Rules for the recruitment of candidates for the Provincial Forest Service in Bengal.

1. Appointments to the Provincial Forest Service shall be made—

(a) by the promotion of Forest Rangers of long service and tried probity, irrespective of the educational qualifications they may hold;

(b) by the selection for direct appointment of candidates who must successfully pass through the Provincial Forest Service course at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra-Dun, and thereafter render not less than three years' satisfactory service as Probationary Extra Assistant Conservator of Forests before being confirmed.

2. The pay of Probationary Extra Assistant Conservators of Forests will be Rs. 150 per mensem for the first three years; and thereafter until they are appointed to vacancies in the sanctioned cadre of the Provincial Forest Service, pay not exceeding Rs. 200 per mensem may be given at the discretion of the Local Government.

3. Candidates for nomination to the Provincial Service course at the Forest Research Institute must possess the following minimum educational qualifications :—

(i) a certificate of having passed the I.Sc., I.E., or I.A. examination of an Indian University in a group of subjects including Mathematics, or

(ii) the Licentiate of Agriculture degree of a Government Agricultural College, or

(iii) if a European, the Junior School certificate awarded in connection with the Cambridge Local Examination in a group of subjects, including Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry :

Provided that in the case of candidates who were above the age of 16 years on the 31st December 1910, other certificates may be accepted, if they show the candidates to possess the educational qualifications laid down in rules 23 and 25 of the Research Institute admission rules.

4. Applications should be submitted to the Conservator of forests, Bengal, through the Collector of the district in which the candidates reside, or through the Divisional Forest Officer if the candidates reside in a Forest Division : applications should be accompanied by the certificates prescribed by rule 29 of the Research Institute admission rules, and by the educational certificates prescribed under rule 3 above. From the applications received, the Conservator of Forests may make a preliminary selection, and candidates so selected will be required to undergo the qualifying examinations in English and Mathematics prescribed by rule 25 of the Forest Research Institute admission rules. The qualifying examination in English and Mathematics will be held at a centre to be fixed by the Conservator of Forests, Bengal. The examination in Mathematics will be that prescribed in rule 25 of the admission rules of the Forest College. The object of the examination in English is to test thoroughly the capacity of candidates to follow the course of instruction given at the College. Two passages will be read out (not dictated) to the candidates at a fair speed, one by a European and the other by an Indian officer. Each candidate will then be required to write a full précis of the passages, in order to show that he has grasped the salient points. There will also be a colloquial examination. On receipt of the results of those examinations the Conservator of Forests may select from the candidates who have qualified at those examinations not more than twice the number of men required to be deputed to the course in the ensuing year, and those selected candidates may be required to undergo a course of preliminary practical training in such forest divisions as the Conservator may direct, which may extend over a period of not less than four and not more than six months.

During this course, candidates will be granted a monthly allowance of Rs. 40, which is intended to cover their expenses. The Conservator of Forests will dispense with the services of any candidate whose work or conduct during this period may prove unsatisfactory or whose physical fitness appears to be defective.

The final selection of candidates will be made by Government.

5. While at the Forest Research Institute, the selected candidates will be given a monthly stipend of Rs. 50, which will be supplemented by a bonus of Rs. 1,000 at the end of the course to those candidates who pass with "Honours," and who are well reported on by the President. The amount of the bonus is reducible by Government in the event of the report not being entirely satisfactory.

6. The actual expenses incurred by probationary students on journeys by rail or steamer, while proceeding to and from the Institute and while undergoing the course, will be defrayed by Government. For the purpose of this rule, probationary students will be considered as officers of the second class under article 1002, Civil Service Regulations.

7. On the nomination of candidates they will be required—

(i) to sign an agreement binding themselves to work diligently while at the Institute and to serve Government for not less than five years after passing out of the Institute ;

(ii) to find two sureties to execute a bond in the prescribed form guaranteeing that, under special circumstances therein detailed, they will refund all money expended by Government on the nominee's behalf, etc.

II.—RULES FOR THE SELECTION OF BENGAL CANDIDATES FOR DEPUTATION TO THE RANGER SERVICE COURSE AT THE IMPERIAL FOREST COLLEGE, DEHRA-DUN.

Extract from the Rules of the Forest College at Dehra-Dun relating to the Ranger Service course.

* * * * * * * *

5. The total number of students of each category who can be admitted into the College each year will be limited to such number as the President, subject to the orders of the Inspector-General of Forests and the Government of India, may decide, from time to time, can be educated at the College. The number of studentships to be allotted each year to the respective provinces will, with due regard to the total prescribed, be decided by the President, after consultation with the various administrations as to their requirements, and will be communicated to them not later than the 1st April.

6. In allotting nominations to Local Governments, Colonies, or Native States, the President will allow a margin for possible casualties between the dates of nomination and of actually entering the College. And when a Local Government, Colony or Native State cannot for any reason utilize the full number of studentships allotted, it should immediately inform the President so that the vacancies may be filled up with other candidates in time to permit of the prescribed preliminary training being undergone.

7. There are four categories of students—

(1) private students;

(2) Government probationary students, stipendiary or non-stipendiary;

(3) students deputed by Native States and British Colonies;

(4) students already in Government service.

Private students comprise all those students who are without appointments in any Forest Service, who have not entered into an agreement to serve any Government or Administration, and whose object it is, by becoming possessors of the Forest College certificates, to obtain employment either in the Forest Service of the Government of India or in that of a Native State or some other owner of forest property.

Government probationary students comprise those who have been selected by any Government for an appointment in its Forest Service.

According to the class of studentship applied for, candidates are classified under the four categories defined above.

I.—Rules for candidates in categories (1), (2) and (3).

8. Age.—Candidates must not be less than 18 or more than 25 years of age on the 1st April of the year in which they desire admission to the College.

9. In the case of candidates of categories (1) and (2) applications must be sent to a Conservator of Forests,* either direct or through a Divisional Forest Officer of rank not below that of a Deputy Conservator, or through a Collector or officer in charge of a district. None of the above-mentioned officers need belong to the Forest Circle or province in which the candidate seeks employment.

*Conservator of Forests, Bengal Circle, at Darjeeling.

In the case of candidates of category (3) applications must be sent to, and in the manner prescribed by, the State Durbar or Governor of the Colony.

10. Certificates.—All applications must be accompanied by the following certificates:—

(a) A certificate that the candidate is a "Native of India" within the meaning* assigned to those words by section 6 of 33 Vict., Cap. 3.

(b) A certificate of age.

(c) A health certificate in the form prescribed by article 49 of the Civil Service Regulations, 5th edition, signed by the Civil Surgeon of the district in which the said Divisional Forest or District Officer's duties lie and testifying to the candidate's sound constitution, good vision and hearing, and general physical fitness for a rough outdoor life in the Forest Department, and to the fact that he bears on his body marks of successful vaccination or of small-pox.

(d) A certificate of respectability and good moral character from two or more persons whose social or official position can be accepted as a guarantee of reliability.

* "Native of India" means any person born and domiciled within the dominions of His Majesty in India or within the territories of Indian Princes, tributary to, or in alliance with, His Majesty, or parents habitually resident in India, and not established there for temporary purposes only (article 37, Civil Service Regulations).

The certificates (c) and (d) must bear date not further back than the 1st April of the year previous to that in which the candidate desires admission to the College.

If any person giving certificates as above under (c) and (d) is in a position to mention anything more to the credit of the candidate than the certificates actually called for, he may do so.

(e) A certificate of having passed one of the following examinations viz.:—

The B.A., F.A., B.Sc., or Licentiate of Agriculture.

The Matriculation, where no School Final Examination or school-leaving certificate exists.

The School Final Examination, provided the candidate can show that he has qualified in English and Mathematics up to the Matriculation standard, or, for European candidates, a certificate of having passed the High School examination, with a similar proviso.

The school-leaving certificate, as prescribed in the United Provinces, Central Provinces and Bombay.

(f) A certificate that each candidate has a sufficient knowledge of colloquial English to assimilate lectures delivered in that language without the aid of dictation.

The President is authorized to admit candidates, as an exceptional measure, who for some valid reason (such as being the subjects of a Native State or foreign country) have had no opportunity of securing any of the certificates mentioned above, provided that in his opinion the candidates possess the educational qualifications necessary to profit by the College course.

The Inspector-General of Forests may, should he consider it desirable, relax any of the conditions imposed under this rule.

11. Upon the receipt by the Conservator of any application in respect to which the preceding conditions shall have been observed, that officer may reject the application without assigning any reason for so doing; but if he accepts it and the applicant is a candidate for Government service, he should be seen by a Conservator of a Forest circle, when this can be conveniently arranged, or by some officer of the Imperial Forest Service, who should record his personal opinion in regard to the suitability of the candidate.

12. Those candidates who have been approved will, with the permission of the Local Government in the case of Government probationary students, and under the Conservator's recommendation in the case of private students, and that of the Durbars in the case of candidates from Native States, be eligible for nomination to the College, and their certificates as detailed in rule 10 above should be sent to the President not later than the 1st August in each year.

13. Preliminary training.—All candidates not already in the service of Government, who have been accepted by the President for admission to the College, will be required to undergo, before joining the College, a course of practical training in the forests of the province from which they come, lasting at least three and a half months. Such candidates will not be allowed to join the College unless they can produce a certificate signed by the Divisional Officer under whom they have served, and countersigned by the Conservator of the circle, or in the case of Native States by the Durbar, that they have undergone the course of practical training in a satisfactory manner and are likely to become useful Forest Officers. The President may exempt a candidate from the whole or a portion of the practical course above prescribed, after satisfying himself that the omission to complete the minimum prescribed term was due to no fault of the candidate, and that the Conservator, under whom the candidate had undergone part of this period of training, has certified that he has given promise of making an efficient Forest Officer.

14. Stipends or scholarships.—It is left to Local Governments to award stipends or scholarships in such manner as they please, provided that the total for the 24 months' course does not exceed Rs. 1,200, i.e., does not exceed an average rate of Rs. 50 per mensem. In the event of scholarships being awarded, the general method of assigning such will be—

(a) a stipend not exceeding Rs. 50 per mensem for the duration of the course or a portion thereof;

(b) in lieu of the above, a lump sum to be paid on a candidate's successfully obtaining such certificate as may have been agreed upon;

(c) partly the one, partly the other of the above.

15. Allowances.—Government probationary students, while under training in the forests of the province from which their names have been sent up, will receive travelling allowance at the rate of Rs. 25 per mensem to enable them to defray their travelling expenses during the course of the practical training referred to in rule 13. This allowance will be met from the budget grants of the local forest departments, and will be paid only under the countersignature of the Conservator of the circle concerned.

II.—Rules for candidates in category (4).

16. Candidates in Government service, who may be deputed to the Forest College, will be ordinarily—

(a) Forest Rangers who have not previously obtained the Higher Standard certificate of the College and who desire to qualify themselves for further promotion in their own or to a higher class.

Such officers may be deputed by Local Governments, provided that they are certified by the Conservator under whom they are serving to possess a knowledge of English and general education and ability sufficient to enable them to profit by the course. They must not be above 30 years of age on entering the College, and need not go through the practical training referred to in rule 13. While at the College, they will draw the pay of their grade and the travelling allowances to which they may be entitled under the Civil Service Regulations.

(b) Other members of the Subordinate Forest Service (Deputy Rangers, Foresters and other subordinate officials) similarly desirous of qualifying for promotion, who may be deputed by Local Governments, provided that—

(i) they have been in that service for not less than two years;

(ii) they are under 25 years of age on entering the College;

(iii) there is accommodation at the College and that the President is satisfied that the candidate possesses the necessary qualifications.

NOTE.—The Inspector-General of Forests is empowered to relax rules (i) and (ii).

Such officers will, while at the College, draw the pay and travelling allowances of their grade in the service, or a stipend not exceeding Rs. 50 per mensem in place thereof as the Local Government may decide. They will not be required to undergo the practical training.

49. Travelling allowance of Government probationary students.—Such students will not ordinarily be entitled to travelling allowance, being expected to defray their expenses when on tour; but it is left to Local Governments to sanction the payment of actual expenses for journeys by rail or steamer.

Rules for the selection of Bengal candidates for deputation to the Rangers' Service course at the Imperial Forest College, Dehra-Dun.

1. The number of candidates to be selected annually will depend on the requirements of the department, but ordinarily will not exceed four.

2. Candidates for these appointments should apply to the Conservator of Forests, Bengal, through the Collector of the district in which the candidates reside, or through the Divisional Forest Officer if the candidates reside in a Forest Division: applications should be accompanied by the certificates prescribed by rule 10 of the rules of the Forest College at Dehra-Dun relating to the Rangers' Service course.

From the applications received, the Conservator of Forests will make a preliminary selection of not more than twice the number of men to be deputed to the Rangers' course at the Forest College in the ensuing year and candidates so selected will be required to undergo the preliminary training referred to in rule 13 of the College rules relating to the Rangers' class. The Conservator of Forests will dispense with the services of candidates whose work or conduct at any time during this training is unsatisfactory.

The final selection of candidates for deputation to the Forest College will be made by the Conservator in accordance with the results of the preliminary training, preference being given to the men who are considered likely to make the best Forest Officers.

3. While at the Forest College, the selected candidates will be granted a monthly stipend of Rs. 35, which will be supplemented by a bonus of Rs. 360 at the end of the course to those candidates only who pass the course with "Honours." No bonus will be given to candidates who merely obtain the Higher Standard certificate. Selected candidates will be obliged to execute the agreement and security bond prescribed by Government.

NOTE.—Copies of the agreement and security bond to be executed under rule 3 can be obtained from the Conservator of Forests, Bengal.

4. The actual expenses incurred by probationary students on journeys by rail or steamer, while proceeding to and from the College and while undergoing the course, will be defrayed by Government. For the purpose of this rule, probationary students will be considered as officers of the third class under article 1002, Civil Service Regulations.

5. Candidates who obtain the Higher Standard certificate of the Forest College at the completion of the two years' Rangers' course, with or without "Honours," will be appointed Rangers on monthly salaries of not less than Rs. 50. Under similar circumstances, candidates who obtain the Lower Standard certificate will be appointed Deputy Rangers on monthly salaries of not less than Rs. 30.

4. The following are the conditions of sale. Government reserves to itself the right of altering all or any of these conditions after giving three months' previous notice, and power is reserved to vary the upset price referred to in condition (ii) at any time without such previous notice :—

(i) The opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

(ii) The opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rs. 1,600 per chest of uncertified opium and will be sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by clause (xiii) of these conditions of sale. (vii) The promissory notes taken on the day of sale under the fifth condition, if remaining unredeemed at 3-30 P.M. of the fifth day following the day of sale, or 1-30 P.M., if the last day falls on a Saturday, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

(viii) No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of opium upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before the prescribed time in clause (v) on the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted: Provided always that money so subsequently tendered may be taken in payment of the said promissory note, but such acceptance of money shall in no way entitle the payer thereof to any right to delivery of the lot or lots in respect whereof the said note was given, or to any of the rights of a purchaser thereof, or release the payer from liability for any unpaid balance of such notes or from the additional liability for the loss and expenses of such re-sale as provided for in clauses No. (v) and No. (vi).

(ix) The opium advertised for sale shall be paid for not later than by 3-30 P.M. of the fifteenth day from the day of sale, provided it does not fall on a Saturday; if it falls on a Saturday, the opium must be paid for by 1-30 P.M.; and, in case any lots of such opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as Government shall think fit; and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good all expenses and any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale, and the liability for the loss or difference of price and expenses shall be in addition to, and wholly independent of, the amount of the deposit so forfeited.

(x) Purchasers taking out certificates or orders for the delivery of opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each certificate or order; and it is to be clearly understood that the certificates or orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other certificates or orders authorizing the delivery of single lots or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less, than the number of lots or chests ordinarily required to be included in each certificate or order.

(xi) No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present conditions will be received in this office except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale-book, or his authorized agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

(xii) The officer superintending the sale on the part of the Government is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall on demand render at the time a deposit either in Government of India notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a promissory note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these conditions.

(xiii) With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually by Rs. 5 at a time until a bid is obtained; and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of Rs. 1,600 specified in the second of these conditions.

(xiv) The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of opium not exceeding altogether fifteen lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the opium to complete the said fifteen.

(xv) In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the opium included in this notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

5. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal:—

No. 1—Certificate of the opium advertised for sale.

No. 2—Report of the examination of such opium.

6. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Ghazipur Factory, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug, when packed at the Ghazipur Factory, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken, for the purpose of comparison, from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal.

7. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Government entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment.

HIGH COURT NOTICES.

To

THE DISTRICT JUDGE OF *

*In Bengal and in Bihar and Orissa

Dated Calcutta, the 15th December, 1914.

HIGH COURT, ENGLISH DEPT., Civil.

I AM directed to refer to section 82 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, which imposes an additional stamp duty on certain instruments affecting immovable properties situated in the Calcutta Municipality. As some misapprehension appears to exist as to the liability of sale certificates in respect of such properties to the additional stamp duty referred to, I am to say that such documents are "instruments," as defined in the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, and that the additional duty should, therefore, be levied on them.

2. I am to request that you will be so good as to instruct the subordinate courts accordingly.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

H. M. VEITCH,
Offg. Registrar.

No. 590 (third publication.)—The Portmaster, Brisbane, has given Notice No. 14 of 1914) that it is intended to alter the position of the front and back beacons now used as leading marks for entering the Townsville Harbour, and the new beacons will come into use on and after 20th November 1914.

Between the 18th and 20th idem, during the time the beacons are in course of alteration, and as a temporary expedient, in place of the back beacon, which will be dismantled, a black stripe will be painted on the eastern corner of the roof of the Harbour Board Offices, which, kept in line with the existing front beacon, will bring a vessel in on the present line of leads during daytime, while for night use the back light will be shown from the eastern corner of the Harbour Board Offices. When the new line of beacons is established, the present front beacon will be demolished, but mariners should specially note that so long as this beacon is in position it is to be kept in line with the black stripe on the Eastern corner of the roof of the Harbour Board Offices.

The height of the new beacons, when erected, will be as follows: Front, 40 ft., back 60 ft.; they will be 2,013 feet apart, and when in line, will bear S. 24° 30′ W.

RESOLUTION REVIEWING THE REPORTS ON THE WORKING OF MUNICIPALITIES IN THE BENGAL PRESIDENCY (EXCEPT CALCUTTA) DURING THE YEAR 1913-14.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 23RD DECEMBER 1914.

READ—

The Reports from the Commissioners of Divisions on the Working of Municipalities in the Bengal Presidency (except Calcutta) during the year 1913-14.

THE Bengal Municipal (Sanitary Officers) Act, 1914 (Ben. Act II of 1914), became law towards the close of the year under report and Commissioners have since been invited to submit proposals for the extension of the Act. The extension of this Act will make it compulsory for municipalities whose income is not less than Rs. 10,000 to appoint sanitary officers. Municipal administration was also extended by the retransfer to Municipal authorities of the work of registration of vital statistics. This duty will naturally devolve on the sanitary officers when appointed. There has been no change in the general character of municipal administration. A number of sanitary schemes are under consideration and a few have materialised, but municipal bodies are, as a whole, reluctant to incur expenditure on this account and look to Government for a large amount of assistance. Grants-in-aid are given when required, but in return municipalities are expected to make real efforts to contribute to schemes of improvement.

1. Number of municipalities and revision of boundaries.—The number of municipalities in the Province remained unchanged, viz., 111. The proposal to establish a municipality at Bhola has been dropped in favour of the formation of a union committee. Alterations in the municipal boundaries of Rangpur and Darjeeling are under contemplation.

2. Result of Elections.—General elections were held in only nine municipalities during the year under report. In Chandpur the seats were for the most part uncontested, but in the other eight municipalities the elections excited considerable interest. The percentage of attendance of voters ranged from 90·9 in Ward No. IV of the Chandpur Municipality to 14·4 in Ward No. II of the Santipur Municipality. The first elections in two wards of the Baduria Municipality were declared invalid. An attempt was made to observe secrecy at a bye-election at Kotrung in the Hooghly district in view of the pressure brought to bear on electors by local zamindars. The presidents and members of the election committee were chosen for their impartiality, and no other person was allowed to remain in the polling booth. The experiment found favour with the voters and may be considered to have proved a success.

3. Number of Meetings and Attendance of Commissioners.—The total number of meetings held and the number of those that had to be adjourned for want of a quorum rose from 2,050 and 132 to 2,174 and 134, respectively. The Cossipore-Chitpur Municipality held as many as 63 meetings. Dainhat, Asansol, Suri, North Dum-Dum, North Barrackpore, Baduria, Debhatta and Old Malda failed to hold 12 meetings.

The attendance of Commissioners in the Dacca and Chittagong Divisions is reported to have been unsatisfactory. In 74 municipalities the average attendance exceeded 50 per cent., the South Suburban Municipality heading the list with a percentage of 85 and Rajpur following with 78·8. In seven municipalities the average attendance fell below 40 per cent.

4. Number of rate-payers.—The total number of rate-payers rose from 311,654 to 314,562 in spite of a decrease of 2,029 in the Burdwan Municipality consequent on the destruction of holdings by the floods in August and an apparent decrease of 1,331 in Nadia due to errors in previous calculations.

The percentage of rate-payers to population was 15·9. It was highest in Kalna (34·8) and lowest in Titagarh (3·6).

5. Assessment and Taxation.—The rates on holdings and persons and the lighting rate were levied as formerly. Latrine fees were levied in 93 municipalities and a water-rate in 17. The average incidence of taxation per head of population rose from Re. 1-15-4 to Rs. 2-1-1. It varied from 6 annas 3 pies in Baduria to Rs. 8-4 in Darjeeling. The divisional average was highest (Rs. 2-8-4) in Burdwan and lowest (Re.1-11-2) in the Presidency Divisions.

6. Revision of Assessment.—A general or partial revision of assessment was made in 64 municipalities. The resultant increase of revenue was largest in the following municipalities :—

	Rs.
Cossipore-Chitpur	87,886
Howrah	31,512
Mymensingh	14,421
Baranagar	13,405
Midnapore	12,827
Serampur	11,812
Barisal	10,230

In Chittagong, Rangpur and Darjeeling the assessment of new and improved holdings yielded increased revenues of Rs. 1,640, Rs. 2,500 and Rs. 4,577, respectively.

7. Collections.—All the divisions showed increase of collections and the total collections rose from Rs. 38,06,365 to Rs. 39,83,558. The percentage of total collections on current demand, however, fell from 96·15 to 94·15. There was a noticeable falling-off in the percentage of collections in the Presidency Division, in four municipalities of which there were heavy outstanding balances owing mainly to the non-payment of taxes by large tax-payers such as the Eastern Bengal State Railway and the Calcutta Corporation. In some cases the failure to realise these taxes was due to objections preferred against revised assessments. No satisfactory explanation has been given of the large decline in the Dacca Division.

Garulia and Titagarh maintained their reputation, the latter granting remissions amounting to only ·6 per cent. Nalchiti had no outstandings at the close of the year, and the percentage of remission was only ·2 per cent. of the demand. Fourteen municipalities succeeded in making collections equal to or exceeding the current demand.

The total remissions rose from Rs. 1,24,100 to Rs. 1,58,861 and their percentage on current demand rose from 3·13 to 3·7. Debhatta, Taki and Dhulian remitted the high percentages of 24·3, 18·5 and 10·7.

The outstanding balances rose from Rs. 2,26,519 to Rs. 3,16,741, i.e., by nearly 40 per cent. This large increase is almost entirely accounted for by the Presidency Division and is due to the cause already noted. Fourteen municipalities had outstanding balances of over Rs. 5,000. The municipalities with large outstanding balances in the Burdwan Division are reported to have ignored the Government orders on the subject.

8. Income and Expenditure.—The total receipts of the municipalities, including the opening balances, fell from Rs. 93,22,039 to Rs. 88,64,602. There were decreases of Rs. 9,37,514 under the head "Extraordinary and Debt" and Rs. 12,409 under "Miscellaneous." The other heads showed an increase, the largest being Rs. 2,20,505 under the head "Municipal Rates and Taxes" followed by Rs. 2,19,043 under the head "Grants and Contributions."

The total expenditure amounted to Rs. 69,58,164 as against Rs. 74,84,083 in 1912-13, the decrease being solely under the head "Extraordinary and Debt" (Rs. 12,13,161). There was a large increase of Rs. 5,76,389 under the head "Public Health and Convenience" chiefly due to capital outlay on water-supply and drainage.

9. Closing Balance.—The closing balances rose from Rs. 18,37,956 to Rs. 19,06,438. The largest balances were held by Howrah (Rs. 3,65,856), Chittagong (Rs. 2,24,280), Darjeeling (Rs. 1,46,045) and Dacca (Rs. 1,23,339). These large balances are mainly due to unexpended grants and accumulated funds for water-supply and drainage schemes.

10. Income (Rs. 88,64,602).—The total income of the year excluding that under the heads "Opening Balance" and "Extraordinary and Debt" increased from Rs. 50,99,683 to Rs. 55,73,291. Details of the main items of revenue are given below.

11. Tax on Houses and Lands (Rs. 14,96,781).—The increase under this head amounted to Rs. 59,607. The largest increases occurred in Howrah (Rs. 34,849) and Cossipore-Chitpur (Rs. 11,219).

12. Tax on Animals and Vehicles (Rs. 2,19,323).—There was an increase of Rs. 7,378 under this head, the increase being again largest in the Rajshahi Division. The receipts in the Presidency Division fell by 7·3 per cent., the decrease being attributed to the extension of railways and the partial failure of the jute crop.

13. Tax on Professions and Trades (Rs. 75,671).—The receipts under this head showed an increase of Rs. 5,206. The Presidency Division returned an increase of Rs. 1,654 against a decrease of Rs. 4,178 in the previous year.

14. Tolls on Roads and Ferries (Rs. 87,037).—The increase of Rs. 3,779 under this head is almost entirely accounted for by a change in the method of accounting in Narayanganj introduced under the instructions of the Examiner of Local Accounts.

15. Water-rate (Rs. 6,02,313).—This rate was levied for the first time in Serampur and Chandpur. Of the total increase (Rs. 64,298), Howrah contributed Rs. 26,154, Darjeeling Rs. 8,473, Cossipore-Chitpur Rs. 7,632, Maniktala Rs. 7,522 and Burdwan Rs. 6,269. The Dacca, Narayanganj and Mymensingh Municipalities showed a decrease of Rs. 3,308, of which Dacca accounted for Rs. 2,224.

16. Lighting-rate (Rs. 1,84,319).—As in the previous year, this rate was levied only in four municipalities. The receipts under this head showed an increase of Rs. 19,229 to which all the municipalities contributed. In addition, a sum of Rs. 54,373 was received by the Darjeeling Municipality on account of electric light installation.

17. Conservancy (Rs. 10,10,879).—The increase under this head amounted to Rs. 39,086. The receipts from the sale of night-soil and street-sweepings rose from Rs. 2,342 to Rs. 4,298, of which Howrah contributed Rs. 2,662. Four municipalities in the Burdwan Division leased out their trenching-grounds for cultivation.

18. Tax on persons according to their circumstances and property (Rs. 4,00,766).—The increase of Rs. 21,631 under this head was due to revision of assessments and better collections.

19. Realization under special Acts (Rs. 1,09,492).—The income under this head increased by Rs. 6,003 which consisted almost entirely of increased jute warehouse fees in Howrah and Cossipore-Chitpur. Fees under the Hackney Carriage Act were levied in Azimganj and Nadia for the first time.

20. Revenue derived from Municipal property and powers apart from taxation (Rs. 4,69,161).—The increase of Rs. 40,466 under this head was principally accounted for by increased rent and interest receipts.

21. Grants and Contributions (Rs. 8,05,290).—There was an increase under this head of Rs. 2,19,043. The following large grants were made by Government :—

Rupees 2,00,000 to Chittagong and Rs. 50,000 to Hooghly-Chinsura for water-supply.

Rupees 33,000 to Burdwan and Rs. 26,000 to Satkhira for improvement of water-supply.

Rupees 17,500 to Bhadreswar and Rs. 10,000 to Bhatpara for drainage works.

Rupees 20,000 to Chittagong for general improvement purposes.

Rupees 18,270 to Dacca for construction of girls' primary schools.

The following instances of private liberality deserve special mention :—

The Maharajadhiraj Bahadur of Burdwan contributed a further sum of Rs. 10,000 for the Burdwan Drainage Scheme ; Raja Rao Jogendra Narain Roy Bahadur of Lalgola gave a donation of Rs. 14,000 for the construction of an outdoor dispensary and a phthisis ward in the Berhampur Hospital ; the Raja Bahadur of Mahisadal contributed Rs. 5,000 to the Midnapore Municipality for a Town Hall ; Babu Nilkrishna Ray gave Rs. 5,000 towards the construction of a bridge over the Chaktai khal in the Chittagong Municipality ; Babu Iswar Chandra Ray made a donation of Rs. 4,000 for the excavation of a tank in Brahmanbaria ; and Babu Sachindra Nath Ray, Chairman of the Dhulian Municipality, gave a sum of Rs. 2,800 for the construction of a dispensary in that town.

22. Expenditure. Office establishment and collection charges (Rs. 3,95,824).—The expenditure under this head increased by Rs. 29,397 and the percentage on the total ordinary expenditure increased by ·4. The highest percentages were shown by Nalchiti (21·1), Khirpai (21·05) and Debhatta (20·6).

23. Prevention of fire (Rs. 76,462).—The increase of Rs. 23,514 under this head is almost entirely due to increased demands from Howrah, Cossipore-Chitpur, Maniktala and Garden Reach Municipalities to meet the cost of improvement in the Calcutta Fire-Brigrade. The total amount contributed by these municipalities was Rs. 73,836.

24. Lighting (Rs. 3,28,785).—The expenditure on lighting increased generally, the total increase being Rs. 34,695. Four municipalities are reported to have been unable to incur any expenditure for street lighting and the arrangements in Chittagong remained defective. A scheme is being drawn up for an electrical installation in Kurseong.

25. Water-supply (Rs. 12,65,291).—The expenditure on water-supply increased by Rs. 2,92,575, of which Rs. 2,48,144 was on account of capital outlay. The Serampur, Jessore and Khulna water-supply schemes were completed during the year and that of Hooghly-Chinsura has since been completed. The South Suburban Municipality spent Rs. 11,418 in extending its water-supply and Berhampur Rs. 3,302 in repairing its water-works. The water-supply plant of the Victoria Jute Mills Co., Telinipara, was improved and the area of supply extended to the great benefit of the public. Many wells and tanks were provided in the smaller municipalities.

The combined drainage and water-supply project in Bankura was commenced and is now in progress. Administrative approval was accorded to schemes submitted by the Commissioners of the Satkhira, Narayanganj and Chittagong Municipalities, the last being finally sanctioned before the close of the year. The provision of water-supply works in Asansol, Madaripur, Rampur-Boalia, Comilla, Chandpur (northern section), English Bazaar, Krishnagar, Nator, and Bogra and the extension or repair of existing works in Berhampur, Serampur, Mymensingh and Barisal were under consideration.

The Garden Reach Municipality appealed to the Local Government against the demand of the Calcutta Corporation for payment at penal rates for the supply of water in excess of the stipulated amount of 50,000 gallons a day. The result of this appeal was the fixing of an all-round rate of six annas per 1,000 gallons supplied up to a maximum of 200,000 gallons per day. The Kurseong filter was examined and overhauled by the Jewell Filter Co., and is now giving excellent results. A set of rules for the management and control of the catchment area was framed by the Municipal Commissioners and is under consideration. The catchment fencing has been readjusted in some places and it has been proposed that the Forest Department should stop forest work in this area and allow the municipality to protect it. It is hoped by this means to prevent pollution of the water.

26. Drainage (Rs. 3,68,648).—The increase of Rs. 89,387 was chiefly on account of capital outlay, the expenditure on which rose by Rs. 85,879. Howrah (Rs. 59,622) and Burdwan (Rs. 52,928) incurred the largest capital expenditure. The Garulia Municipality completed the second portion, and Budge-Budge the northern portion of their respective schemes; block 3 of the Serampur scheme was taken up and finished, and the Ranaghat and Kushtia schemes were nearly completed. A number of pucca drains were constructed in English Bazaar and a scheme of partial drainage at Berhampur was carried out, but it does not appear to have been working satisfactorily. The Suri drains are being repaired and encroachments removed. The preliminary arrangements in connection with the Katwa Drainage Scheme were completed and drainage schemes for Bhadreswar, Kurseong and Tangail received Government sanction. Baruipur applied to Government for a grant of Rs. 5,000 to remedy the defects found in its scheme. Cossipore-Chitpur and Garden Reach submitted schemes to Government for approval. The Asansol Drainage Scheme could not be taken up for lack of funds and may have to be revised. Work on the Baranagar outfall channel was also held up. Drainage schemes were under consideration at Basirhat, Kamarhati, Nator, English Bazaar, Dinajpur, Rangpur, Mymensingh, Faridpur and Jamalpur. The preliminary survey for a drainage scheme at Comilla was completed; this scheme is expected to take some time to mature.

The Commissioner of the Presidency Division has drawn attention to the failure of some drainage schemes after completion and has pointed out that kutcha drains cannot be efficiently maintained by the low-paid staffs employed in small municipalities. The unsatisfactory nature of kutcha drains has now been realised and it is improbable that they will form any important feature in future schemes.

27. Conservancy (Rs. 14,45,131).—The expenditure under this head showed an increase of Rs. 89,456, principally on account of capital outlay.

An improvement in the Dacca conservancy department is reported, but the Barisal conservancy arrangements are still defective. Chandpur and Brahmanbaria each deputed an officer for a course of training which enabled them to qualify as Sanitary Inspectors. Steps are being taken to extend the Sanitary Officers Act to all municipalities whose income is not less than Rs. 10,000 and it is hoped that a number of these inspectors will shortly be appointed.

28. Hospitals and Dispensaries and plague charges (Rs. 3,75,817).—There was an increase of Rs. 57,763 under these heads of expenditure. The Presidency Division contributed the major portion of this including a sum of Rs. 19,000, contributed by Raja Rao Jogendra Narayan Ray of Lalgola (Rs. 14,000) and the Berhampur District Board (Rs. 5,000) for the Berhampur Hospital. At Bankura a new operation-room was constructed and the outdoor accommodation was extended. At Raniganj quarters were constructed for a midwife. At Ghatal a bungalow was acquired for new hospital buildings. Maniktala established a branch dispensary at Ultadingi. Dhulian spent Rs. 4,038 on a new dispensary. The Pabna Municipality was again unable to contribute its share to the Sadar Dispensary and the contributions of the Bogra and Sherpur Municipalities were inadequate.

The expenditure on plague was almost entirely on preventive measures. A threatened outbreak of plague in epidemic form at Baranagar was successfully checked.

29. Public Works (Rs. 8,59,816).—There was an increased expenditure of Rs. 45,315 on roads, but the expenditure under the sub-head "Buildings" decreased by Rs. 25,886; the total increase of expenditure was only Rs. 30,671. The decrease in expenditure on roads by the municipalities in the Presidency and Dacca Divisions was unsatisfactory, and but for a large increase of Rs. 47,321 in the figures for Howrah, the decrease noticed under this head last year would have continued. The percentage of outlay on public works in Kurseong was only 1·5, but this is explained by the fact that all roads, with the exception of three small ones, are maintained by the Public Works Department. Hooghly-Chinsurah incurred only 3·1 per cent. of its total expenditure on public works.

30. Public Instruction (Rs. 1,83,575).—The increase of Rs. 17,966 under this head was shared in by all the divisions. Cox's Bazaar spent the largest proportion of its ordinary income on primary education, viz., 11·2 per cent. Forty-one municipalities spent less than 3·2 per cent.

31. Loans.—Forty-one municipalities were in debt at the close of the year and their total amount of indebtedness after deducting Rs. 7,487, the amount of the Sinking Fund investments of the Burdwan Municipality, was Rs. 42,28,989. The largest outstanding liabilities were those of Howrah (Rs. 21,31,043), Darjeeling (Rs. 8,46,919), Dacca (Rs. 3,05,794), Narayanganj (Rs. 1,39,987) and Hooghly-Chinsurah (Rs. 1,34,124). Five municipalities took loans during the year viz., Howrah (Rs. 2,00,000 for the drainage project), Darjeeling (Rs. 47,740 made up of Rs. 14,000 for improvement of water-supply and Rs. 33,740, the last instalment of the building loan of Rs. 1,63,740), Katwa (Rs. 15,000 for carrying out the drainage scheme), Kushtia (Rs. 6,000, the second instalment of the loan of Rs. 10,000 for drainage) and Jalpaiguri (Rs. 6,000 for the construction of an office building). Vishnupur, Rajpur and Krishnagar paid off their liabilities.

32. On the 31st March 1914, 83 municipalities had outstanding liabilities on current bills amounting to Rs. 2,88,540 which represented 8·1 per cent. of their current demand. In eight municipalities the outstanding liabilities exceeded the closing balance. The financial position of Hooghly-Chinsurah, with a closing balance of Rs. 3,212 and outstanding liabilities of Rs. 73,435, is critical. A special audit of the accounts of this municipality has been ordered by Government since the close of the year.

33. Audit of Accounts and Embezzlement.—There were two cases of embezzlement by tax-collectors in Chandrakona and Mahespur and one by a bench clerk in Bhadreswar. A sum of Rs. 558-12-9 was stolen by an office peon from the iron-safe of the Naihati tax daroga. The peon was arrested and has been sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment. No embezzlements have been reported from the Dacca, Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions.

34. Howrah.—The current demand on account of taxes rose from Rs 9,21,011 to Rs. 9,53,203. The total demand amounted to Rs. 10,11,841, of which Rs. 9,13.566 or 90·2 per cent. was collected. The total ordinary income, including grants and contributions, was Rs. 11,49,445 and the ordinary expenditure Rs. 15,74,216. The large increase in expenditure was due to the expenditure of Rs. 6,92,040 under water-supply, capital outlay. The outstanding debt was Rs. 21.31,043. Satisfactory progress was made with the laying of the new 24" water main, and the water-works at Serampur were maintained in good order. The erection of new over-head reservoirs has been postponed until the necessity for them has been established. Land acquisition proceedings were in progress in connection with the construction of the central drainage canal and it is expected that the excavation work will shortly be commenced. The preparation of schemes for pucca drains which will discharge into this canal is approaching completion.

The lighting of the town was greatly improved by the introduction of electric light. Survey operations were commenced under the supervision of the Director-General of Surveys. The clearance of bustees has been engaging the attention of the Commissioners. The provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act have been found unsatisfactory in the case of Howrah, and the Commissioners are considering the advisability of extending to Howrah the sections of the Calcutta Municipal Act dealing with bustees.

35. The year's record of municipal administration has been reviewed by the Divisional Commissioners, and many interesting remarks have been made by District Magistrates. In the Burdwan Division the Asansol, Raniganj, Tamluk, Sonamukhi and Arambagh Municipalities are specially commended for efficiency and good management. On the other hand, Burdwan, Hooghly-Chinsurah, Uttarpara, Baidyabati and Bansbaria are the subject of unfavourable comment. Burdwan passed through a period of exceptional strain at the time of the Damodar flood, which may have accounted for many of its shortcomings. The Magistrate of Burdwan (Mr. W. A. Marr) observes that with the municipalities in his district "the year has been one of preparation rather than performance", for while few important improvements were completed, many were carried through the preliminary stages. The Magistrate of Hooghly (Mr. Prentice) complains of lack of system and businesslike methods, irregularity in collections and general insufficiency of funds; he notes substantial progress in water-supply and drainage schemes, but fears that the incomes of municipalities will not expand sufficiently to keep pace with the growing demands unless the maximum limit of taxation is raised. The Magistrate of Howrah specially commends the good work done by the Lilua Ward Committee in the town of Bally. Unfortunately the present relations of the Ward Committee with the Municipal Commissioners are not altogether satisfactory, and the administration of the remainder of the Municipality is not conspicuously efficient the financial position being particularly unsound.

The Commissioner of the Presidency Division (Hon'ble Mr. Monahan) has recorded his opinion as follows: "The character of municipal administration in this division varies widely according to the different circumstances of the municipalities. In the large and wealthy suburban municipalities, with a comparatively high and rising valuation, a fairly high standard has been attained, and there is steady progress. The mill municipalities, which administer small and compact areas, with a sufficient income for their requirements, are efficient bodies. Other municipalities include extensive areas of a rural character, where no large income can be raised by taxation and no very high standard of municipal administration is attainable. Others again administer small and unprogressive towns with little trade or industry, or towns which, owing to economic changes, have declined in importance and are still decaying. In such places no large increase of taxation is possible, and, for any important improvements the municipalities depend on subventions from provincial or district funds or private liberality. Many defects may be found in the work of the municipal committees, the most serious, perhaps, being due to the prevalence of party spirit; but, when all the difficulties are taken into account, the record of the municipalities, as a whole, does not seem a bad one."

The Commissioner of Dacca (Mr. F. C. French) reports that on the whole the municipalities in his division are fairly progressive and desire improvements, but are unwilling to pay for them by any increase of taxation. The Magistrate of Mymensingh (Mr. Spry) observes : "The general charges of under-assessment and slack supervision may justly be made against all municipalities of this district, though without uniform severity. Inadequacy of funds is usually due to unsatisfactory assessment, and it is especially so in municipalities with an elected chairman. On the whole, however, the municipalities continue to do good work, and Government are indebted to many gentlemen for public services rendered at the expense of their time and pockets."

In the Chittagong Division, the Comilla Municipality showed a marked improvement in its administration, especially in the collection of arrears of rates and in the attendance of Commissioners at meetings. The Chittagong Municipality has made considerable progress.

In the Rajshahi Division, the Darjeeling and Kurseong Municipalities have the best record. The affairs of Pabna Municipality have been so unsatisfactory that they have been brought under the investigation of a small committee. Substantial progress has been made in other municipalities, and a number of sanitary schemes have been drawn up.

36. The Municipal Commissioners of Burdwan and Cossipore-Chitpur have not made good use of the freedom given to them in the preparation of their budgets. There have been serious irregularities in the Cossipore-Chitpur finances, and the recent audit of the Burdwan accounts has revealed a most unsatisfactory state of affairs. In the latter municipality there has been an alarming increase in the cost of establishment.

No irregularities have been found in the Maniktala budget, while the Commissioners of Howrah are reported to have used their freedom from control with a due sense of responsibility and to have framed their budget with care and prudence.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION FOR THE YEAR 1913-14.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 26TH DECEMBER 1914.

RESOLUTION—No. 5008.

READ—

The Director of Public Instruction's Report on Education for 1913-14

THE report of the Director of Public Instruction for the year 1913-14 is published for general information.

2. Government Arts colleges continued to attract a large number of students, the total number on the rolls on 31st March 1914 being 3,171, as compared with 2,905 at the close of the previous year. The Presidency College further improved its system of control of undergraduate work; and the fitness of students to appear at the degree examinations is now determined by the record of class work and not by test examinations as formerly. More interest was taken in the seminars and a spirit of co-operation between professor and pupil is becoming manifest. An attempt to secure co-operation in other directions was successfully made by the formation of a consultative committee elected by the students. This committee brings before the Principal any matter of interest to the students. Applications were made for extended affiliation in the subjects of botany, geology, physiology and philosophy, and the extension of the chemical laboratory was begun by the end of the year.

3. The establishment of a residential secondary school for Indian boys on the lines of an English public school was decided on during the year under report as a result of the representations made on the subject by many prominent Indians. The school will be housed temporarily for five years in Hastings House which has been lent for the purpose by the Government of India. The necessary structural alterations and additions are now complete and it is hoped to open the school with a small number of pupils at a very early date.

4. Purely vernacular teaching continues to decline in favour. The teaching of English appears to be a necessity for the welfare of any but lower primary schools, for both middle vernacular and upper primary schools are on the decline. The unsatisfactory nature of the upper primary curriculum is also partly responsible for the decreasing popularity of the upper primary schools.

5. The number of lower primary schools in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions decreased very considerably. The floods in Burdwan were responsible for a loss of several hundred schools; others were converted into maktabs, and many of an ephemeral nature were discouraged by inspectors who carefully scrutinized the conditions of schools before allowing any claims for grants-in-aid. The Director of Public Instruction, however, is hopeful for the future of lower primary schools in the western divisions. The scheme adopted in Eastern Bengal of founding improved lower primary schools in each panchayati union has just been extended to Western Bengal and will, it is hoped, meet with success. The whole system of primary education, however, requires overhauling before it can supply the needs of the various sections of the population. The desire for English education will have to be met, the primary school course being so arranged that a boy can enter a primary school with a prospect of being able later on to pass on to a middle English school at least.

6. An encouraging feature of primary instruction is the increase in the number of Muhammadans attending school. Thus while the number of pupils attending primary schools fell by 17,716, the number of Muhammadans at such schools increased by 2,674. Similarly, although there was an actual decrease of 2,920 girl pupils in primary schools, the percentage of girls of school age receiving primary instruction increased from 6·1 to 6·4.

7. The Imperial grants available for capital expenditure on primary education were utilized in the establishment of model primary schools, schools in backward areas and improved guru-training schools, and in providing equipment and new buildings for aided schools. The recurring grant of Rs. 6,00,000, sanctioned in 1912-13, has been allotted for the purpose of increasing the salaries of trained teachers by Rs. 3 and untrained teachers by Re. 1 and for the maintenance of model schools built up to the close of 1912-13. The balance of this grant, amounting to Rs. 56,000, was spent on the improvement of aided schools and equipment.

8. The David Hare and Dacca Training Colleges turned out 48 Bachelors of Teaching, while 13 students of the Dacca College passed the L.T. examination. This number falls far short of the requirements of the Province, and the problem of providing further accommodation for students of Teaching is at present under the consideration of the Director of Public Instruction. The supply of trained vernacular teachers for secondary schools and guru-training schools has been extremely costly. Out of 467 students at training schools, only 74 passed, the total cost to Government being Rs. 85,938. Some progress has, however, been made. The superior staff of secondary training colleges has been improved, the system of vernacular training has been overhauled as a preliminary to its improvement, and funds have been provided for raising the salaries of training instructors and of trained teachers.

9. The works of some old students of the School of Art, Calcutta, were exhibited in London and Paris at exhibitions of oriental painting. They were given prominent positions and attracted some favourable attention in artistic circles.

10. A committee was appointed by Government in October 1913 to advise on the scope and location of a school of mines for Bengal and Bihar and Orissa. The committee discussed thoroughly the whole problem of mining education in the coalfields and submitted a report containing recommendations as to the establishment of a school of mines and the development of the existing system of evening classes. This report is at present under consideration.

11. The Imperial allotment for female education has made it possible to create five additional posts for assistant inspectresses. The inspecting agency for girls' schools now comprises two inspectresses and ten assistant inspectresses. In addition to this improvement of the inspecting staff, the Imperial grants have made it possible to give liberal grants-in-aid, to increase scholarships, to improve training facilities, to improve existing schools, and to initiate a scheme for model primary schools in panchayati unions in Eastern Bengal. One of the most urgent requirements of Bengal for the improvement of female education is the establishment of a women's secondary training college. At present there is no Government training college in the Presidency, but a grant is given to the Diocesan College for the training of secondary school teachers in Calcutta.

There has been an improvement in the conditions of Muhammadan girls' schools in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions, and the Muhammadan community in these divisions is reported to be taking an interest in the education of its girls.

12. In the European schools, as in others, the supply of good teachers is very limited owing to the poor prospects offered. Many schools have taken up the question of improvement in this respect, and with the assistance received out of the Imperial grants have been enabled to increase the salaries of their teachers. The Director of Public Instruction, however, reports that much remains to be done; he is of opinion that a scale of minimum salaries should be made compulsory for recognised schools and that Provident funds should be established.

13. The number of Muhammadan students in the upper stages of instruction remains low. The percentage of Muhammadans in colleges is 7·2. in the high stage 14·7, and in the middle stage 25. Only in the primary stage, where the percentage is 42·6, is the number of Muhammadan pupils at all commensurate with the proportion that the Muhammadan community bears to the total population of Bengal. There has, however, been a slight increase of ·6 per cent. in the proportion of Muhammadan pupils to the total number of pupils in institutions of all kinds for the education of Indians. Muhammadans have been slow in entering technical and industrial schools, although they have mechanical ability and are widely employed on this account in the lower ranks of engineering establishments. The Director of Public Instruction is, therefore, considering whether the system of industrial and technical education in Bengal is suited to the requirements of Muhammadans, and, if so, why advantage is not taken by them of the facilities provided for such education.

The number of madrasas increased by 12 and the pupils attending them by 708. The rules for the Madrasa examinations have been altered, the number of examinations having been reduced to two, the lower and higher. The rules for the title examinations have also been modified so as to bring them in line with those for the Sanskrit Title Examinations. Since the close of the year under review further reforms have been adopted by Government in accordance with the recommendations of the Dacca University Committee. The Calcutta Madrasa will, however, continue on the old lines with such modifications as may appear necessary.

14. Sonthali pupils were successful in gaining a number of primary and middle scholarships. Efforts are being made to encourage education among the Sonthals and a scheme is now under consideration. At present the training of Sonthal teachers is carried out by the Seranga Mission which employs these teachers in its schools. The education of other backward communities such as the children in tea-gardens and the children of mill-labourers is not being neglected. Schools for tea-garden children exist in Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri, most of those in the latter district being managed by the planters; while a preliminary survey has been made preparatory to the framing of a scheme of primary education for mill-labourers' children.

15. Illustrated lectures on sanitation with special reference to the prevention and cure of malaria were delivered in selected schools. For this purpose three specially-qualified lecturers were appointed. The parents of scholars were invited to attend and the invitation was largely accepted.

The question of hygiene has been receiving attention and a small committee, composed of medical and educational experts, was appointed to enquire into the hygienic conditions of schools with a view to the formulation of a scheme for the expenditure of the imperial non-recurring grant of Rs. 3,50,000 for the improvement of hygiene in schools.

16. Some students were implicated in conspiracy cases at the beginning of the year, but there was a marked improvement in the situation as the year progressed. The Director of Public Instruction finds abundant signs that parents and guardians generally abhor the attempts that are made from time to time to lure their boys into seditious ways of thought and action, but he regrets the fact that their indignation does not take a sufficiently aggressive form. The Governor in Council agrees with the Director of Public Instruction in thinking that if public opinion were sufficiently strong the propagation of sedition and anarchy among schoolboys would become ineffective if not impossible.

17. The thanks of Government are due to Mr. Hornell for his energetic administration of the department during the year and for his full report, which shows that substantial progress has been made in many directions and that the foundations are being firmly laid for many important reforms.

By order of the Governor in Council,

H. F. SAMMAN,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 28th December 1914.

Summary.—Excepting in some districts of the Burdwan and Rajshahi Divisions light to moderate rainfall was fairly general throughout the province. The rainfall was favourable to the rabi crops but injurious to the winter rice crop, standing as well as reaped and stacked in the fields. Harvesting of winter rice is nearing completion. The state and prospects of the rabi crops are fairly good. Damage to standing winter rice by insect-pests continues to be reported from parts of Khulna. Cattle-disease is reported from eight districts. The average price of common rice for the province has fallen by about 1·2 per cent., as compared with that of the previous week.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

STATEMENTS SHOWING THE QUANTITIES OF THE PRINCIPAL STAPLES IMPORTED INTO AND EXPORTED FROM CALCUTTA IN THE SIX MONTHS OF APRIL TO SEPTEMBER 1914.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS.

THE following statistical tables are intended to show the trade of Calcutta in selected articles during the months of April to September 1914 by all routes, i.e., by rail, road, river, canal and sea. The statistics have been compiled from returns furnished by the Collector of Customs, Calcutta, Railway Audit Offices, Steamer Companies, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, the District Magistrates of the 24-Parganas and Howrah, and the Assistant Engineer, Calcutta Canals.

Table I summarises briefly the imports into and exports from Calcutta of staples during the month of September 1914 as against the corresponding period of 1913.

Tables II—VII give in detail the imports into and exports from Calcutta for the six months ending September 1914.

The total imports into Calcutta in the six months of April to September 1914 of rice, wheat, wheat-flour, gram and pulse and other food-grains were 16,000,000 maunds, as against 20,000,000 maunds and 27,000,000 maunds in the corresponding period of 1913. But although trade in food-grains generally declined, the imports of rice and wheat-flour showed an increase of about 2,000,000 and 40,000 maunds, respectively, in the six months of 1914 as compared with the corresponding six months of 1913. The imports of husked rice and paddy were 10,867,000 maunds, as against 9,091,000 maunds in the corresponding period of 1913. The district of 24-Parganas supplied Calcutta with a little less than half of the total imports of rice received from Bengal. It will also be observed that Burma sent 6,500,000 maunds of rice and paddy into Calcutta as against 4,000,000 maunds received from the interior of Bengal. The total imports of wheat declined from 4,757,000 maunds in the six months of 1913 to 2,400,000 maunds in the same period of 1914.

There were also decreases in the imports of Indian cotton piece-goods, indigo, jute, rape and mustard, raw silk, sugar (refined and unrefined) and unmanufactured tobacco while the imports of coal and coke, raw cotton, cotton twist and yarn, gunny-bags, lac, linseed, tea and manufactured tobacco were imported into Calcutta in somewhat larger quantities. Of the Rs. 88,00,000 of Indian cotton piece-goods imported into Calcutta, Rs. 57,00,000 came from Bombay, Rs. 12,00,000 from the district of Hooghly and Rs. 8,00,000 from the Central Provinces and Berar. More than Rs. 36,00,000 worth of piéce-goods were imported vid the Bengal-Nagpur Railway and about Rs. 32,00,000, vid the Eastern Bengal State Railway.

Among the articles of import jute, owing to war conditions shows a very serious fall—only 1,176,000 bales were imported into Calcutta in the six months of April to September 1914, as compared with 2,227,000 bales in 1913. Jute was received chiefly from Faridpur (260,000 bales), followed by Dacca (194,000 bales), Mymensingh (146,000 bales), 24-Parganas (99,000 bales) and Rangpur (96,000 bales). Over 117,000,000 gunny-bags were imported almost entirely from the districts of Hooghly and the 24-Parganas. The exports of the number of gunny-bags were 428,000,000, of which 389,000,000 went to foreign countries—19,000,000 to the United Kingdom, 11,000,000 to Burma, 4,000,000 to Bombay and 3,000,000 to Sind.

There has likewise been a decline in the exports of food-grains by sea. In the six months of April to September 1913, the exports of rice amounted to 4,589,000 maunds, wheat to 2,036,000 maunds, gram and pulse 2,210,000 maunds and other food-grains 1,341,000 maunds. In the corresponding period of 1914 the exports were: Rice 2,822,000 maunds, wheat 81,000 maunds, gram and pluse 788,000 maunds and other food-grains 73,000 maunds. In other words, for the six months of 1914 the total exports of food-grains were 4,007,000 maunds, as against 10,493,000 maunds in 1913.
